Ottawa May Not Play Vics Trouble Over the Offi

BRIEF BASEBALL RECORDS.
Larry Schafly Has an Unassisted
Triple Play to His Credit.

The following are a few brief baseball records:

Greatest number of runs in a game—Chicago v. Cleveland, July 24, 1892, 35—4

Player who played in greatest number of games—

Longest game, major league—Athletics
v. Boston, at Boston, Sept. 1, 1906, 24 innings, 4—1.

oldest game, minor league—Pargo vs. Omaha, Yorks., July 18, 1891, 25 innings, 0-1.

Greatest number of championship games—Brooklyn vs. Philadelphia, Sept. 1, 1904, 12 games.

Brooklyn v. Pittsburgh, scores 10-0.

Smallest number of scores by first baseman—At New York, 1904, 1905, 1906, the New York-Chicago American League game of that date, a major league record.

Chicago had but one chance at first base, an assist, which he accepted in the eighth.

It is a pity that the story that the first baseman should go thru an entire game without a hit is never true.

Largest attendance, major league—Oct. 10, 1906, New York Nationals v. Philadelphia Athletics, world's championship series, 24,992.

Largest attendance, minor league—Sept. 19, 1907, at Columbus, O., Columbus v. Toledo, 25,000.

Unassisted triple plays—Paul Hines,

Providence, R.I., May 8, 1878; Harry O'Hanlon, Rochester, at Jersey City, Aug. 18, 1902; Larry Schaffy, at Portland, Ore., June 10, 1904.
 Greatest number of consecutive games lost—26 games, Louisville, American Association; 23 games, Pittsburgh, National League.
 Greatest number of strikeouts by pitcher—301, Waddell, Athletics, in 1903.
 Greatest number of consecutive games won—26, Fred Luderus, National League, 1884; minor league, 21, Lancaster, Atlantic League, 1897.
 Shortest game on record—44 minutes, Cuba v. Shreveport, Sept. 24, 1904.
 Greatest winning pitcher—Tom Ward, game in nine innings, at Boston, May 21, 1884; Tom Ward, Providence, v. Buffalo, May 22, 1884; Cy Young pitching for Boston, v. Athletics, May 23, 1904.

Greatest number of victories in one year in major league—Chicago athletes, 118, in 1906.
 Longest playing season—California League, March 31 to Dec. 31, 1901.

Jersey City Club a Liberal One.

To all outward appearances Bob Davis, owner of the Jersey City Club, believes in a policy along deserving ball players and putting in practice the "deal" policy." This was made more plain last week, when Davis showed his liberal hand in allowing the club to let Jimmy Casey go to Montreal.

It was a benefit to the parties concerned, while to the Jersey City club it represented a saving of money. By the arrangement Casey is able to receive a larger salary than the Jersey City club the other hand, the club owners, and, on the real club will be the one to make their debut with the services of a star manager. Davis came in for unstinted praise for this act at the Eastern League meeting in New York last Wednesday.

In the instance of this kind was noted last year, the club gave Pete Cassidy his release, and he was permitted to play in his home town of Wilmington with the Tri-State League team. In this case Cassidy had established himself in the moon business. Basing his belief on the theory that playing in Wilmington would be a big advertisement for his business, he would result in his making more money, than could be playing in Jersey City. Cassidy

In addition to these two cases, there are numerous instances where the liberal treatment accorded to football players has resulted in the club becoming some quarters as a haven for diamond stars in their declining years. "Iron Man" Thielman, whose brilliant work in the backfield led to many victories for the Skeeters and who was the payroll for two seasons, during which he didn't perform in over half a dozen games, is one. This income enabled Thielman to continue his dentistry course in a New York college, and now he is practising success-

Another Metropolitols, Eugene McCann has salary regularly for the past two years, during which time he has done very little work. In 1995 he worked about a dozen games, while last season he did not pitch in half that number. McCann's daily duties last season consisted chiefly of "warming up" the catchers and taking a regular turn on the coach's bill line. It is rumored that McCann was among the missing next season as the Jersey City club searched for waivers on bin about a month ago.

The game to-night in the Central League between Brunswicks and Wolesleys has been postponed.
