John, the attitude assumed by the Union To read his works and ways aright. Inspector Jones is bringing into practical effect a clause in the amended license law which may be made of considerable service. Under this clause an habitual drunkard, or a man who wastes his time and money in the saloons may be put on each church in this city will take up the So with His children dealeth He.

in the money in the saloons may be put on the interdict list for a year, and those thereafter providing him with liquor may be heavily fined. It should be possible under this clause to place a large number of men in this city on the list, and those interested in them should cordially assist the inspector. It would not be at all difficult to establish the fact in many cases that this clause of the law should be made operative. There should be added, however, a clause restraining the dealer from permitting such persons to darken his doors, whether on the interdict list or not. Some dealers do not serve such customers or want them about their premises, and the rule should be made universal. In the meantime the action taken by the inspector, if followed up charply, will be of some benefit, and should lessen the inclination of the confirmed sots to loaf around in the vicinity of the saloons. Such persons must be saved from themselves, and the best remedy yet discovered is the prison farm.

If a group of serious minded men in leach the will take up the study of social questions, and if the groupe will fake up the study of social questions, and if the groupe will federate to get some practical results in legislation, the conditions in St. John will be greatly improved within the next will federate to get some practical results in legislation, the conditions in St. John will be greatly improved within the next will federate to get some practical results in legislation, the conditions in St. John will be greatly improved within the next the end will prove That here and there, below, above, The charten of the trust will federate to get some practical results in legislation, the conditions in St. John will be greatly improved within the next the end will prove that here the deal of the church in this city of the study of social questions, and if the groupe will federate to get some practical results in legislation, the conditions in St. John will be greatly improved the intent the end will prove That here and there, below best of the management and made it a pride throughout the world. After having for a year endured the intrusions of the party boss, they have laid down the splendid task they were accomplishing for Montreal and for Canada with so much enthusiasm, devotion and ability, and for five years with no interference. We are not saying that other man might not have done the work as well and as disinterestedly, or even that others might not now do it well, making up by overtowering genius for their lack of six years of familiarity with the great works committed to them. But we have the minister's com assurance that they have shown themselves splendidly fit for their work. Now that the acceptance of Major Stephens' resignation has followed the removat of his colleagues there is not a cloud on the job hunter's and privilege hunter's horizon or on that of the job and privilege dispenser."

the whole population of Canada for several months, and that it is being hoarded to secure higher prices in the winter. The high cost of living, he says, is not due to scarcity of food, but because a huge trust of Maine establish's course in highway engineering and construction. He points out that the voters have just endorsed the appropriation of $2,000,000 for highway construction, and that in the next few years there will be a lively demand for men with scientific knowledge of this work. In the course of his statement he says:

"There is no department of the public service where so much of the public fund is wasted, and in many instances worse than lost, for frequently the roads are induced repairs, as in the construction and maintenance of our highways. It is unquestionably safe to state that 30 per cent.

maintenance of our highways. It is unquestionably safe to state that 30 per cent of the money now expended on the roads of Maine is dissipated. This means an ansual destruction of more than $500,000, which amount might just as well be gathered into one pile and burned. The time is coming when the public will fully appreciate this fact, and then there will be evolved a system somewhat similar and as efficient as that adopted by our railways. Trained men will be necessary to put such a plan into execution. We have trained schools for our teachers and those engaged in nearly every other avocation, why not for our road builders?"

The president of the university, commenting on this appeal, says there is already some provision for such a course, but that practically nothing is done, and he agrees that it would be a wise move to make provision for carrying on such a course in earnest.

It is stated that building operations have been proceeding in this city without due regard to the building law. Where is the inspector?

The NewYork jury has not been impressed by the charge that there was a conspiracy to convict Lieut. Becker of the murder of Rosenthal. They have declared Becker himself guilty of murder, as the instigator of the crime. Desperate efforts will now be made to save him from the penalty.

There are again rumors of the early operation of the G. T. P. in New Brunswick. There has already been too much delay in this matter. The road-bed has been found in splendid condition by the officials who have just completed an inspection.

St. John's Opportunity

Sussex Record:—If any town or city in the west was being favored with the vast expenditures now being made in St. John, that fortunate community would be deluging eastern Canadians with literature describing the marvelous undertakings. In the east, where we have been and are more conservative, we do not ries to the occasion and blow our horns often enough or sufficiently loud. However, there is a new generation arising and if the young men of New Brunswick are well advantage of the golden opportunities which are opened up to them. St. John's Opportunity
