Two "nines" were picked as below, and an exhibition game between them will be played at St. George's Field to-night at 6.30. That sound you heard up near That loud and fearful sound That made the earth and buildings quake For miles and miles around,

That sound was not a bursting bomb, A mortar or a Krupp, It merely was the echo of The poor Cubs blowing up.

The Cubs-who were looked upon as having the 1919 pennant cinched received a terrible jolt last night when the Red Lions sailed in and gave them a drubbing by a score of 12 runs to 9. Last year's champs showed last night that they can lose a game just as woefully as any other club, and the Lions showed that they can bat their way through to the silverware. The game was easily the best and most exciting for the season and the various thrilling situations and climaxes had the fans on feet. At periods too, the umpires had rather a hard time of it with einghteen excited players shouting and gesticulating over close play, but they both survived the ordeal well, and no raw ones were handed out. One of the humourous features of the game was when one of Walter Callahan's fast ones bounced off Clouston's bare beam without apparently making him do much more than blink, and yet a few moments afterwards he was calling Umpire Chesman a "bonehead" for a close decision at the plate. Such is life! Harvey Thomas smothered all his lifferences and was out on the third base line coaching for the Cubs. He blossomed forth—resplendent in a brand new uniform and purple and nice, but his antics did not appear to worry Callahan any. His work would, we think, have been more effective were to get on the first base line. In the fourth the Cubs went sailing sky-wards, and a bunch of errors assistbrought in 5 runs. The Lions repeated this performance in the seventh when they made another tally. It must be confessed that the outcome of the clash was more or less of a surprise, though the supporters of the Hiltz crew, and they were legion
