A motion picture that should thrill not only because of its absorbing story, but because of its powerful heart appeal, is "The White Moll," in which the famous Pearl White is to be starred —her first big production, by William Fox, at Loew's Theatre, beginning next Monday. The story is from the pen of Frank L. Packard, famous author of "The Miracle Man," which has made history in the film world, and E. Lloyd Sheldon wrote the scenario. "The White Moll" treats of a vital subject that should appeal to everyone. The story centres around Rheda, a reformed crook, who has seen the light, and who has been commissioned by a millionaire to help reform the unfortunates of the underworld. As a settlement worker she invades the dives of crooks and a story by H. H. van boan, the author of many of the most notable screen successes.

"Fightin' Job McCoy" is found, soon after the memorable June 30, 1919, mourning the loss of his friend "John B." The Border Rangers offer excitement and adventure to keep his mind busy, so Job enlists. His activities put him in close touch with mining interests in that section, and especially one operator. Howard Marlowe, his wife and young niece, who awakens in Job thoughts of a brighter future.

An unscrupulous official of the mine connives to steal both Marlowe's gold, bullion and his wife. Job suspects the scheming Otis and is able to frustrate the well planned robbery of the strong box. The official's Spanish sweetheart, learning of the duplicity of Otis, warns Jop of the intended elopement, and by appealing to the better nature of Marlowe's wife, persuades her to return to her husband, who is none the wiser for her folly. The bitterness of Otis, however, leads him to seek revenge, and in the fight which follows Marlowe learns of the debt he owes to J.b.

In reply to Sir Henry Drayton, Mr.

McCormack said that as far as any shortage of lumber existing on the prairies was concerned, he was of the opinion that there was more noise than rael shortage and he promised the chair iman to declare a statement showing the stocks held by dealers in that section of the Dominion during the last three years. He contended that nonsuitable lumber had been imported into the four Western provinces from the United States to the value of $11,000,000 last year. It had reached as high as $27,000,000 and as low as $4,000,000.
