The answer of the allies to the Ger-man revival of the offensive last week has been to move additional batteries to the front, so as to cope with the in-creased armament of the Germans. It may be surmised that when the allies been to advance in earnest the Ger-mans will be given a few matters for wonder in the gunnery branch of war-fere.

The French still hold the Village of Angomont, near Badonviller, which the German official statement claimed the Germans had occupied. No change is reported in the situa-tion from the Argonne to the Vosges. The Germans heavily bonbarded Arras, Rurie and Roolincourt. They exploded a mine on the plateau of Nuvron without attaining any results, as they expected. The French troops in the Argonne were forced to with-draw on Saturday about 250 yards, owing to the long occupation of the trenches making them unterable. Seri-pus losses on both sides occurred in the performing of these operations.
