SICK SCHOOL CHILDREN.
A teacher speaks of the cause. The public charge of the second grade in the public schools here, and trace nearly every case of headache among these children to improper feeding. When a sick child is asked what he had for breakfast, the reply almost universally includes a cup of coffee.

An illustration is that of my sister's oldest boy, Will Wilson, of Lennox, Ill. For a long time he had no appetite for breakfast, but no matter how little coffee he had, it brought on his bad spells. Since they have been using Postum Food Coffee in the family, the boy is well, and can have all of the Postum Food Coffee he wants for breakfast.

I was ordered by my physician to quit the use of coffee some time ago, for my sick spells were driven to trace nearly every case of headache among these children to improper feeding. When a sick child is asked what he had for breakfast, the reply almost universally includes a cup of coffee.

I have a long list of friends who use Postum and enjoy it very much, but in every case they have had to learn that Postum is only used when it is hot and long enough to bring out the flavor. Margaret Scroggs, 74 W. 1st-st., Hutchinson, Kan.
