 -THE state elections are taking place in ny of the states of the neighboring republic ing the present week. These correspond th our local elections, and as they are run strict party lines, thoy show the drift of blic sentiment in national politics. The obability is that the tidal wave which over-neimed the democratic party a year ago II repeat itself again this year, leaving the publican party on the top wave of popular wor, and giving them every prospect of a seeping viotory in the presidential contest a year hence. The commercial crisis hrough which the nation has been passing luring the last two or three years has put a top to any forther agitation in that direction for a quarter of a century. It may now mafely be taken for granted that the United States will adhere to a policy of protection for that time at least. The contest in Massachusetts is this year given an unusual interest inasmuch as the women of the state are to say by their votes whether or not they want the franchise. All the women of the state for given a vote upon the question, the only condition being that they shall register their names when the lists are being made. There are, in all, over 500,000 women in the state entitled to vote upon the question. Of this number only 26,000 have registered. In the city of Boston where there are 84,000 have registered, so that that city contains nearly half the women of the state who want to vote, if we take it for granted that all who have registered are favorable to the question of female suffrage. In a good many districts not one solitary woman registered. These things seem to indicate quite clearly that ool ay boot one woman out of a dozen wants the franchise. COUNTY COURT, ANNAPOLIS. The case of Clark v. Barrett, which occu-fitted the Court an unprecedented length of time in July last, has been determined lately by a judgment in favor of the defendant, for a balance of $4.25. It was as a action by a nureeryman against his travelling salesman for an amount claimed under a guarantee of half the sales, and to recover back commis-sions credited him in advance on the sales that proved bad. The court held that where the plaintiff delivered the trees to the insol-vent or delinquent purchasers, and gave them time, he disoharged the defendant for his liability for the half; where the trees were tendered, and for want of payment were re-sold at a discount, or perished, the defendant given.
