

725/3

McGILL UNIVERSITY.

MEDICAL FACULTY.

SURGERY.

Examiner—G. E. FENWICK, M.D.

SATURDAY, March 9, 1878.

- ✓ 1. What is the difference between simple, compound and comminuted fractures?
- ✓ 2. With what may a fracture be complicated?
- ✓ 3. What do you understand by an impacted fracture?
- ✓ 4. What bones are liable to impaction in fracture?
- ✓ 5. Mention the fractures liable to occur to the upper extremity of the humerus. What are the symptoms and with what accident may they be confounded?
- ✓ 6. What are the symptoms and appearances of the fore arm in fracture of the lower end of the radius, and how would you treat it?
- ✓ 7. What do you understand by the term dislocation, as applied to bones?
- ✓ 8. Mention the dislocations of the humerus at the shoulder joint.
- ✓ 9. With what accident may dislocation into the axilla be mistaken?
- ✓ 10. Describe the method of reduction of the head of the femur backwards and upwards on to the dorsum ~~illi~~ by manipulation.
- ✓ 11. Mention the symptoms and appearance of the limb in dislocation into the thyroid foramen.
- ✓ 12. How would you proceed to reduce dislocation into the thyroid foramen by manipulation,—and failing by this method, by extension?