Address on Life of England's Patron Saint by Ven. Archdeacon Richardson.

"The Scotch may uphold St. Andrew and the Irish glory in St. Patrick, but the English will ever exalt St. George, their saint as the exponent of every-thing that is good and true," said Venerable Archdeacon J. B. Richardson in St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday evening when St. George's Society attended divine service in a body. The church was well-filled and a "red rose" the emblem of England was conspicuous on many persons.

Archdeacon Richardson pointed out Archdeacon Richardson pointed out that there was a great deal of obscurity surrounding the life of St. George, but there were no doubts as to his living and his death as a martyr for the Christian cause in the year 303 on the 23 of April. "I am honored to speak to the St. George's Society in which I have been interested since childhood and a member of the local society for the past 40 years and I know that the society strives to live up to the ideals of its saint whom kings and queens have honored down through the ages."

Intimation That Men Should Accept Lower Wages Not Accepted.

Toronto, April 25.—Several hundred members of the "unemployed army" paraded to the Parliament building in Queen's Park this morning to place their demands before the Drury Gov-ernment. The deputation was received by Attorney-General Raney in the absence of Premier Drury. Hon. Walter Rollo, minister of labor; Hon. Mr. Bow-man, minister of lands and forests, and Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture, were also present. In outlining his request for some solution of the unemployment situation, Tho Dixon, leader of the deputation, frankly stated that he knew the Governmen could not provide work. He thought however, that the provincial should take some action to see that the unemployed men at least got enough to eat and a place to sleep.

"There is a big demand for farmers, or men with some farming experience," stated Hon. Mr. Doherty. "I have hundreds of telephone calls each day, asking for men. The farmers are willing to take a man who can only drive a quiet team."

and thy paths in great waters," Mr. Clarke drew attention to the fitner of the text to the British Empire. The ention of the sea and the navy made British ears tingle, for upon them the whole history of the Empire wa founded centuries ago by Alfred the Great, whose laws formed the basis of the British constitution. Under Henry VIII., despite some of his weakness of character, the navy had become a per-manent bulwark of the nation, and in the reign of Queen Elizabath appeared the dawn of empire, with Drake, Haw-kins, Raleigh and Frebisher as the outstanding heroes. All had taken a great part in the work of empire-building, and then came Nelson, whose famous signal, "England expects every man to do his duty," would thrill British hearts forever. The navy had now become the Em-seas, and the German navy had mutin-ied as a result of their own inaction and enforced idleness.

Then came the dark days of the war, when on land the power of the enemy seemed to be strengthened, the whole world was thrilled at the occupation of Zecbrugge, just at the time when the Germans seemed to be at the peak of success. British sailors had made a landing on the strongly-fortified Bellgian coast, destroyed forts that were landing on the strongly-fortified Belgian coast, destroyed forts that were thought to be invulnerable, and after their victory had brought back their their victory had brought back their
