

Jesus is Lord of all, and the beams a little child like me.

Keep for the darling Foster-Son, And Blessed Mary spin and sewed. And I cooked and sopped, and always shewed. The sweetest love, the holiest care, For little Jesus living there. And as the Boy, from year to year, So good, so great of heart, so dear, Grew on in wisdom and in grace. He also worked in that sweet place. Then, by-and-by, our Jesus went From that best home, where He had spent So many years; went to fulfil His Father's will, which was His will. He always did that will, and so, When God had told Him forth to go, He went to do whatever it meant: To suffer and to die content. I have my cosy little bed; He had not where to lay His head. And love for me a home has made; And he was hated and betrayed. God loved us, and His love was such No one but He could love so much. And this was why, from Nazareth, Dear Jesus went to Calvary's death. And this was why, when death was o'er, He lived again to die no more. What can we do for Him Who cared So much for us; for Him Who shared Our life, and died that we might dwell With Him in joy? 'Tis love, His love well. And better still, and still more blest, Is—love this darling Jesus best. —Emily Hickey.

The King's Messenger.

(By Ross Mulholland Gilbert, in Ave Maria.) Concluded. "My God!" he suddenly ejaculated, "my God what an extraordinary coincidence! This picture was an exact representation of his little visitor of the evening before. There she was—blue eyes, falling yellow hair, pale blue muslin frock; a peculiar little countenance lighted up by the most speaking intelligence. As he stared at her, the eyes looked back at him again, and the lips seemed ready to uncross with a repetition of an urgent appeal, menace. "Don't interfere with the boys! If you do, God will punish you." "The boys! Was she one of the family? And had she, after all, been to the hotel the evening before, and, perhaps, prompted by her mother, made an attempt to startle him?" As this suggestion occurred to him, he heard the sound of the door opening, turned and confronted his mother. "The meeting was an affecting one. My uncle, though an eminently commonsensical and matter-of-fact man, had his hidden vein of sentiment, and was touched by my mother's feeble and spiritual beauty and soft aspect in her mourning weeds. She, on her part, did not find so much hardness as she had expected in the face of her dear husband's brother. They clasped hands in silence; and before my mother could find her voice to bid the visitor welcome, my uncle suddenly turned to the portrait over the mantelpiece. "First, and before everything," he said, "strange as it may seem, pray tell me who is the original of that picture—if it has an original?" "Mother's eyes followed the movement of his hand, indicating the particular picture. "Yes," she said, "it has an original in heaven. That is the portrait of my only girl—who died five years ago." "Many a time my mother told us the story in later years. My uncle, who was rather a ruddy

Gains in the Back

They are commonly attended by loss of energy, lack of courage, and some- times by gloomy foreboding and despondency. I was taken ill with kidney trouble, and so weak I could scarcely get around. I tried medicine without benefit, and finally decided to try Wood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I felt so much better that I bought six more, and six bottles made me a new woman. When my little girl was a year old, she could not keep anything on her back, and we gave her Wood's Sarsaparilla, which cured her. —Mrs. Thomas Wallaceburg, Ont.

It cures kidney and liver troubles, restores the back, and builds up the whole system. man, turned, she said, quite white and kept staring at the portrait with so strange an expression that she thought his mind had suddenly become affected. At last he removed his gaze from the canvas and turned it on her. Two or three large, slow tears gathered in his eyes and dropped. "My sister," he said, "it seems to me that God has been fighting your battle and intends you to win. I came here to take your boys; I shall leave them with you." "He then simply and shortly, told her of his experience of the evening before. My mother wept silently. Awed and impressed as she was, she had no difficulty in believing the story. "We need not talk about it except among ourselves," said my uncle; "but let me stay with you here a few days until I think the matter out. I am not just the man for an experience of this kind. I shall take some time to digest and assimilate it." "We were introduced (my brother and myself) to our dreaded uncle, whom we did not find at all the kind of person we had expected. He was bluff and kind; took us for long walks and rides, questioned us about our sports and our lessons, told us stories, and was altogether a delightful companion to us. He encouraged us to talk to him about everything, which we did, perhaps overfreely sometimes. Among other things, we informed him of how much we had dreaded his visit. "Mother was afraid you would take us from her and send us to a kind of school she did not like," said my brother. "We prayed against you every night. Mother said to God that she would rather He would take us Himself, where He has got our little sister, than let us go with you." "But, then, she did not know the kind of man you are, and I hastened to say, fearing that my brother, a year or two younger, had spoken with want of tact. "I do not wonder she did not know me," said my uncle; "for I do not seem to know myself." "After some days, he left us and went back to London; but he wrote to my mother frequently, and before long his path led us another visit. He used to stand for long minutes before my sister's portrait, gazing intently at her bright, intelligent little face; and then would turn away and pace up and down the room, lost in a reverie. "Mary he said one day, a new man would seem to have been born in me on the day when I entered this room, bent on opposing you. I ask you to pray that the new-born creature may grow and develop into something more worthy of his Maker than the individual who was I." "My mother prayed, and so did we two little boys. And, not to spin my story out to a wearisome length, the end of it was that my uncle, and afterwards his wife and children, became fervent Catholics; and my brother and I are both growing old in the priesthood.

The Bad Cold

OF TO-DAY IT MAY BE SERIOUS TO-MORROW May Develop into Bronchitis, Pneumonia and perhaps Consumption. Miss Mary Frouse, R.R. No. 1, Cedarvale, Ont., writes: "I had the influenza in November last, and it left me with a terrible cough. I did not attend to it until it got so severe people warned me it was time to see about it. I went to the doctor and got some medicine. He told me it was a bad attack of bronchitis. I could not sleep and would have to sit up nearly all night, it was so difficult for me to get my breath. The doctor's medicine did not seem to be helping me the least bit. One of our neighbors came in one day, and told me about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I tried it and took two bottles. No person could believe how it helped me. I have recommended it to different people since, for I believe I have reasons for doing so. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup has been on the market for the past 30 years, and stands out by itself as a remedy for all coughs and colds. Be sure and get the real 'Dr. Wood's' when you ask for it. Put up in a yellow wrapper; 3 pins across the trade mark; price 25c. and 50c. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Pope Innocent V.

There have been thirteen Popes of the name of Innocent. St. Innocent, the first Pope to assume the name, reigned in the fifth century, and it was during his pontificate that Rome was destroyed by Alaric the Goth. Innocent V. was a native of Burgundy, where he was born in 1225. In early life he joined the Dominican Order, and became noted for his eloquence in the pulpit and for his personal sanctity and zeal. His name was Pierre de Tarentaise. He succeeded St. Thomas Aquinas as teacher of theology in the University of Paris, and was made Archbishop of Lyons in 1272, and then Cardinal Bishop of Ostia. His pontificate was very brief, lasting only six months. The most noteworthy feature of his pontificate was the practical steps he was taking to bring about a reconciliation with the Eastern Church. He was proceeding to send delegates to the Greek Emperor in connection with the decisions of the Council of Lyons, which had just been held, when he was taken ill and died. He was the author of several works in philosophy, theology, and canon law, and is referred to in the works of Peter of Lombardy as "the most famous Doctor." He was interred in the Lateran Church, his funeral obsequies being attended by the King of Sicily and great numbers of civil and ecclesiastical dignitaries, as well as by a vast concourse of the people. He was succeeded by Adrian V., who was his nephew, and who was very old and feeble at the time, and lived but a month after being chosen Pope.

OPERATING ONE HOUR EARLIER Important Daylight Saving Change of Time at 2 a.m. Sunday, March 30, 1919

All clocks and watches used in operation of Canadian National Railway will at 2 a.m. Sunday, March 30th, be advanced one hour. To prevent serious confusion and inconvenience to the public the attention of all concerned is directed to the following conditions resulting from the important change of time: If cities, towns, villages and other municipal bodies do not change their local time to correspond with the new Railway time, all concerned should keep in mind that while trains continue to leave Railway Stations on present schedule, such schedule will be operated one hour ahead of present local time. Therefore any municipality where local time is not changed to correspond with the new Railway time, passengers must reach Railway Station ONE HOUR EARLIER than shown in current folders and public time posters.
