All regular subscribers to the American Bookmaker, will receive a present of "The American Dictionary of Printing and Bookmaking." The American Bookmaker is a journal which every printer and bookbinder should be familiar with. The January number begins the twelfth volume of this publication. It is as handsome a paper as the printing art will permit the production of, while the information which it contains monthly is often worth more than the cost of a subscription for a year. The dictionary, which is being given away as a premium, comprises 600 pages, the regular price of which is $12. It is a complete history of the art preservative, from the earlier periods to the present time. The subscription price of the Bookmaker is $2 a year. Address Howard, Lockwood & Co, 126 and 128 Duane St., New York.
