

opposition to Quebec and, in a less degree, to Ontario. But now the West is becoming the predominant partner, and is disposed to scrutinize closely any arrangement under which the number of practitioners west of Lake Superior will be increased, whether they come from Eastern Canada or from across the seas.

For ten years Dr. Roddick has been indefatigable in the labour of reconciling local interests, and he has not yet abandoned the task. The matter will be brought before representatives of all the Provincial Councils at the meeting of the Canadian Medical Association in Toronto on June 1st, and if the objections of British Columbia can be removed his great work may then be said to be accomplished.

---