VIGOROUS COMPLAINT

"I would like to know," said Orville Dolsen this morning, "who pays R.
A. Hughes for testing the scales. Is it the Government or does he get paid by fees which he collects. I think that there is something wrong in the way the fees are charged. The drayman is hired by the day. Yet every store keeper is assessed 20 cents drayage. Why from the business men on this corner over $1.50 was collected for drayage alone. Imagine charging 20 cents for carrying the weights across the street. They charge enough in addition for testing the scales, 75 cents each. It isn't so much what they charge for testing the scales as that 20 cents imposition. I object to that and I am going to find out about it."

A Ruined Book.

The man who has an old book rebound can never be too minute in his instructions to his binder. Once upon a time, it is said, a tattered "Shaks-peare" was sent to the binders for the sole purpose of preserving a number of marginal notes in manuscript. What was the chagrin of the owner when his book came back with the edges neatly pared and gilt and the notes that he treasured half cut away.

Explained.

"And haven't you got any more money?" asked the sweet young thing selling chances at the church fair.
"Yes; I've got a dollar," reluctantly admitted the unfortunate but truthful young man. "But I put it in the sole of my stocking before putting on my shoes so as to have something to pay my car fare home."

MECHANICAL SPLENDOR

It was Well Paid for and Characterised the Reception to Hon. G. W. Ross To-day.

Little Enthusiasm Shown—Undertaker in Charge of Procession was Suggestive.

Hon. G. W. Ross, for whom such elaborate preparations have been made by the local Liberals, arrived the city at noon on the 12.42 train and was escorted up town by a large procession of followers and supporters. After parading from the G. T.
R. station via William and King streets to Third street, the procession rounded up at the Garner House, where Mr. Ross was entertained to lunch.

A very large crowd was present at the depot to welcome the Reform leader into the city. Conspicuous among the prominent Liberals present were John Lee, Highgate; Geo.
Stephens, M. P.; J. A. Walker, K. C.; Fred Stone, Wm. Stone, John Pig-gott, Sr., Walter Piggott, John Waddell, O. L. Lewis, H. Malcolmson, Geo.
Witherspoon, N. H. Stevens, Spencer
Stone, Arch. McCoig, J. G. Kerr, J.
Brady, N. H. Rathven, Dr. Fleming, Wm. Anderson, J. W. Humphrey, Jas.
Innes, E. A. Mounter, Mac Gardiner, James Fleming, T. L. Pardo, W.
Stone, W. A. Hadley, James Smith, Charles Smith, and a host of others.

As the train steamed into the depot the Citizens' Band played the national anthem. Mr. Ross was met by a reception committee composed of Messrs. Geo. Stephens, M. P., John Lee, T. L. Pardo, N. H. Stevens, J.
A. Walker and J. G. Kerr, who escorted him to his carriage.

The procession, which was under the management of W. Jahnke, was immediately formed. It was headed by Mr. Jahnke himself, who with Policeman Tom Groves rode in a natty pneumatic road carriage belonging to Irish Jack.

Next in order after the band came O. L. Lewis, W. A. Hadley, W. Stone and Fred Stone.

Mr. Ross was seated in the next carriage with Messrs. Lee, Pardo and Stephens. The procession was a very long one, and consisted of over 23 rigs and two bands—the Citizens' and the Wabash.

King street was lined with streamers bearing such inscriptions as "Remember Ross," "Vote for Ross and honest government" and others. Quite a number of spectators were on hand to witness the procession.

A reception was held between three and four o'clock, after which Mr. Ross was conducted to the bath house from whence a procession will take place to the opera house at half past seven.

One noticeable feature of the parade was the lack of enthusiasm along the line of march.

GLEANINGS.

No, it wasn't p.a.
Jahnke had the job.
A great mechanical spectacle.
Where was the spontaneous enthusiasm?

The undertaker was rushing Ross' political funeral.

A spectator asked, "Where is the flag the Machine" sign." This wasn't the first funeral procession that Jahnke had handled.

They paid the price and the bands and hackmen delivered the goods.

Has Mr. Parrott been out yet? We thought he expressed himself at Thamesville as fully in accord with the Government.

Walter Piggott's plug hat was one of the feature's in the procession. It had evidently seen plenty of service and was a first class curio.

Minute Tapioca and Minute Gelatine

It is hardly probable there is such a person keeping house that has not at some time used Tapioca, Sago, Rice, or some other preparation of the kind, but never without first cooking for a certain length of time, so that in order that you may have some one of the preparations for your dessert you have to think a long way ahead of time in order to have it ready. But not so now. In this great age of advancement the poor grocery man is not forgotten and in consequence we can give you preparations that require no long hours of cooking as before.
We refer to Minute Tapioca that may be prepared in less time than it takes to tell it and in so many ways that you could have something different in the dessert line for a straight week and still be using minute tapioca, and the same with Minute Gelatine, and the new preparation that we have just received. It was first introduced at the Buffalo Exposition, and we are now introducing it to our customers. The advantages are that it can be prepared in one minute, and one package will make half a gallon of jelly—exactly four times as much as any other jelly powder. Come in and we will show them to you.

of the foremost carriages said Jahnke did his work very badly, and that having led so many funeral processions he should have had his work better in hand.

The Liberals should have hit on another sign-daubing dodge to work up a little enthusiasm.

The "Ross and Honest Government" sign fell three times while it was being put up. A passer-by remarked "the Liberals have hard work keeping the government up."

Arch. McCoig's horse at first refused to walk in the procession and it was necessary to lead him some distance. He was only induced to follow when he was paid. He said he was out for the "stuff."

Considerable amusement was occasioned by the remark of a large coloured woman in the employ of the Garner House, who was witnessing the procession from one of the upper windows. When she saw the leader of the aggregation she exclaimed: "For de lawd a massie, Jahnke is in de lead!"

Mr. Chase, one of the marshals, met with a nasty accident. His horse became frightened at a C. P. R. locomotive and reared, falling back on the carriage, in which was the Hon.
G. W. Ross. Mr. Chase had a narrow escape from serious injury but fortunately escaped with a few slight bruises.
