Recital of French Songs. An appreciative audience greatly enjoyed Kathryn Innes-Taylor's recital last night in Conservatory Music Hall. She was heard in a group of old French songs of the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries, in another group of songs by the 19th century French impressionist composers, and in a group of English songs. Mrs. Innes-Taylor was assisted by Mary L. Caldwell, planist, and Mrs. H. M. Blight, accompanist. Mrs. Innes-Taylor, in her groups of French songs, gave music-lovers a genuine treat by the clear, resonant quality of her cantabile voice, by her accomplished vocalism and by her original interpretations of the composers' sentiments and meaning. Her singing and interpretations were enhanced by characteristic sesture and action. For her English songs she was roundly encored and presented with a beautiful bouquet. Miss Caldwell was, as always, effective in her plano solos; she is without doubt unequaled by any other Canadian woman pianist who may be credited with virtuosity. Mrs. Blight, too, as always, showed herself expert in the art of ac-

Mr. James, who spoke on Tennyson, the Imperialist, declared that he never knew of a poet that deserved so great a place among the English writers.
Mr. James then outlined the bard's life and in closing said that Tennyson always believed that England should never cause any friction among the colories and that the main idea of his works was a greater empire for the mother country.
