in medicine is analogous to the importance of fron in the Industrial Arts. Its use is indi-cated in all wasting diseases, where there ex-ists no fever, and where the red globules of the blood are diminished. When impaired digestion exists, or other functions are de-ranged, whereby the tissues lack nourish-ment, then the speediest and surest cure

IS brought about by giving Iron. It directly increases the red corpuscles and changes their pale and shrivelied condition to reduces and fulness: through them the system is more highly oxygenized, and the conditions necessary for direction and renewal of tissue are secured.
