The Passing of William Jennings Bryan

William Jennings Bryan, for many years one of the most conspicuous figures in the public life of the United States, has suddenly passed away, immediately following the sensational Scopes trial at Dayton, Tennessee, in which he took a prominent part as the prosecuting attorney.

Born in Salem, Illinois, in 1860, this remarkable man played many parts. A lawyer, an author, a lecturer, a journalist and a politician, to mention but a few of his activities, he was on three occasions a candidate for the presidency on the Democratic ticket, and barely failed on a fourth occasion to secure nomination. A movement with which he was closely identified had for its object the free coinage of silver, and throughout his public life he was a strong opponent of imperialism and trusts.

A staunch Presbyterian, Mr. Bryan undertook the prosecution in the Evolution case with the strong conviction that he was engaged in a fight in defence of the Bible teachings. He accused the scientists of being "dishonest scoundrels, afraid to tell their beliefs—burrowing in the ground and stealing away the faith of the children." "But," he added, "we have got them now where they have got to come up and fight." In dealing with the matter in a press interview, he is quoted as saying: "This is a matter for the nation. It is one of the greatest questions ever raised—the question of the right of the people who created and support the schools to control them. If not they, then who?"

"The fundamentalists are trying to establish the doctrine that the taxpayer has a right to say what shall be taught—the taxpayers and not the scientists. There are only 11,000 members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. I don't believe one in ten thousand should dictate to the rest of us. Can a handful of scientists rob your children of religion and turn them out atheists? We'll find 109,000,000 Americans on the other side. For the first time in my life, I'm on the side of the majority."

Whatever views may be held regarding the theory of evolution, or the wisdom of the law of Tennessee which forbids its being taught in the State, one cannot help admiring the faith and consistency of the man who so openly and tenaciously held to his convictions.

In to-day's message reference is made to threats which were made against his life following the Scopes trial, and it also states that an inquest will be held. The inference is that Mr. Bryan came to an untimely end, but such an idea sounds most incredible, and tends to make one suspect that Tennessee is not yet satisfied with the amount of publicity which it has already received as a result of the somewhat farcical Scopes trial.

PEPPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 26th—Still feeling the effects of yesterday's heat, nor is it any colder to-day, so that I persevere freely and do feel little inclined for work. Comes a message over the loan from my wife and would have me buy her a jacket for to-morrow's dinner, which is a thing I like little and, indeed, there is no getting away from these petty annoyances albeit the watch is high a score miles away from me and me thinks 'twould be better far, if there were no long distance loan. Do discover this day that my tailor has a pretty wit, being that he again sends me my account for last year and with it, this verse.

A merchant addressing a debtor, Remarked in the course of his lecture: That he chose to suppose
A man knows what he sees;
And the sooner he pays it, the debtor.

This evening to Manuela by the steam coach, and the heat do greatly effect the joint that I carry so that the thing stinks like the devil, to my great discomfort, and methinks, to that of every other passenger. But Lord, coming home at night, my wife orders it thrown away and do berate me for my carelessness in not looking better after it, albeit how this were possible I know not.

July 26th (Lord's Day)—Bathing this day in the sea. I did never know it warmer and did remain in the water for a half hour, which is the longest swim in salt water that I have ever had. Anon this day to visit the C.L.B. Camp, at Topsail, and attend the drumhead service, mighty interesting, and a good discourse from Mr. Bishop, that is from Bay Roberts, being brief and of good substance. Among other things, my modesty do suffer the most severe strain being that no less than 3 people do tell me how much they do like my journal, and so, so they did all say, the 1st thing they do read each night in the Telegram sheet. And indeed, 'tis pleasant to know how high I am held in the esteem of my fellowmen. News this night of W. J. Bryan, his death, and was one time a candidate for the Presidency of America, and among other things did sail on Henry Ford's peace ship during the War. He was but lately much in the news, being a strong opponent of evolution and did aid the prosecution in the Scopes trial at Tennessee. Going to bed betimes, I did wake with the noise of the rain, having never in my life heard a more violent shower, yet thank God, none did leak through the roof as I was greatly afraid might happen.

Argyle at Argentia

S.S. Argyle reached Argentia at 6.30 yesterday morning, several days behind schedule. Dense fog, prevailing all along the South Coast, during the past week, has been responsible for the delay. Passengers by this morning's train connect with the ship for the Red Island route.

Saved From Drowning

Yesterday afternoon, two sisters, who were learning to swim at Long Pond, were saved from drowning by the prompt action of the caretaker, Mr. John English. The girls, it appears, paddled out from the shallow pool made for beginners, until they were past the overall. Mr. English, seeing that they could not swim, got in his boat and, rowing to the spot, was just in time to throw the life saving apparatus before the girls sank. Both bathers were badly scared.

Mount Cashel Garden Party

This year's Garden Party at Mount Cashel, promises to eclipse all previous events held there, judging by the activities of the various committees. Considerable interest is being evoked in the race road from Torbay. All the well known runners have entered, and in view of the recent races an exciting contest will result.

Circus Attraction

Coming to St. John's

WILL OPEN OUTDOOR AFFAIR FIRST WEEK IN AUGUST.

Arrangements have been completed to bring an outdoor circus attraction to St. John's which will probably open about August 1st. This attraction has been a tremendous success all through Canada and the States and in each territory has given a liberal share of proceeds to some deserving cause. It has been decided to operate in St. John's under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association.

The affair consists of a mammoth Merry-go-Round, Acrobatic Swings for kiddies and various side shows including games of science and skill and mechanical devices. The Attraction Pool is something new to this country and is sure to be an attraction of much interest. Then there is the Fat Man who is going to attract no small attention.

More particulars of this event will be advertised in this paper during the week.

An Undesirable Spectacle

The arrest of a man, apparently under the influence of liquor, on Saturday afternoon, on Water Street, attracted considerable attention and the manner in which the offender was handled by the police officers caused considerable adverse comment. The man and his wife were on a long cart, and were stopped by the authorities because the former was creating a disturbance. Upon being taken in charge, he was conveyed on the cart to the police station. His struggles no doubt necessitated vigorous measures, but it would have been better had the police chosen another conveyance in which to remove their prisoner instead of making a very undesirable public spectacle of the affair.

Meat Spoiled From Improper Handling

Several cases of lamb which arrived by train on Friday from Spaniards Bay were condemned Saturday by the Board of Health Authorities as unfit for consumption. The animals were slaughtered on Friday morning and their condition was due to improper handling. Due to the warm weather of the past week or more quite a lot of meat has become tainted and the inspectors have had to condemn it.

GOVERNMENT MAY GIVE A SUBSIDY IN THE COAL INDUSTRY.

LONDON, July 27.

Premier Baldwin gave up his usual week end at Chequers Court to devote himself to the solution of the coal problem. The King equally concerned in his efforts to avert what is universally considered would be a national disaster, sent his Secretary, Lord Stamfordham to Downing Street yesterday, where he had a conference of nearly an hour with the Premier and Right Hon. W. K. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, who is acting as mediator in the controversy between the mine owners and miners. Lord Stamfordham asked for and received the fullest details of all aspects of the dispute for the information of the King. Who on all occasions desires fully to throw his influence to the scale in favour of industrial peace. Premier Baldwin employed almost the whole day in consultation with his colleagues and experts in order to prepare himself for his meeting to-day with the committee from the Trade Union Congress. Nothing further has developed regarding the Government's intentions. But the rumor has gained strength that a temporary Government subsidy for the coal trade would be proposed.

W. J. BRYAN'S LIFE REPORTED TO HAVE BEEN THREATENED.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 27. William Jennings Bryan died as a result of acute dilation of the heart, is the opinion of Dr. Raymond Wallace, of Chattanooga, the physician and surgeon, who was consulted by Mr. Bryan in Dayton during the Scopes trial, and who made an examination of the commoner here Friday. Captain Marion Perkins, in charge of a squad of Chattanooga police on duty at Dayton during the Scopes trial, said last night that many threats had been made on the life of William Jennings Bryan. It was also reported here by the undertaker who handled the body at Dayton that an inquest is to be held.

STRIKE A FAILURE.

HONG KONG, July 27. The general strike, after having been in progress for five weeks, has proved a complete failure. There are sufficient volunteers for all public and private services, at reduced wages, and employers generally have gradually begun to replace the strikers, making their own terms with new men. Wharf and warehouse labor is ample.

TORNADO DESTRUCTION IN OHIO.

SYDNEY, Ohio, July 27. Twenty-five persons were injured and damage estimated at $200,000 was caused by a tornado which swept this city Saturday. The injured were all in an audience at Chattanooga, a programme being given in a tent. The tent collapsed during the 75 mile gale burying 1000 to 1200 persons under it, a number of factory buildings were destroyed, crops destroyed in the path which was four miles wide and several houses were destroyed.

MAYENCE, July 27. The second phase of the evacuation of the Ruhr, which has been occupied by Allied troops since January 11, 1923, began yesterday with the departure of the troops at Essen. The complete evacuation of the Ruhr is to be concluded by July 31 when the Ruhr will be definitely handed back to Germany in accordance with the London agreement.

CHINESE EXECUTE A WHITE MAN.

PEKING, July 27. The first recorded case of an official execution of a white man by Chinese authorities occurred yesterday, when a notorious Russian bandit, Korniloff, was put to death by strangulation. The execution was carried out in a most secret fashion. The prisoner was given only a few minutes notice and was scarcely able to articulate his last wishes.

NO RIFT IN THE CLOUD.

LONDON, July 27. There is as yet no rift in the clouds which have been darkening the last few days over the British coal mines. The Labor Press says that the stoppage of work in the coal fields on July 31 now seems certain, and intimates that nothing can avert it but complete surrender on the part of the mine workers. So serious is the situation out of the refusal of the miners to accept the new working agreement suggested by the owners calling for a twenty per cent reduction in wages and longer working hours, that Premier Baldwin did not have his usual week end holiday at the Premier's retreat, Chequers Court, but gave himself over to consultations with a view to evolving a plan to prevent the strike.

PAID OFFICIAL VISIT—The Municipal Council and Park Committee paid an official visit to Bowring Park this forenoon. As far as can be learned everything was found to be in a satisfactory condition.

The confidence of Christian faith and the joyfulness of the Resurrection hope permeated the Flower Service held yesterday afternoon at the Church of England Cemetery. The attendance was one of the largest for many years.

The preside to the afternoon service was the Celebration of Holy Communion in the Mortuary Chapel at 8 a.m., by the clergy of St. Thomas's Church. Well attended, it was a time of heartening comfort to those who shared therein in firm belief in the Communion of Saints. The little edifice in which the Church has said its last service over the departed thronged with the confident expectation of reunion of hearts, and with unshaken hope of renewed fellowship in the Church Triumphant between those shared by the departed in the circumstances of time and mortality.

Early in the afternoon citizens thronged to the grounds for the Flower Service and old, they came in their thousands. Aged men and women made the pilgrimage to the resting places of those who had preceded them to the place of shadows. Little children, not yet awake to life's full realities wended their way along the paths that led to the place of service. The various Sunday Schools of the C. of E. Churches turned out en masse, marching to the Cemetery with their superintendents and teachers in charge. When the time came for the opening of the service a great throng had assembled at the eastern portion of the grounds. The bright afternoon sun shone on their robes of snowy white, the Cathedral Choir came in procession from the Mortuary Chapel, sweetly on the summer air rang the voices in the words of the Processional Hymn:

"Let saints on earth in concert sing
Whose work is done;
For all the servants of our King
In heav'n and earth are one."

Following the chorists came Rev. Canon Jeeves, C.F., Rector of the Cathedral Parish, and Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, Rector of the Parish of St. Mary the Virgin, who conducted the service.

Gently through the trees sounded the summer breeze, the trees of the field slapped their hands together and brave Christians' hearts expressed the strength of their resurrection faith in the congregational singing of the hymn:

"Jesus lives! no longer now
Can thy terrors, death, appal us;
Jesus lives! by this we know
Thou, O grave, canst not enthrall us!"

And then the reading of the solemn, stately, dignified Psalm—Psalm 130—monitory and heartening. "Thou art God from everlasting and world without end. . . . A thousand years in Thy sight are as a day that is past. . . . Our age are three score and ten. . . . Teach us to number our days. . . . Satisfy us with Thy mercy. . . . so shall we be glad and rejoice all our days." Came next the full expression of Christian faith in the sentences and responses: "The souls of the righteous are in the hands of the living. . . . And there shall no torment touch them." "In the sight of the unwise they seemed to die." "But they are in peace." The Collect for St. Peter's Feast, breathing the spirit of the Resurrection. In every line was repeated, and after the singing of a hymn, the Address for the day was delivered by Canon Jeeves from the text: "I am He that live!" Rev. L. S. Clear and distinct, certain and challenging, the voice of the speaker rang to the utmost confines of the great assemblage. It emphasized the immortality of the soul, it enunciated the certainty of the resurrection, the preservation of personal identity and the indispensability of reunion and recognition Beyond the Veil. It was a masterpiece of eloquence, of logic, of interpretation and of comfort. It breathed the benison of hope and cheer on weary and thirsty hearts.

The Collect for All Saints' Day, enunciating the thanks of the Church on earth for "one communion and fellowship in the mystical Body" of the Son of God with the Saints departed, was followed by the Benediction and to the words of the Recessional Hymn: "Jerusalem, my happy home." The Choir and Clergy departed down the stately path of the Cemetery, amidst blazing bouquets of flowers, softly waving shrubs and wreaths of remembrance piled high on the plots, and under the gracious greenery of the trees, back to the Mortuary Chapel. Another Flower Service had ended and another time of gracious comfort and outstanding cheer had made its deep and consoling effect on thousands of hearts and lives.

Yesterday's service was in charge of the Cathedral clergy. The full Choir was in attendance and the music was played by the Cathedral Organist A. Stafford. The collection at the gates was a very liberal one.

Do YOU like our 24 hour Developing & Printing Service?

Most everybody does, as the enormous amount of film continuously handed over our counter for development plainly shows—and the quantity grows larger every week. Surely this fact is sufficient recommendation as to the quality of our work, isn't it? Still—for the benefit of those who have not given our Developing and Printing Dept. a trial we would like to say that every negative is carefully examined before printing. Every print is carefully examined before trimming, and only the most perfect results that can possibly be achieved from the negatives are allowed to pass our examiner's hands.
