Paxy" Young of University College-His - How He Attracts Stu dents - The Spectacle Case and the Keys. ollege Correspo ndence. Markham Economi In person Dr. Young is of medium hight ad of a somewhat stout figure. His most oticeable features are his small, deep-set nd penetrating blue eyes, and his broad, all, open forehead. The expression of his ace is pleasant, but earnest and sincere. ie is somewhat bald, but the heavy fringe of silky white hair which adorns his head and his fine flowing beard give him a strikngly venerable appearance.

In his professional habits Dr. Young is nusually regular. He is the first professor to reach the college in the morning, and e never keeps a class waiting a minute for im. He closes his lectures with the same promptness. When the college bell rings he stops short on the moment, even if he be in the middle of a sentence. He usually has his spectacle case or a bunch of keys in his hand when lecturing, and whenever he is explaining a question of unusual dif-

he is explaining a question of unusual un-iculty he seizes the spectacle case with a irmer grasp and closes his eyes; the degree of tightness to which they are closed indi-cating approximately the degree of diffi-culty the venerable doctor experiences in elucidating the question under considera-

Dr. Young is a man of strongly-marked character. In general he is very quiet and retiring in his disposition, but when occa-sion requires it he gives forth his views sion requires it he gives forth his views with no uncertain sound. As an instance, I refer to the fact that in strong and un-measured language he opposed President Wilson's recent unjust attempt to exclude young women from University college; and there is no doubt that Dr. Young's quoted opinion had very much weight in the parliamentary discussion last methes this explicit. in the parliamentary discussion last week on this subject. He is in favor of liberality, advancement and free-dom of thought in the fullest sense. He often tells his students that he does not wish them to accept anything on his auth-ority) or on that of any other person. Says he: "I have failed in my purpose if I have not taught you that in your search for truth, reason and not authority must always be your guide if you wish to make any real progress." Dr. Young is a scholar of more than ordinary ability. Not only is he probably the best metaphysician in America, but he has also a profound knowledge of the higher mathematics. He is a good Greek and Letin scholar and is quite at home in Latin scholar, and is quite at home in Hebrew and German. In short, in general scholarship he is without an equal in

But it is the abilities he displays as professor that have given Dr. Young the widest distinction. Here we must call attention to a fact too generally ignored, viz., that mere scholarship is not sufficient evidence of fitness for the position of teacher or professor. The essential characteristics viz., that mere scholarship is not sufficient evidence of fitness for the position of teacher or professor. The essential characteristics of the true teacher are the ability to awak-en the interest of the learner in his sub, point where assistance would be of advantage to him. In the main it is not so much instruction as education thet the scalege student requires of his

any way with those of his age and class the writer knows not of it, and he has had imple opportunity to see and know pretty nuch the character of those whose occupa-ion confines them to the turf circle. come enamored of it, and will do all they can to have it stay. Free Press, Acton : The fact that Halton hotel-keepers are going out of the business and removingfrom the country is evidence of a very clear and satisfactory nature that the Scott act is rapidly accomplishing the end desired by its promoters, i.e., of killing the whisky business, and making those hotels which are necessary for the accommodation of the public, "comfortable homes for travellers without the damning influence of the whisky traffic, so long con-nected with them. Smokers are cautioned to see that every CIGAE is stamped, as unscrupulous dealers are in the habit of palming off inferior goods as our make, because it pays them a larger profit.

While at Oxford the master of his college summoned him one day, and said, "I don't know, Mr. Calverley, how it happens, but when-ever I look out of window I see you jump-ing over that wall." "Well, master, re-plied he, "it certainly has often struck me as odd that whenever I jump over that wall I see you looking out of window. "How's that ' asked the charman." "Well, you see, over at Cross Dog camp last winter we used to play a good deal of seven up. The major—one of the best fel-lows in the world—had such remarkable derson for dismissal without cause, it was shown that his singing was occasionally out shown that his singing was occasionally out of tune, and that there was one particular high note which, like that of some of Col. Mapleson's tenges, "sometimes came off and sometimes didn't." The judge gave the plaintiff tenor damages, however, be-cause it was proved by experts that the very greatest artists sing often out of tune, and the question was entirely one of degree. During the trial it was suggested that, after the precedent of the Belt case, the tenor should give the court a specimen of his powers. In a somewhat similar case, in which he was a litigant in Philadelphia, the late Irish comedian, Collins, once bull luck that the boys got so after awhile that they wouldn't play with him unless he had his coat off and his cuffs rolled back." Instruction consists in impartin facts; education in drawing out and de-veloping faculties. Now the student can get his facts from his text-books or the colege library, but for the development of his

lege library, but for the development of his faculties he requires a living professor. Professor Young is the most enthusi-astic, the most successful, and the most popular teacher in the college. Although his subject is naturally the driest and most abstruse in the whole list of studies, yet such is the interest with which the professor invests it that the which the professor invests it that the number of students who make mental and number of students who have mencal and moral science a special study here is equal to those in all the other special depart-ments together, namely, classics, mathe-matics, physics, modern languages and natural science. No coercion is necessary to secure attendance at Dr. Young's lec-tures His lecture room is always mencion. crowded. No one goes to sleep in his class, or leaves the room with the very uncrowded. No show with the very un-class, or leaves the room with the very un-satisfactory feeling of precious time wasted. All the graduates in this depart-ment are conscious of a life-long debt to Dr. Young, and his retirement will be a matter of profound regret to all who know

Artificial Flowers.

The exportation of artificial flowers from France declined in value from over $4,700,-000 to about $3,600,000 in 1882, or a loss of about 24 per cent. This diminution was much greater in the case of exports to some particular countries, such as Germany and the United States. The former took in 1883 barely more than half what it took in 1881, and America took nearly $400,000 less than two years are These heavy that is said for them, worth much for diet, but are used as extras.
