

CONTENTS.

xiii

| PAGE                                          | PAGE                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                |
|-----------------------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Scotch-lists.—AClass Dis-..... 11 | The French and the Church.—Bishop Plessis a Tower-ing Figure in Lower Canada.—The Church and theLoyalty of the French-Canadians.—Roman Catholicismin the Other Provinces.—Bishop McDonell.—In theValley of the Red River.—The Church of England andthe S. P. G.—Help from Home to the Struggling Mis-sionaries.—Attempt to Establish a State Church in theEnglish Provinces.—The First Bishops : Jacob Moun-tain, Charles J. Stewart, G. J. Mountain.—Dr. Strachanand Dr. Inglis.—The Anglican Church in the MaritimeProvinces and on the Red River.—Great Influence ofPresbyterianism in British America.—Divisions andPioneer Work.—Dr. McGregor in Nova Scotia.—TheGlasgow Colonial Society and the "Kirk."—VariousBranches of Methodism.—Controversies between Amer-ican and British Elements.—Ultimate Success of theLatter.—Characteristics of the Early Methodist Lead-ers.—In the Maritime Provinces.—William Black.—Gradual Growth of the Denomination.—Other Phasesof Religious Life and Thought.—The Baptists.—HenryAlleine and Dr. Charles Tupper.—Lutherans, Unitar-ians, Quakers, Jews.—Influence of the Churches uponPolitics and Private Character..... 145 |

CHAPTER VIII.

EARLY TRANSPORTATION, TRADE, AND GENERAL PROGRESS.

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| A Land of Forest and Wilderness.—Carrying of the Mails.—Pioneer Means of Communication.—Bridle Paths De-velop into Log Roads and then into Corduroy and, by1841, into Gravel Roads.—Water Communication.—TheBark Canoe, the Bateau , the Durham Boat.—SailingVessels and Steamboats.—The Lachine and RideauCanals Constructed, the Latter by the Imperial Au-thorities.—Other Projects Discussed up to 1841.—Wil-liam Hamilton Merritt and the Welland Canal.—Natureand Pioneer Trade.—Early Ships and Ship-building inBritish America.—The First Ocean Steamer : the RoyalWilliam .—On the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.—TheTimber Trade.—External Trade of the Provinces.—Its |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|