MUSTN'T PUT HER EYE OUT

Hugh Toner Bound Over to Keep the Peace.

For threatening to murder Mrs. Mar garet Myers, Hugh Toner, 339 Went worth street north, was bound over at Police Court, to-day, to keep the peace, in the sum of $50. The complainant said that Toner, who lives next door to her, never lost an opportunity to abuse her whenever he had been drinking, which pretty often. He had intimated was pretty often. He had intimated that she was running an improper house and did not hesistate to call names significant of that at her, at such times. The statement Toner was alleged to have made, on which Mrs. Myers based her charge, was that he would put hereyes out and murder her. The defendant denied this, and said thit it was all spite work on the part of Mrs. Myers. He said that there was a fight there every night, and that they were only trying to get back at him. Miss Myers was called, and her evidence corroborated that of her mother. Charles Markle, one of Mrs. Myers' boarders, said that the language of Toner was not fit to be heard. It was so bad, he said, that he had often been tempted to take the law in his own hands, but was afraid that he would get the worst of it from the Magistrate. Truancy Officer Hunter said that for the past week Toner's boy had not been going to school, and blamed the father, who, he said, had been drinking considerably lately. Toner did not offer any defence other than saying that he had not threatened Mrs. Myers. Frances Kelly was given judgment for $8.12 wages against Miss O'Connor, 167½ King street east. The defendant did not appear.

Ogilvie, appearing for the defendant, demurred at the delay. He said he understood that it was a kind of a bluff proposition. The girl who claimed to be assaulted, he said, was able to work and carry water, but as soon as the doctor was due to arrive she hustled back to bed. The Magistrate granted the remand.

A case that caused some amusemen A case that caused some amusement at the Police Court this morning was that of Patrick Mullen, who possessed some remarkable characteristics of manner, dress, speech, looks and action. He was charged with being drunk. In the way of physical beauty Patrick was decidedly a damaged article. He had been deprived of the sight of one eye by forcible contact with something, which broke his spectacles, and at the by forcible contact with something which broke his spectacles, and at the name time it extinguished his sinister optic. His nose had become a garden for the culture of blossoms by far more common than they are proper. But Mr. Mullen, despite the reverses he had evidently suffered, stood gracefully and proudly erect. He was advised to separate himself from the sum of $2.00.

Young Hazelton told the police that he ran away from his home last Saturday, and started for Buffalo, but got on the wrong freight train, and landed in Detroit. The hoy had but a few cents, and he spent all the money he had for a few buns and cakes. On Monday morning he paid out his last cent, and when he was found he was almost starved. He was given a meal, and then allowed to sleep in a cell at the police headquarters. The Hazelton boy told the police that his mother is dead and that his father is a retired man of some means. He says since his mother's death his father and he have been boarding. He had a little trouble with his father last Friday night, and concluded to run away.

This is the last time he will ever attempt to roam around the country. Hazelton says. He stated that he had had enough of that kind of a life, and will willingly go home, if his father will either come for him or send the money. The boy's father is Nicholas Hazelton. The police have notified him of the condition his son is in, and the boy will be held until the father is heard from.

Hazelton and his son lived at 223 John street south until April 1, and had since been boarding. The boy, it was stated by neighbors, had run away before, and had got as far as Texas once. I with.

be sent to Alexandria, Ind., where there is reason to believe that the mysterious Marion Elliott, referred to by Florence Kinrade in her evidence, is staying. Colonel Warburton is also said to be there. Naturally the police are somewhat arnoyed at this information being made public, and apparently try to discredit it. At the same time it will be carefully investigated. As a result of the search in the south by the Pinkerton officer, who could find no trace of these people, the Crown was led to believe that they were myths—mere creatures of imagination. If they can be located it is possible that some new light in the case may be secured. It is known, too, that detectives are following another clue, which they are hopeful may bring results.

er clue, which they are hopeful may bring results.

An official of the Queen's Hotel, where the Kinrade party was registered while in Montreal, stated that the three people referred to engaged a suite of rooms there with the intention of staying some days, but suddenly decided to leave early yesterday morning. No doubt they left because of the annoyance they were subjected to by newspaper men. It is stated that their reason for going to Montreal was to avoid reporters and publicity. They had not been there long beforg one paper alone had half a dozen reporters camping on their trail.

Describing their stay in Montreal a despatch from there says:

That they succeeded in getting away without an interview with the journalists was due to the fact that the management of the Queen's Hotel made special arrangements to see that they were not disturbed.

cial arrangements to see that they were not disturbed.

As far as could be learned, the Kinrades retired early, Florence having spent the greater part of the evening at a piano in a private parlor of the hotel, where her mother and Wright sat with her.

They were up bright and early yesterday morning and took an early breakfast in the dining room. After the morning meal, the three went to their rooms and collected their luggage, and Mr. Wright went to the counter and paid the bill for the entire party.

The three then left by the ladies' entrance and walked across to the Bonaventure depot, each member of the party being dressed as on arrival yesterday. None of the party bought tickets, but they went directly aboard the train for the east, which might mean Portland or Quebec as their ultimate destination.

the New Sherbrooke Hotel, where they had lunch. They are travelling under assumed names, and Mr. Wright registered as Norman Latchford. This was the name he used when he regis tered at the Queen's Hotel, Montreal last night. Miss Kinrade registered as Miss Latchford and Mrs. Kinrade as Mrs. Latchford. They took two rooms adjoining with a door communicating be-tween them. Mr. Wright and Miss Kin-rade went to the Union Depot this af-ternoon and made enquiries as to the first train leaving Sherbrooke. When told that the first train went west, they nquired for trains going east, and espe-ially asked about trains for the White Mountains.

The party left Sherbrooke by the B. & M. 9.15 p. m. train for Boston after spending the afternoon in the city. Mr. Wright and Miss Florence visited several places, including the Y. W. C. A. The B. & M. train was held up at Newport for one hour, but finally proceeded through to Boston, with Miss Kinrade, her mother, and Mr. Wright aboard, due to arrive in Boston at 7.30 a. m.
