SCREENS.

By RUTH CAMERON.

This is to be a word about screens. Not the kind of screens you put in windows, but the kind you put between you and yourself so that you can not see yourself too clearly.

When I am having difficulty in expressing myself in writing, I find myself leaving my desk, ostensibly to sharpen my pencil, actually to get away from the painful effort of concentration.

The idea that I must sharpen my pencil is what I mean by a screen.

I Don't Want To Admit I'm A Shirk.

I put it up between me and my actual motive so that I won't have to admit I'm just trying to shirk.

The child who feels ill at quarters of nine in the morning and recovers at half-past nine, when it is too late for him to be sent to school, shows how early in life we begin to use screens.

Of course that might be deliberate shamming, but far more often a child deceives himself. I know, because I can vaguely remember even now the mental processes of one little girl who hated school so much that the approach of nine o'clock helped to give her a sick feeling at her stomach. My brother used to call it my "ginger cookie sickness," because before the forenoon was over I had recovered sufficiently to eat a dozen ginger cookies.

They Used Screens Two Thousand Years Ago.

The Pharisee who stood in the market-place and prayed and disfigured himself that men might know he was fasting, is a classic example of the use of screens.

We all, wise and foolish, use them, more or less, in one way or another, from the beginning to the end. The difference between the man who thinks and the man who doesn't is that the man who thinks, knows he uses screens and tries to push them away, and the man who doesn't think never even suspects it.

He Knew Himself.

A man told me the other day that he didn't consider a certain woman he had just met at all pretty, although she has had that reputation.

The next day he said: "Last night she looked really pretty to me, and I am glad. You see, she evidently didn't like to dance with me and I was afraid that made me think her plain. I'm glad to find I'm not that small."

There is a man who is thoughtful enough to suspect himself of using screens.

And by the same token there is a man who is likely to go far.

Grand Complexion Improver!

Better Than Cosmetics

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth to faded cheeks, when skin disfigurements can be removed, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Go to the root of the trouble—remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of. How much happier you'll feel—pimples gone, cheeks rosy again, eyes bright, spirits good, joyous health again returned. Never a failure with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, get a 25c. box to-day.

Tomatoes, lima beans, carrots and corn, mixed and cooked until they are thoroughly done, then put into glass jars and sealed, will be easily kept and will make a delicious dish for winter.

Licensing Board Meets

Yesterday afternoon the Licensing Board met at the Magistrate's Court. Mayor Gossage presided and the following members of the Board were present: J. G. Sullivan, J. P. Blackwood, B. J. A. White, B. L. and J. McCarthy, J. P. Four outside citizens attended. Secretary McCarthy read a list of 39 applicants for renewals of licenses. Last year there were 40 applicants, one liquor dealer having withdrawn from the business. Mr. Blackwood regretted the small attendance, as he would like to hear an expression of public opinion regarding the renewals of licenses. Discussion was deferred until the Board meets again shortly.

Amusements.

AT THE CRESCENT.

A wonderful picture is "The Home Breakers" that the Crescent Picture Palace presents to-day. Margaret Landis is the leading star in this three reel Klockerbocker Star feature. Lillian Burns and Donald Hill are presented in "The Third Party," a Vitagraph Society drama. Billie Reeves—the celebrated English Music Hall Comedian, in "A Wise Walter," a rich and clever comedy. Professor McCarthy playing the latest and best music. To-morrow a three reel Broadway star feature: "Out of the Quagmire," with Joseph Kilgour.

Voices From England and Germany.

(Brooklyn "Eagle.")

Mr. Lloyd-George's statement to a press correspondent and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech in the Reichstag are alike in one particular: Both declare absolute confidence in the resources of their respective countries and alliances. The British spokesman deprecates all talk of peace at this time. The German spokesman announces Germany's readiness for peace, but neglects to state or even indicate the terms upon which peace would be acceptable to the German Government. For purposes of publication, at least, he still clings to the belief that Germany cannot be beaten and can in the end secure a peace which will leave her as much of a force in European politics as she was before the war began.

These two men reflect the opposing attitudes of the British and the German people. The former are convinced they can conquer. The latter no longer look for victory, but hope to avert defeat. They do not now demand indemnities or the annexation of raided provinces. With their enemies multiplying, their resources dwindling, their coasts blockaded, their foreign commerce destroyed, their colonies gone and their armies everywhere on a bad defensive, they would open negotiations for peace in the hope that they could employ their conquests in Europe as a lever to effect a fairly profitable agreement.

Germany regards England as her most dangerous enemy. She is right. English money has largely financed the war activities of France and Russia, to say nothing of the smaller powers. English ships have closed German ports and kept the seas open to the Allied commerce, including military supplies, and moved armed men by the million to the battle fronts.

England has sacrificed the flower of her manhood and billions of treasure in a war which her diplomacy labored desperately to avert in the closing days of July and the first days of August, 1914. Mr. Lloyd-George correctly interprets the British resolution to prosecute the war, to continue the sacrifices until England and her allies are able to make peace upon her own terms. It does not follow that those terms will realize the German apprehension that the Allies aim at the annihilation of Germany. Their object is entirely different. They do not seek to destroy Germany, but they do seek to destroy the power of Germany to throw Europe into a panic by the threat of war. Never again shall Germany be able to drive a French minister from office as she drove M. Delcasse in 1905; never again shall a German menace enable an ally of Germany to flout the ruling of the Congress of the Congress of Berlin by annexing Bosnia and Herzegovina; never again shall Germany be able to throw arbitration to the winds and provide a world-wide cataclysm as she did two years ago.

Europe wants the nightmare of the mailed fist removed forever. That is why England and her allies are preparing to make new sacrifices in lives and treasure. That is why Mr. Lloyd-George for England and M. Briand for France declare that no talk of peace can at the present time be made acceptable to their respective countries. Russia and Italy are equally resolute. No member of the grand alliance weakened in the dark days of the war when their common cause sustained reverse after reverse. It would be folly to expect that when the tide has turned and victory has come within their grasp they should be willing to listen to suggestions of mediation and compromise.

What Are You Doing for that Eczema?

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time." I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist.

Zylex, 50c. a box; Zylex Soap, 25c. a cake.

Identifying the Regiment.

It was in a little out-of-the-way village in France, and the Highland regiment was swarming along the road. Two old Frenchmen, obviously puzzled by their costume, were having a heated argument on the same.

Said one: "Zey cannot be seen for look at ze dress and ze skirt!"

Replied the other: "Zey cannot be women, for zey have ze moustachios."

"Ah!" replied the first speaker, "I have it. Zey are ze famous Middlesex regiment of whom I have heard so much."

COASTAL SHIP DETAINED.—The S. S. Prospero did not get away for the northward last evening, as expected, owing to trouble with stokers.

TOBACCO PHOTOGRAPHED.—A photograph of the shipment of Mayco-Linds and cigarettes for "Ours" was taken yesterday at the Imperial Tobacco Co.'s factory.

HEAVY SHIPMENT OF FISH.—The S. S. Tabasco is taking one of the heaviest cargoes of codfish ever carried by a Furness boat. About 130,000 cubic feet of the ship's cargo space is occupied.
