FELL INTO A WELL

Child of John Davis, Springfield, Rescued With Difficulty

Springfield, Ont., Aug. 8 .- A little daughter of John Davis, who is employed by Geo. Smith, fell in a well a few days ago. The well is about fifteen feet deep, with considerable water in it. Mrs. Davis saw the child go, and her screams brought Mr. Smith and D. A. Woolley to the spot. Mr. Smith went down the stone curbing and reached the little one as she was sinking the third time. He managed to hold her and cling to the side until Mr. Woolley came to his assistance with a rope. It required considerable effort to restore the child to consciousness, but she is now doing quite well.

LADY WARWICK'S PRAISE-WORTHY EFFORTS.

Anxious to better the condition of young women, and especially to save them from poorly-paid domestic service, the Countess of Warwich has inaugurated a branch of the agricultural college at Reading for women and boys, and hopes by its means to widen the sphere of usefulness for her proteges. Lady Warwick came into prominence in the world of philan-thropy some time ago when as Lady Brooks she determined to help the limbs. daughters of the tenants on her estate in Essex to earn their own living without being compelled to leave home. She opened a school of needlework in connection with the establishment of a shop in which to dispose of the pupils' handiwork. The experiment proved unusually successful.

TIRED OF GLOOM. Signs of public sorrow are general in the West End, and preparations are making at court for a reversion from half to full mourning, on account of the death of the dowager Empress Frederick. The remarkable series of bereavements which have overwhelmed royalty have excited public compassion and also created a desire for brighter inside court functions.

The coronation will be welcomed by the nation and by society as a sign that the period of mourning has end-ed and that "Merrie England" is not an obsolete phrase. Preparations for the ceremonial are in progress, and many important points have been set-The attendance at the Abbey will be limited in every possible way so that the function will be witnessed those who can establish a right to be there. The King has decided that peers with historic privithe coronation are not entitled to have more than one page. This ruling will reduce the number of costumed figures in the royal procession and will relieve the pressure from FRENCH CLAIMS ON TURKEY.

There are two matters pending between France and Turkey-the affair of the Quay Company, and a number of claims of Frenchmen against the porte, the amount of which was fixed and payment promised long ago. M. Constans has been unable to obtain satisfaction in either matter, and in May he intimated that he would be forced to ask for his recall if the Turkish Government persisted in its procrastinating tactics. Still, it is probable that the matter will be speedily settled in a manner satisfactory to France. The members of the Turkish embassy at Paris maintain diplomatic

The Marseilles correspondent of Le Journal (Paris) reports that a French squadron is waiting for the signal to proceed to Turkish waters.

CROWN PRINCE WAS UNNERVED A Cronberg telegram says: From 10 o'clock in the morning the ex-Empress Frederick was unconscious. Canon Teignmouth Shore, chaplain of King Edward, and an old friend of the dying woman, prayed long by the bedside, having come over at the summons of Kaiser William, who at the other side of the bed sat gravely and sorrowfully watching for the end.

The kaiser sat constantly during the entire day, the death of the empress occurring at 6:15 o'clock.

All the rest of the royal family, including the empress, passed frequently in and out of the room noiselessly, but the emperor sat there on and on from early morning, just leaving the bedside for meals. The person most visibly affected, however, was the crown prince, who on this occasion probably came face to face with death for the first time. He looked utterly upset.

THE LOST CHILD FOUND BY A DOG

Campers Search in Vain, Then a Farmer's Collie Locates the Little Girl.

Chicago, Aug. 8 .- The intelligence of a farmer's collie dog and its affection for a child was the means of saving the life of Leonie Male, 31/2 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Male of Chicago, who are now at their summer camp at Gage's Lake, near Waukegan.

The child wandered away from camp last Friday afternoon, and for nearly 24 hours the half frantic parents and sympathetic neighbors looked in vain for it, until the dog found the little one under a pile of brush some distance from camp, where she had cried herself to sleep.

The dog was owned by Henry Beak, on whose land, eight miles west of Waukegan, the Male family have established their summer camp, close to Gage's Lake. Leonie, who had been playing with the dog most of the forenoon, was missed from the camp at 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon.

The ground around the camp was carefully hunted over without result. All through the night men through the woods and fields on the Beak farm, calling the little girl's name and searching through the grass and bushes

At 10 o'clock in the morning Mr. Beak was walking along the edge of the woods with the dog bounding at his side. Suddenly the dog left him and ran into the clump of trees. Mr. Beak went to find the reason. The dog was running around a clump brush and, hidden underneath, with clothing torn and her cheeks still wet with tears, lay the lost child, asleep.
