

TO ROUND OFF THE DOMINION.

It seems ridiculous for the comparatively insignificant island of Newfoundland to maintain her position of loneliness and isolation when she might just as well and with great benefit to herself be a member of what will one day become one of the greatest and most important confederations in the world.

A COHESIVE GOVERNMENT.

The Premier's paper says the opposition does not possess the "necessary elements of political coherence." The style of the organ lately has been modelled after that of the Irish falconer whose tongue put everyone to confusion until Daniel O'Connell "crossed language" with her and paralyzed her voluble organ.

do not believe anything of real value is to be gained by an assumption of the attitude of a provincial bully or braggart. We know there are men in the Legislature to-day who, if they were convinced the Dominion would act in accordance with their hypothetical demands, would not utter a sound in the House or on the hustings upon the subject.

THE FALL EXHIBITION.

Our contemporary, the New Westminister Columbian, is extremely zealous in all matters calculated to be of benefit to the Royal City. That is all right, but it hardly seems necessary to misrepresent other places in order to advance the material welfare of New Westminister institutions.

Speaking of cohesion, does anyone suppose that the political combination which is at present doing all in its power to make this province ridiculous before the world and to make a laughing stock of what is generally understood by responsible government possesses the elements of permanent cohesion?

The situation with regard to that question is a peculiar one. It hinges on three treaties—Utrecht, Paris and Versailles. The Treaty of Utrecht granted to the French fishing privileges along the shores of Newfoundland from Cape Bonavista on the east, northward round Belle Isle Strait, and down the west coast to Cape Riche.

The Treaty of Paris ceded in full sovereignty to France the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the south coast; 5,000 French reside in St. Pierre, and 10,000 fishermen annually come from France and make the islands to the Grand Banks of the south and lobster areas of the west.

To this treaty, after it had passed the Imperial House of Commons, there was appended a declaration guaranteeing that British subjects should not be permitted to interfere by competition with the French.

It will be remembered that the government of Newfoundland decided to let its grievances rest rather than add to the troubles and responsibilities of the British government during the course of the war in South Africa.

DISALLOWANCE.

It is, we admit, a serious matter to differ from such great constitutional authorities as the Minister of Mines, the chief adviser and practical head of the government, and the Legislature of British Columbia as a whole, on a constitutional point.

After all the case is a very simple one. The Dominion government, Bourinot says, has an absolute power of disallowance. He qualifies this, however, by pointing out that "this political power is one to be exercised with great discretion and judgment, as otherwise it might involve consequences fatal to the harmony and integrity of Confederation."

The Times has no desire to be misunderstood in this matter. It was one of the first newspapers in British Columbia to draw attention to the serious consequences which would surely follow the encroachments of Orientals. It is as firmly convinced as ever that in the best interests of the province and the Dominion the evil should be abated. But we

Mr. William Birt, Pisquid, P.E.I., is one who suffered for years, and relates his experience for the benefit of similar sufferers. Mr. Birt says: "For many years I was a victim of indigestion, accompanied by nervousness, palpitation of the heart and other distressing symptoms."
