Offers Services and Home Treatment Free of Charge to Rich and Poor Alike—Believes It His Duty to God and Man to Labor for the Sick and Afflicted Who Stand in Need.

New York, Oct. 29.—(Special correspondence.)—The mysterious healing power of Professor William Wallace Hadley, of this city, which enables him to cure hopeless invalids when doctors, drugs and all other means have failed has aroused widespread wonder and comment in all circles, physicians and scientists being as much in the dark for an explanation as those outside the medical profession.

Various attempts to discover this man's secret have failed, since he has refused to disclose the source of his letter from Mrs. Victo a Wallace, of Great Falls, Mont., which will give you an idea of how my patents to cure." The writer copied Mrs. Wallace's letter, which, word for word, is as follows: "You must be a divine healer, gifted of God, to perform such a miracle of healing. I was so ill and health. I prayed for death to end my sufferingmy agonies. But the Great Master knew by the Great Maste various attempts to discover this man's secret have failed, since he has refused to disclose the source of his man's secret have failed, since he has refused to disclose the source of his most manced to disclose the source of his most mance and able to make a correct and correct method and the content of t

ROSEBERY LAUDS

Says One of His Statements Will not injure Should Be Printed in Letters of Gold.

London, Oct. 31. — Lord Rosebery, speaking at Trowbridge, said: "I ob-serve that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's utterances are very cautious and guarded statements—puposely vague ments—as to his general wish for commercial relations between the mother country and Canada. I know Laurier is in the throes of a general election do not know the circumstances in which he is speaking, except so far as regards the general election, and should like to see the text of those speeches before I comment too closely on the extracts which are furnished us through not unbiased channels. But there is a portion of the speech of Laurier, bearing on these questions, which I recommend you to cut out and take to your homes, and preserve as the best possible statement of the situation and relations of the Pritish Formation and Printing uation and relations of the British Empire in its various parts which has ever been uttered by a British statesman: "There are parties who hope to naintain the British Empire on lines of estricted trade.' "There were not many people when Sir Wilfrid Laurier said this, of that kind," said Lord Rosebery in parenthe-

"If the British Empire is to be maintained," his lordship continued "it can only be by the most absolute freedom, political and commercial, in building up this great empire. To deviate from the principles of freedom would be by so much to weaken the ties and bonds which now hold it together. (Cheers.) "These are wise words. They should be written in letters of gold in every

THE BILLIONAIRE

Star of "The Isle of Champagne" at the Grand in His Latest Play.

A decided novelty in musical comedy was furnished Londoners at the Grand Opera House last night, when Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Billionaire," with Mr. Thomas Q. Seabrooke, alre," with Mr. Thomas Q. Seabrooke, in the title-role, was presented before a large audience. Last year "The Billionaire" enjoyed a very successful run in New York, John Doe's part, now played by Mr. Seabrooke, being then in the hands of the late Levence Y. Serker there is one very eminent one the hands of the late Jerome K. Sykes.
"The Billionaire" boasts exquisite ostuming, and lavish scenic effectsthe costuming and scenery being as rich and costly as those of any similar pre luction as yet seen in this city. there is more to be admired in "The Billionaire" than its beautiful mountng, for it draws upon a novel fount ties of theater-goers.

John Doe (Mr. Seabrooke), the American billionaire, has so much money he can scarcely give it away — a sort of Andrew Carnegie, as it were — but his penchant is not for libraries, but for theaters. Consequently, when he meets a dainty little miss, whose trunks have been thrown into the street because she is unable to pay her board bill, he buys a theater and stars her. This young lady's name is Pansy Good, and the is impersonated by Miss Diamond Donner. The first act works up to the point where Doe launches in to the theatrical business, and it is somewhat flat and tame. In the second act, however, the people are shown buying tickets, jostling each other and quareling with the speculators. Then the interior of the theater is shers, giving way to fits of bad temper over petty things, and so on. Th wants a drink, and who with his pa ents walk on the feet of all other le in the aisle, is humorously depic d, and in fact theater-goers are afforded an excellent opportunity of se ng themselves as others see When at last the audience is seated the curtain of the little theater goes up and some highly humorous vaudevil as well as a side-splitting, rip-roaring elodrama, is put on in a short time. Mingled with the burlesque are eautiful songs, which are well-ren ered by Mr. Harry McDonough, as Saptisto, a waiter, with grand opera spirations; by Miss Donner, who pos sses a very sweet voice, and Mr. Wal. ter Percival, whose singing would be worthy feature of any high-class roduction Mr. Seabrooke, well remembered by ondoners for the very funny part he played in "The Isle of Champagne nany years ago, has scarcely as funny a role in "The Billionaire." the role lacks his natural humor make up for. Mr. Seabrooke also sings as charmingly as of yore, and his rendi tion of "A Little Street in Heaven That They Call Broadway," won nearly a dozen encores. Toward the end he gave an impersonation of a man going ome with a "bun" on, and it was one Miss Josie Intropodi appearsd as Mrs eppercorn, and her work was very
