The Sick Czar.

Alexander Still Confined to His Room by Illness.

His Condition Causes Considerable Anxiety in Many Circles.

Russia Increases Her Eastern Fleet to a Total of 33 Vessels.

Variety of Statements Regarding the Jap.-Chinese Naval Fight.

Russian Naval Movements.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 21.—Russia has decided to increase her fleet in the far east to 33 vessels.

Red Cross Work.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A dispatch from Tokio says the Empress of China, as chief patron of the Red Cross Society, has set the example of preparing lint and bandages for the wounded, ladies of the court heartily co-operating in the work. The lint, bandages and other healing appliances are equally distributed among the Japanese and Chinese soldiers without distinction.

Coming to Canada.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Mr. John E. Barlow, Liberal member of Parliament for the Frome division of Somersetshire, partner in the firms of T. Barlow & Brother, Manchester and London, and Barlow & Co., of Calcutta, has sailed for Canada, where he will spend six weeks. In Toronto Mr. Barlow will be the guest of Mr. Edward Blake, M. P. for the South division of Longford, formerly leader of the Canadian Liberal party.

The Sick Czar.

BERLIN, Sept. 21.—A dispatch to the Koelnische Zeitung from St. Petersburg says that the Czar's condition is such that he is still confined to his room and that his departure from Spala for the Crimea has been postponed.

The Vossische Zeitung's correspondent in St. Petersburg says that much uneasiness is felt in the capital on account of the Czar's illness, the exact nature of which is the subject of many rumors.

Vatican and Quirinal.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A dispatch from Rome to the Chronicle states that the Pope in conversation with some of the cardinals said he recognized Prime Minister Crispien's praiseworthy intentions, as evidenced by his recent speech at Naples, but that a solution of the question of Church and State in Italy was impossible without the restoration of the Pope's temporal power.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—A dispatch received here from Rome says that the Austrian and Prussian ambassadors at the Vatican are trying to induce the Papal authorities to agree to a modus vivendi with the Quirinal. In addition, Emperor Francis Joseph is reported to have written several letters to the Pope with this end in view. Emperor William is said to be equally anxious to bring about an understanding between the Vatican and the Italian Government.

The Chinese Defeat.

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 21.—The latest statements regarding the losses of the Japanese in the recent battle at Ping Yang are that 11 officers and 154 privates were killed, and 30 officers and 529 privates wounded. A dispatch to the Japanese legation at Washington says the Chinese loss in the great naval engagement is definitely placed at four vessels sunk and one burned. The Japanese fleet, it is officially stated, was comparatively uninjured.

United States Secretary Gresham has received a cablegram from Minister Sill at Seoul, announcing the complete victory of the Japanese fleet without loss over the Chinese, who lost several vessels at the mouth of the Yalu River. This dispatch left Seoul Sept. 19.

The Central News has received the following dispatch from Tokio, dated Sept. 22, 8:45 a.m., regarding the recent naval battle: The fighting lasted five hours. The Chinese cruisers Yang Wei, Chao Yung and Ching Yuen and the barbettes ship Lai Yuen were destroyed, and the barbettes ships Ting Yuen, King Yuen and Ping Yuen were set on fire. When darkness fell the Japanese vessels fled. The Japanese pursued them, reaching Hops Sound at daylight. The enemy, however, escaped, and the Japanese returned to Haiyang.

Of the Japanese vessels the most damaged were the cruisers Matsushima Hiyei and Akagi which were in the thickest of the fight. One of the Matsushima's guns was dismounted, damaging the ship and she returned to Sasebo for repairs. The other Japanese remain on the station. The total number of Japanese killed and wounded is 180. On the flagship the commander, lieutenant and 34 of the crew were killed and four officers and 69 of the crew were wounded. Seventeen men have since died.

The Times' correspondent in Shanghai telegraphs: "The Chinese authorities have strictly confined the Chinese fleet to the defense of the approaches to Peking, specifying the limits within which the vessels are to cruise. Officers and men have been impatient to carry operations to the Korean coast and are embittered by the policy of the Government."

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says: Chinese diplomats are less dismayed over the result of the battle at Ping Yang than might be expected. They contend that China will avenge the defeat and will devote the winter to equipping and drilling troops, being prepared for a long war. They regard the attempt of the powers to pacify the belligerents as out of the question.

The Times tomorrow will publish the following from Tien Tsin, dated Sept. 21: Wounded officers of the Chinese fleet confirm the original report of the engagement on the 17th inst. They say that the Japanese fleet consisted of twelve ships, while the Chinese had ten ships. The Chinese endeavored to come to close quarters, but were prevented from accomplishing their purpose by the superior speed of the Japanese ships, which, keeping for the most part two miles off, maneuvered admirably, and made splendid shots with the long range, quick-firing guns. The Chinese cruiser, Ching Yuen, captain Tang Shi Chang, early in the day closed with one of the enemy's ships at full speed, intending to ram her. Whether rammed or torpedoes, the Japanese ship turned over and sank. Four Japanese vessels then closed around the Chen Yuen, and she was ripped up by shots under the water line and went down with all hands, including Parvix, the engineer. Most of the battle raged furiously around the flagship Ting Yuen and her consort, the Chen Yuen. Nickolls, a gunnery officer on the Ting Yuen, was killed.

At 5 o'clock the five Japanese vessels still engaged in the fight turned and fled. The Chinese vessels pursued, but failed to overtake them. Next morning the Japanese fleet returned and torpedoed the stranded ships. On comparing testimony from various sources it seems certain that four Japanese ships were destroyed and the remainder badly injured.

IN THE RANKS OF LABOR.

Important Legal Decision—Weavers on Strike—Steel Mills Resume.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 21.—A verdict of importance to employers and employees has been rendered in the Court of Common Pleas. It is against the clothing cutters' and trimmers' assembly of the Knights of Labor for $2,500 damages in favor of Thomas W. Lucke. Lucke was employed by the New York clothing house. He was an expert hand, but was not a member of a labor union. A committee from the assembly called on the members of the firm, and threatened that, if Lucke was not discharged, they would blackball the establishment, and take from it all patronage of organized labor. Lucke applied for admission to the union, but was rejected. Shortly afterward he lost his place, and brought suit of damages against the assembly. When the case came up the second time the verdict for $2,500 was rendered. An appeal will be taken.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 21.—The weavers in the Seacomet mill struck work today and less than 200 looms are in operation.

TROY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—The Bessemer steel works of Troy and Steel and Iron Companies' plant will start Sunday night, after having been idle since the middle of March. Five hundred men will be given employment.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—Secretary Robert Howard, of the Fall River Mule Spinners' Association, who has just returned from England, where he attended the International Textile Workers' Convention, says: "There is no doubt that the English spinner is better off and happier in his surroundings than the American spinner. The one great drawback there is the number of people out of work. They have more amusements and enjoy themselves far better than the workers on this side, and they can live far more cheaply. Nevertheless, the manufacturers are better off and make more money. In the mill in which I worked myself while I was over there the 38th quarterly dividend was declared at the rate of 19 per cent. That was in Stockholm."

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 21.—As a result of the Newark cutmakers' strike, which was settled at a meeting of the State Board of Arbitration with the committees of the strikers and bosses. The bosses have conceded a ten-hour working day and agreed to a new scale of wages. They will employ only union men, and will give bonds of $100 to $300 that they keep the agreement for nine months. For the strikers, it was agreed that failure on their part to live up to the new conditions shall forfeit their charter in the United Garment Workers' Association.

SWORDFISH VS. STEAMER.

A Collision that Proved Damaging to Both Parties.

HALIFAX, Sept. 12.—The steamer Elliott, which has been plying between Charlotte-town and Boston, has been leaking of late. Every effort was made to find the leak, but without success. It was decided to place the vessel on the marine railway at Pictou and have Capt. Hill hold a survey.

This was done yesterday morning, and what looked like the top of a bolt was seen protruding from the steamer's side, below the water line. The ship had been struck by a swordfish, and nine inches of the sword was imbedded in the side. The sword went through five inches of spruce plank and three inches of birch.

Fighting Fires.

BRANFORD, Mich., Sept. 21.—Two hundred citizens have been kept busy fighting fires which broke out in the brushwood about three miles south of the city since Sunday. The city has been filled with smoke all the week. Several stacks of hay and two houses have been burned. Fire completely destroyed the house of Wm. Gamander.

Wool Prices.

BOSTON, Sept. 21.—The Boston Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow: The London auctions have been a bitter disappointment to those who expected an improvement. The called "advance" barely confirms the prices obtained at private sales. Washed fleeces, notably declines, have declined in consequence. The sale of American wools are small. Territory wool, however, is firmer, at 36c, clean, African Nagadore and Abulia wools selling at less than 25 cents, clean, are displacing coarse American wools in the cheviot and knit goods mills.

CRAZED BY MR. HYDE.

Actor Stevenson's Creation Makes a Brandied Butcher Insane.

(The Buffalo Express.)

The strange case of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" has had a queer effect on a Bradford (Pa.) butcher. Frank Hall owns a meat market on lower Main street, and in that market, with a cleaver for a battle axe, he has passages from various tragedies. He is demented, and the play just mentioned is said to be responsible for his condition.

Last spring one night he heard a bad actor render a Finnish impersonation of the part of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and he was thrilled and horrified. The figure of Hyde, with his tangled hair and long teeth, his hissing voice, his glaring eyes and bony, crooked fingers, was so vividly impressed upon the imagination of Hall that the impression became permanent. He memorized some of the passages from the play, and these he rehearsed in his meat market and elsewhere with much vehemence. A more horrible presentation of the part could not have been made by anybody. By way of variety he would howl, occasionally, a line or two from Richard III. or some other character. Yesterday he was giving a specimen of his style in the death scene of "Mr. Hyde," when he became wildly delirious and the police took him into custody. He will probably be taken to an institute for the insane.

Up to the time Hall witnessed the performance of the piece, he was a quiet, sensible man, but ever since he saw Stevenson's uncanny creation on the stage, he has been losing his mental balance. Now he is in a pitiable condition. He pleaded with the Express reporter to put him on the road with a dramatic company. "My God," he cried, in the course of a brief interview, "I am the greatest actor in this country today, and yet they won't write me up. That's all I want—reputation. You write me up and I'll have attention called to myself in that way." Then the deluded man made a gesture that would make the bones of James Owen O'Connor rattle in their coffin.

He is a single man, 38 years old, has a good bank account and is well connected.

IN AN ANGRY SEA.

Loss of the British Ship Senegal.

Her Red Light Disappeared During the Night—Twenty-seven Men and a Girl Perished.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—The big British ship Senegal was bound from San Diego to Tacoma with loose sand for ballast. She was considered one of the best ships in the English merchant marine service. The captain was accompanied by his young daughter, and the crew consisted of 27 men. It was early in March when the vessel sailed.

Capt. Thomas, of the little schooner Mary C. Russ, saw her on the night of March 18.

Seaman Olson, of the Russ, is here now. He was on the deck of the Russ during the whole of that night at sea, and he says that the storm that tossed the little ship about was the worst that he had experienced in a score of years.

The Senegal, he says, was sighted just as darkness was closing in, beating up against a freshening northeast gale. By midnight the gale was at its height.

Olson said he soon began to watch for the gleam of the Senegal's light. It seemed to him, in his dread of a death at sea, like a ray of hope. Sometimes he missed the light when his vessel rode on the crest of a wave, but the Senegal was then down in the trough of the sea the next time it would appear. The danger increased and every man would hang on for dear life. Just before daylight the red light of the big ship appeared for the last time.

The Senegal rose on the crest of a wave as a squall more severe than its predecessors came down on them. The red light gleamed, then went out for an instant. It appeared for a moment, then was lost altogether.

In vain the crew of the schooner watched for it. It had gone out forever, and with it went the lives of all her crew. When day broke, about an hour afterwards, the big ship was nowhere in sight.
