The White Lady

The glow of sunset faded slowly in the spaces between the trees that embowered the old-fashioned white house upon Luggie bank. Already one pure star glimmered silvern in the deepen-ing blue and was reflected pensively on the tranquil stream, on whose edge the bemirrored trees dreamed ever, and twilight, tender as memory, enfolded the little green valley in an atmosphere

In the avenue overlooking the valley two figures, one white and the other dark, strolled slowly up and down. The twilight deepened as they walked—her arm in his, her hand fast clasped in his. The fragrance of flowers from the garden beyond the house, from the hiacs and blooming hawthorns in the avenue, scented the air with incense, the magic of the hour was upon them.

He was still good-looking, still hand-some; more so, indeed, for his figure had developed and grown more mature looking. But the frank, uncorrupted expression of his earlier days had given place to the cool, half cynical appearance of a man of experience. As a painter he had gained much; as a

There were still the usual affectionate formulas at the beginning and ending nulas at the beginning and ending of his letters, but that they were writ-ten with an effort, as for duty, not iove's sake, was only too evident. in place of our story writers, they have professional story tellers. It is their art to interest their listeners with tales of love, and marvelous adventures, and hair-breadth escapes, and magic cures. There's a story of a wonder-ful medicine that has made thousands of cures that seemed almost magical, which every woman should read or hear. To have heard it or to read it, may save a wo-man her own life or that of her husband. The medicine is the discovery of Dr. R. V. Pierce, an eminent and skillful specialist, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the great Invalids' Hotel and urgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Dis covery. It makes the appetite hearty, the digestion perfect, the liver active, the digestion perfect, the liver active, the blood pure and rich, the nerves steady, the brain clear and the body strong. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consump-tion and diseases of the air-passages. It cures nervous diseases and is the best med-icine for overworked men and women. A woman may save her husband's life by keeping a bottle in the house, and getting him to resort to it when he feels out-of-sorts. All men are heedless about their health. Medicines stores sell it. Doctor Pierce's reputation is world-wide, and his fellow townsmen, of Buffalo, N. Y., think so highly of him that they made him their representative in Congress, but his great love for his profession caused him to resign that honorable position that he might de-vote the remainder of his life to the relief and cure of the sick. Another good thing to have in the house is a vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.
