Teutonic Bluff.

Every effort of the Teutonic rulers are being put forward toward the securing of a compromise peace, and the game of bluff is being played to its fullest extent. Every suggestion of the Central Powers has an obvious purpose—that of gaining time, with the object of giving the rapidly re-organizing armies an opportunity to make a stand and hold up the victorious advance of the Allies. Then, should this be accomplished, the wily Hun imagines, that he will hold the cards that take the trick and his demands for compromise will be more insistent. In this the Boche is favored by a body of pacifists in England, who think more of hurting the German feelings (as if he had any feelings to hurt) than they do of all the atrocities and outrages which have been perpetrated by a barbarous nation in arms, on all and sundry with whom it has come in contact. The wonder is that these people are allowed to remain in England. They do no good, but on the contrary incalculable harm, and if their "spiritual home" is in Germany their bodies should be made follow their astral forms, to take up a permanent residence in that country. Otherwise take them out and shoot them. Too long have they hindered and blocked the victorious course of the war, and placed obstacles in the way of its successful conclusion. Now they plead for mercy and compromise to and with a foe who does not know the meaning of either, except when their own interests are at stake. American opposition to any compromise peace will fortunately nullify the protestations of the little Englander and pro-German in the Old Country. Negotiations with Germany are not to be considered, and German representatives should be excluded from any Allied Conferences which may be held to define the terms upon which the surrender of Germany will be accepted. Or, if admitted, no German should be on an equality with Allied statesmen, diplomats or military leaders. The Hun may be permitted in the position of listener, but not as a participant in the deliberations.

The latest move in the German game is the nomination of Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, former German Foreign Secretary, to be one of the representatives at the peace conference. This is an example of Teutonic arrogance, and is an indication that Germany intends being received as an equal at the conference table. Austria's whine to the President of the United States for an immediate armistice on all fronts is probably directed from Potsdam, and may mean anything or nothing, being possibly a diplomatic temporization. Additional notes from Germany, addressed not to President Wilson but to the United States Government, reiterate, one might say, with almost untruthful frequency that the actual power and responsibility of the German Government has been transferred to the Reichstag (which after all is said, is the same old Reichstag) and further attempts to describe the progress (but not the process) of the rapid constitutional change. Following these, the announcement is made

(with intent to deceive, no doubt) that the Kaiser is not opposed to being divested of his powers as the despotic monarch of Germany, and has authorized his declaration to that effect. But for how long is the All-Highest willing to set aside his autocratic authority? If German disregard of solemn treaties in the past is to be taken as a standard, then Wilhelm will lay down the sceptre just about as long as peace is being arranged, or until the Allies call his bluff.

The Germans all through are still unrepentant and their malignancy is but thinly veiled by their hypocrisy. All their protestations of sincerity and honour are but empty phrases. There are no such virtues existing among them, and words are but wasted on this race of impudent thieves. They can only understand one answer and that is "Force—force to the limit." No armistice may be granted them until they solicit it on bonded knees from the Allied Commander-in-Chief, and then only on the military terms which he offers. No array of politicians (however well meaning) should be permitted to snatch the fruits of victory from the Allied arms, and peace should only be granted the Hun when he has been whipped into complete submission, and to use a phrase of the prize ring, "thrown up the sponge." So far he has not done that. When Germany acknowledges defeat, and is prepared to make reparations, restitution and restoration, upon exactly the terms which the Allies impose, the fulfilment of which must be enforced by the armies of the Conquerors, camped on German territory and in control of German Custom Houses, then peace will be given her, that "peace of justice" which she has to expect but may not avoid.

Good News If True.

For some time the telephone system of St. John's has been considered very unsatisfactory. We understand, however, that negotiations between the Government and the Western Union (Lessee of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co.) have reached a very satisfactory stage, and that the Capital is soon to have a telephone system that will be up-to-date in every respect. Now that St. John's is about to be equipped with an improved system of telephone let us hope soon to see it extended throughout the Island, thereby supplying the fast growing trade of this Dominion with a most important artery.—Western Star.

Laying of Corner Stone.

Bonaville, Oct. 31.—A most successful event was the laying of the corner stone of the third Methodist Church in Bonaville to-day by Mr. Charles Saint, the oldest resident and oldest Methodist in the community. The President of the Conference, Rev. Dr. Curtis, conducted the service and gave a stirring and appropriate address. Revs. Ward, Cotton, Wilson and the pastor, Rev. Charles Leach, also participated. A good collection was taken in aid of the building fund. A big tea followed the ceremonies, which was well patronized.

For Coughs and Colds use STAFFORD'S Phoratorne.

Grenfell Hall Hospital.

Four new cases were admitted to the Hospital this morning, two men off the "Novelty," and Capt. Kean of the "Impetus," and a woman from the Ropewalk Range. No deaths occurred, but two or three very serious cases were feared for. Two were discharged, and a number were reported convalescent. In view of some rumors that have been going the rounds, namely that the number of deaths there is abnormally and unnecessarily high, we make the following statements: Several deaths have undoubtedly occurred there, but most of those were admitted when in a very serious condition, and many were at death's door before being taken there at all. Besides Dr. Campbell, who is in constant attendance, the doctors who send the patients in also visit them, so that there is no fear of lack of attention. Within six hours after the taking over of the building on the outbreak of the disease, Grenfell Hall had been cleaned up, and converted into a ward of 22 beds, and 12 patients were under treatment. In justice to the doctors, the nurses, and Manager Jones, we make this statement, trusting that it will dispel any erroneous impressions that may be prevalent.

Oct. Weather.

During October month there were 10 fine days, 4 days dull without rain and seventeen with rain. Prevailing winds Easterly. We hope that November, upon which we enter to-day will be more favorable. Fish handling the past month was greatly hampered by the illconditioned weather, and much loss of time to schooner owners resulted.
