I put out my loot again and touched it.

It moved towards me!

It rested against my leg!

A cold sweat broke out all over me. A sensation as of death came upon me, and then, regardless of the danger of moving, thoughtless of everything but the presence of the dread object, I sprang with a loud

My cry alarmed the boarders; in the costume of the midnight hours, they rushed into my room. I could only point to the bed, and say nothing.

They turned down the clothes, and there in plan sight rested—not a venemous reptile, but what, put there as a joke, had been to me a dread reakiy—what was in truth a coul's tail to them, but to me a "take of horror."
