THERE MUST BE MANUAL TRAINING

Paper by Walter Sargent, Director of Drawing and Manual Training of the Boston Latin School.

The majority of the children in public schools leave at the end of the eighth year and go to work. While the function of public schools is said to be to teach children how to live, not how to make a living, still it is true that living is made likely to be of the right sort if one knows how to live. The school should be a place to the community. Moreover, it is impossible for children to give steady attention to matters of the intellect for any great length of time without relaxation. This relaxation is most effective when it is some sort of constructive work.

School authorities simply decide whether time shall be taken from study and devoted to muscular activity or not. The nature of children determines that. The school authorities simply decide whether this activity shall appear in the form of manual art or of mischief; whether it shall be a hindrance to school work or a positive factor in education.

If the right balance between study and work is kept, as much or even more progress in regular studies can be made, while the energy that otherwise would go to waste may be directed towards skilled manual work. Just as ignorance is traceable to lack of intellectual training, so idleness, vandalism and lack of industrial ability and interest are traceable to lack of manual training in school. The state of Massachusetts is already experimenting to see how the irrefragable activity of children may be given a constructive expression as shall train industrial habits and manual skill. Some schools in rural communities and the smaller towns are including agriculture and forestry in their courses, and such nature study as the means of exterminating harmful insects and fostering birds and animals that are beneficial. Problems in arithmetic and design are related to local industries. Outlets of the department of agriculture have become a part of the supplementary reading matter.

In city schools manual training is becoming an effective force in industrial education. Educators have awakened to the knowledge that the chief value of manual training lies not in the fact that it is a work that requires wholesome thinking and planning as well as technical skill. Consequently the careful making of mortise and tenon joints, never to be used, or bits of wood turning that have no purpose except to exercise skill, and the making of pieces of work that are to be put into actual use are thought out, discussed, designed and executed.

In Boston schools the office of one principal is furnished with chairs, hat rack and umbrella stand made by pupils. In nearly all districts the boys in the upper grade of the grammar schools make each a piece of practical furniture which will be carried home and used. Such articles as writing tables, boxes and bookcases and cabinets are common. It is seldom that a boy can be induced to sell one of these articles, though offers are frequent. Boys' work develops interest in industries, power to plan and carry to completion a difficult piece of work, a pride in constructive ability and a sense of property rights.

When public opinion realizes that after children have been kept for eight years in schools which offer no industrial training and where all exercises of constructive ability is unlawful, it is unreasonable to expect the majority of graduates to be industrially capable citizens; when it realizes also that the standard of attainment in the subjects of long standing, such as languages and arithmetic, is not lowered by the introduction of industrial education, ample encouragement will be given to those who are beginning to solve the problem.

HAD $500,000 ; STARVED TO DEATH

Eccentric Little Old Woman Dies in New York

TIN CANS HER HOBBY

Kept Them Shining for Thirty Years While Valuable Tapes-tries Were Allowed to Rot
—Found Lifeless in Piti-able Condition.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—"Dead of starvation." That was the verdict of Coroner's Physician West in the case of little old Mrs. Caroline Barry, the recluse of Greene avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday. It did not tell that the woman was worth more than half a million dollars and that death was the result of slow starvation, a process she was following for more than thirty years, notwithstanding her wealth.

The story of the woman whose little old attenuated body was found by the police yesterday huddled up on the floor of her kitchen in the midst of a litter of useless trash, is reminiscent of a tale of Dickens. Each can so brightly polished that it shone like a mirror. But the windows were thick with dust and festooned with cobwebs.

Inside, except for the shining cans and bottles, there was a still greater disorder. The room was a chaos of tin cans, glass bottles, and other rubbish. Mrs. Barry moved to the place more than eight years ago, her rich husband, Alexander Barry, a Scotchman, made a fortune manufacturing a one-time famous hair tonic. He died thirty years ago, though, after a long illness, which broke his neck. Since then she has been changed.

Shortly after her husband's death she decided to invest in some mortgages. She made known her request to Frank Mar-rin, who has since become notorious as a swindling lawyer and was recently sentenced to prison for a similar crime. The man's mother had at one time been a servant in Mrs. Barry's family. Alexander Barry, the husband, had taken a great liking to the youth, and together they educated him. Believing in him, Mrs. Barry placed the matter of the mortgage in his hands. He swindled her out of $70,000, and it was a blow from which she never recovered.

Public Administrator Teale, knowing of the wealth of the old recluse, sent an agent, Charles R. Smith, to make a thorough search of the house. It is not known whether there was any will left, but it is known that she had a lawyer named Hult-z who has not been found.

A tax receipt found in the house show that she owned property in Williamsburg and a house at No. 14 West Sixteenth street, Manhattan, valued at $25,000. No papers in the house gave any clue to her relative, and the only known heir is Alexander Barry, who calls himself Barrie, a nephew of her husband, who inherited from him the hair restorer business.

Mrs. Barry originally came from Westchester County, where her family was one of the oldest and best known in this country. They boasted old Plymouth Rock ancestry and her maiden name was Under-hill. She was a Spiritualist in her belief, but she never attended any seances or went to one of their churches.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 14.—The convention of the general assembly of the Knights of Labor, which has been in session in this city since Tuesday, adjourned today after electing officers and selecting Washington as the place for holding the next annual convention. The officers elected:

Simon Burns, of Pittsburgh, general master workman; P. H. Farrell, New York city, general worthy foreman; J. Frank O'Meara, of Washington, general secretary; John Fernau, of Pittsburgh; J. B. Leno, of Boston, and P. J. McCarthy, of Boston, members of the general executive board.

A resolution calling upon congress and the various states, county and city governments which require their employees to wear uniforms, to furnish these uniforms free, was adopted.

GENEROUS OFFER DECLINED
BELFAST, Nov. 15.—The corporation of Belfast yesterday declined the offer made by Nathan Strauss of New York of a complete plant for the pasteurization of milk, for the reason that it has no power to expend funds for the operation thereof.

SENTENCED TO DEATH
BARCELONA, Nov. 15.—A court martial sitting here yesterday passed the death sentence upon the Catalan General Moore and his son. Those two men were captured near Barcelona on Dec. 4, of last year, in the act of leading an armed uprising in Catalonia. Six other men were sent to the chain gang for life for taking active part in the movement.

PIMPLES
ALTHOUGH, NOT A DANGEROUS DISEASE, ARE A VERY TROUBLESOME AND UNSIGHTLY AFFLICTION . . .

They are caused by either poverty or impurity of the blood and require the prompt use of a good blood medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters, for their eradication, which it specifically accomplishes, at the same time strengthening the entire system. Pimples also often arise from dyspepsia and constipation, and in those cases Burdock Blood Bitters has the double effect of removing the pimples together with their cause.

Mr. D. P. Sammon, Oseola, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with pimples all over my face and hands. I paid out money to doctors but they could do me no good. A friend convinced me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using two bottles the pimples vanished, and I have not been troubled with them since."

Burdock Blood Bitters may be procured at all Druggists and Dealers.

LAEST IDEAS IN CIVIC BEAUTY
American Civic Association Will Discuss Them in Providence Next Week.

(Boston Transcript)
Interest in the American Civic Association which meets in Providence next week shows that cities small and great, in all parts of the country, are pleasantly vying with one another in the felicitous enterprise of making their local environment more pleasing and attractive to the eye as well as more sanitary and hygienic.

It is a novel plan of combining beauty with utility which is carried on in Texas where pecan trees are now planted for shade and decorative effect, the five-year-old trees being transplanted from the native forest, and afterward grafted with buds from the paper shell pecan, in a year or two to become profitable as well as ornamental. The enforcement of existing laws often affords a sufficient outlet for the civic beautifiers' energies. In Oakland, Cal., a good effort is made by arresting violations of the ordinance against sweeping rubbish into the streets.

The reclamation of vacant lots is another bit of special work which has been taken up in scores of cities. Augusta, Ga., is among the latest to join in this labor which adds greatly to the ordinary tidiness and appearance of the city. In Baltimore the smoke nuisance is receiving attention, as an enemy of civic beauty. Denver, Col., has an annual "cleaning up day" when everybody from the humblest householder to the highest public official makes a concerted effort to put yards, lawns, parks, buildings, streets and alleys, in good order thereby greatly enhancing the attractiveness of the city. The paint pot, the scrubbing brush, the broom, the lawnmower, and the street sweeper all take active part in this annual broadside against untidiness.

Prize contests are held in home-gardening and awards are given for the neatest backyards by improvement workers in many towns where the idea is in its incipency. A favorite way to arouse public interest is by a set of "resolutions," like those adopted by the Civic League of Ingram, Pa., which declare:

1.—We will have no dirty back or front yards about our homes, and we will by example and endeavor to have our neighbors clean up.
2.—We will plant American hardy trees, shrubs and vines and keep our yards for clean and beautiful parks and playgrounds with which we may come in contact.
3.—We will endeavor to protect trees from the untidiness of electric pole men, and will not permit the setting of electric poles on our own premises except in severe cases, and then under rigid safeguarding of trees and landscape beauty.
4.—We will oppose the erection of the continuance of objectionable advertising signs of any kind, and will assist in their removal by kindly argument.
5.—Finally, we will decorate our outdoor beauty as worth while and economically justified, and will try to have the children of Ingram grow up with a greater love for the natural beauties of their surroundings.

WATERY BLOOD
Nerves Are Weak
Face Is Pallid
You Lack Strength
You Look Sickly

Until You Ironize and Fortify the Blood There's No Hope of Cure.

Thousands of tired workers need the invigoration, the strength, the nerve-force which Ferrone can supply. Ferrone imparts strength because it nourishes.

Ferrone is able to nourish because it supplies to the blood the elements it lacks. Once the blood is vitalized, its tonic influence is circulated to every nook and corner of the body, carrying new life with it.

Cases on record prove that Ferrone builds up when else fails. Mr. Alonzo W. Douglas of Woodbridge, Ont., says: "I desire to state the results I derived from the use of Ferrone. Two years ago I was stricken with Pneumonia. So severe was the attack and so reduced was my strength that my life was despaired of. I had the very best medical attention, but made no progress towards recovery. When reduced to practically a skeleton, a kind friend told me of the remarkable powers of Ferrone. An improvement began almost at once. I gained steadily, a kind friend strength until Ferrone made me a new man. I will gladly answer inquiries from sufferers if they care to have further particulars about my recovery. Ferrone deserves its great measures of success."

When a man in Mr. Douglas' low condition can be quickly cured, aren't the chances good for you? Don't fail to try Ferrone. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.
