THIRD CONTINGENT.

Will Sail From Hailfax Next Saturday.

HALIFAX, Jan. 5.-The transport Manhattan arrived from Cape Town at noon today, after a voyage of 26 days, Capt. Goudie, who is in command, says the ship had fine weather till three days ago, when heavy westerly gales and high seas were en countered. The steamer is very high out of the water, forty feet from the rail to the water. She is 525 feet long, is 8,000 tons gross and has a capacity is 8,000 tons gross and has a capacity of 17,000 tons dead weight. No transport ever in this harbor had such splendid accommodation for men and flores. She is completely fitted up to take 612 men and 17 officers and 520 horses. There is such ample room that Captain Goudie says he can exercise one hundred horses at once on the deck above that on which the stalls are placed. OTTAWA, Jan. 5.—Henry Domville of the Woodstock, N. B., Field Battery, has been appointed assistant veterinary to the Mounted Riffes.

Col. Evans wires the militia department that there is no room for nurses on the transport.

The department of militia has been advised of the issuing of the following army order with reference to gratuities for distinguished conduct: The secretary of state has decided that a gratuity of 20 pounds granted to soldiers who have been awarded distinguished conduct medal shall be issued, under similar conditions to roncom'd officers and men of any colonial force serving in South Africa. The gratuity will be made to colonial forces by the paymaster, who makes final issues of pay, or by the government of the colony to which men belongs. The issue will be noted on the man's discharge certificate at the time of paysment.

UNIQUE PUBLICATION. An Ohio Paper Edited and Published By Children.

What is in many respects the me lique publication in the world passe through the postoffice here as se class matter, says a Springfield, Ohio, correspondent. It comes out regularly once a week, is called the Bud, and is published by three children, the eldest of whom is but 14. They are Heien Hosterman, 14; Hazel Hosterman, her sister, 13, and Benjamin Garver, their coustn, 11.

sister, 13, and Benjamin Garver, their cousin, 71.

As might be imagined from the title, the periodical 's devoted to the publication of news regarding the juvenile population of the city. The enterprise that actuates the publishers is such that they never got scooped, always come out on time, no difference how many the vexations or the annoyances and have a clientele that to a great extent is kept in a fever of excitement until the journal makes its appearance. If Maud Brown, aged 3, gave a party, or Sam Lewis, aged 4, fell down and stubbed his great toe, the fact is duly and solemnly recorded in, the columns of the Bud, usually with headlines appropriate to the subject matter. If Johny Nicholas loses his pet kitten, or if Mary Toulman has the misfortune to forget to keep her canary bird in the cage, then the Bud must know all about it for its half-thousand readers.

The publication is no longer an experiment or a plaything. It has reach-canary bird in the cage, then the Bud must know all about it for its half-thousand readers.

The publication is no longer an experiment or a plaything. It has reached the point in its career where it is paying the trio of publishers handsomely, considering the amount of energy expended. The paper is sold to regular subscribers at 50 cents per year and advertising space is disposed of at 10 cents per inch. Two or three of the grocers who carry a good line of sweets are now regular advertisers in the Bud, and they claim experience has demonstrated that the publication is a good advertising medium.

The Bud office is located in a woodshed on Ferncliff avenue—that is, in the alley of that thoroughfare. Here are located the cases of type, the make-up stones and the other equipment that is needed to print every Saturday 500 copies of the journal, which in every particular, even to the offering of premiums and the exhibition of a spirit looking to the development of public enterprise, is not far behind some of the great dailies of the large cities. While the Bud has no fierce competition to meet, the publishers are tireless in their successful endeavors to meet the demands of their constituents. Initially they offered premiums, ranging from a cheap jacknife to a live turtle, for new subscribers. And the way the scheme worked was little short of phenomenal. Every child on the north side of the city, where the office of the publication is located, seemed to be vying with every other to see who could lead in building up the paper's subscription list. The three children are all typesetters, and now get up the "copy" with little difficulty, although at first, they state, they longed for hands with a thousand fingers.

Benjamin Garver is the business manager, and Benjamin is a hustler eighteen karats fine. When the news of President McKinley's death was received on Saturday morning the hour for the publication of the Bud was not far away. Young Garver was in a stew. it."
The Bud has no paid reporters, but enough volunteers to publish one of those big sectional Sunday papers. And here is where the trouble of the editor comes in. He cannot publish all the news that his contributors send him, and in some instances the disappointment is keen.

The Bud has won the support of the business men of the city by its unceasing advocacy of a project, which it originated itself, to convert Frey's quarry right in the heart of the city, into a children's park. It has started out to raise the sum of $5000 for the purpose, and up to date the subscriptions sent in aggregate something like $1,000.

MARK TWAIN'S MOVING.

MARK TWAIN'S MOVING.

(From the Argonaut.)
A new story is being told of the days when Mark Twain was a hack-writer in San Francisco on a weekly salary represented by one figure, Bert Harte and Joaquin Miller serving on the same staff with like pay. A woman of means who patronized Bohemia and gave the impecunious strugglers many a good dinner, saw Mark Twain, thinly clad and imperfectly shod, standing with a cigar box under his arm, and looking hungrily in at a confectioner's window. The patroness of letters asked what was in the box.

"Oh," drawled the young man, "I'm moving again."

THE RING.

Young Corbett Will Make Hay While the Sun Shraes.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 5.— "Young Corbett," the feather weight champion, who opened a week's engagement here today, has received a challenge for a match with George Welty, the Australian bantam. "Young Corbett" is only too eager to meet all comers, said Manager Kennedy today, but Terry McGovern will get the first chance. During the next fitteen weeks the champion will give exhibitions in St. Louis, Louisville, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Clancinnati, Pittsburg, Tofedo, Indianapolis, Buffalo, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Wash-lington.

NEW YORK, Jan, 6.—The details of the match between Juffries and Sharkey have been finally determined upon. The men agree to fix for 62½ per cent of the gross receipts, the winner to take 75 and the loser 85 per cent. The fight will take place on some date between March 28 and April 5th, to be decided upon later. The scene of battle will be the Mechanics' pavillion, San Francisco, under the auspices of the Yosemite Athletic club of that city. Champion Jeffries, Sharkey and the Yogemite club management have agreed to post 42,500 for each week, Harry Corbett as final stake holder. The principals will go into active training at once.

Walsh Defeats Dalton

Walsh Defeats Dalton.

There was a fairly large attendance at the Victoria Rink Saturday evening, when a half mile match race between Ned Dalton and Mike Walsh was pulled off. R. J. Armstrong acted as referee and starter, the start being made from opposite sides of the rink. At the word, Dalton jumped to the front; at the end of the second lap was some ten or twelve feet ahead. From this on, however, Walsh gained steadily and finlshed fully ten feet to the good. The time was announced as 1 minute, 32 seconds.
