A Presentation. Last Friday evening the senior Epworth League of the Portland Methodist church, at the close of a business social, presented their pastor, Rev. N. Under this kindly charge of a King's daughter 9 or 10 children will go by boat up to a summer resort in Kings county. On leaving her care at the wharf the children will be met by the hostesses and will begin their visit with a hay rack ride to their future temporary home. The King's Daughter will remain at the hotel over night and return next day. The committee will be glad to hear of other homes open to a child for a week or more.

DEATH TAKES ONE OF CITY'S BEST SCHOLARS

Dr. W. P. Dole Passed Away on Saturday After Five Months Illness--Was in His 86th Year.

With the passing of Dr. Wm. P. Dole in the 86th year of his age, St. John loses one of its best classical scholars, and a man who in a quiet, unostentatious way played a large part in the educational and literary life of the community for many years. The death of the well-known educationalist occurred on Saturday after an illness of about five months, at his residence, 32 Sewell street. He leaves one son, Richard Dole, local manager of the Bank of New Brunswick at Florenceville, and two daughters, Miss Mary F. and Miss Annabel P., at home. One sister, Mrs. Wm. Spiller of Waterville, Maine, also survives him.

Dr. Doyle, who was born in St. John of loyalist descent, was educated in private schools here, and at the Kings College at Fredericton, now the University of New Brunswick. He graduated from that institution with honors, winning the Douglas medal for excellence in English composition. After leaving college he studied law in the office of the late Chief Justice Ritchie, was called to the bar, and practiced at his profession for a time. But he had a strong bent for educational work, and in 1870, in association with the late Dr. Hutchison, Thomas Stohart and Wm. McLean, now Inspector of public schools, he opened a private school in this city. Later when the free public school system was organized he taught for a while in the city schools and was for a number of years school inspector for the district.

He was also for a time civil service examiner for the district of St. John. Of late years he has conducted a private school which has enjoyed an enviable reputation for the quality of instruction it furnished young people. A Fine Classical Scholar. Dr. Doyle was one of the foremost classical scholars of the Maritime Provinces, and a poet and essayist of distinction. His essays, many of which were published in American magazines, showed ripe scholarship, rich culture, and a fine command of style; while his original poems, and metrical translations from Anacreon, Horace and the French classical writers, earned him many eulogies. His ode on the Jubilee of Queen Victoria, probably one of the best evoked by the occasion in this country, will long be remembered for the nobility of its conception and the beauty of its style.

LEAPED TO DEATH IN REVERSING FALLS

Patrick O'Neill, a Patient in the Provincial Hospital Jumped from Suspension Bridge on Saturday Afternoon.

Patrick O'Neill, a harmless patient of the Provincial Hospital, leaped to death at the Reversing Falls on Saturday afternoon and his body has not yet been found. O'Neill, who was a native of Restigouche County, had been five years in the institution, and on several occasions Dr. Anglin had thought of allowing him to return to his home, as, although he was mentally weak, his affliction was of such a mild type that it was felt he would be just as well at home. He was allowed the freedom of the grounds and buildings, and only the slightest sort of watch was kept on him, as it was felt that he was fit to be at large. On Saturday afternoon he finished making beds in one of the wards, and then went out of the institution in the direction of the Suspension Bridge. He was followed, but before any one could reach him he managed to climb over the railing of the bridge and plunged into the falls below.

He was a good swimmer, and those who watched any he had succeeded in swimming almost down to Miller's Mill before he sank. Search was at once made and all afternoon the vicinity was dragged, but there was no trace of the body. O'Neill was 70 years of age and although it was reported that he had shown signs of suicidal mania before he was admitted to the institution, it had apparently left him and he was regarded as harmless.

At the time he jumped from the bridge, Albert Nice, of West End, was on the bridge and a few yards from the old man. Nice saw him climb over the railing and called to him to stop, but the warning was not heeded. At the same time an automobile was passing and the boy called the attention of the driver to what was taking place. The driver, however, paid no attention, and drove on to Fairville, where he reported the case to Police man Lawson, who was unable to do anything. "Some parents don't enter into their children's feelings. They forget they were young once. But the parent should have a children's heart. They should interest themselves in the tastes and bent of their children, and try to make companions of them. It is not enough to point the way. They should lead the children there. Only so can they prevent the development of an irreparable gulf between themselves and their children."

SAYS WE DON'T NEED THE SUNDAY MAILS

Secretary of Lord's Day Alliance Declares Proposed Opening of Post Office on Sabbath is Unnecessary

"The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath." From this text in Mark, 2:27, Mr. Hannah, travelling secretary for the Lord's Day Alliance, explained to a Centenary congregation last evening the aims and methods of the alliance in Canada. After showing that Sunday was an institution appointed to give opportunity for rest to body, mind and soul, he said that one purpose of the alliance was to preserve the Sabbath. By its efforts the present Lord's Day law was passed and is being more closely observed. The law has brought order as good as that of Winnipeg into the Yukon and Dawson City, where formerly disorder and tumult reigned.

Referring to the recent action of the postoffice department in opening, or attempting to open the St. John postoffice, Mr. Hannah said that in the west on account of the springing up of new and thinly settled districts, post offices had been kept open on Sunday. The alliance however, seeing the extra tax it put on all postmen and mailmen, and the loss of the mail service from Manitoba to the Pacific coast only those offices situated in the sparsely populated far north remain open. It had been claimed that convenience and necessity demanded Sunday mail service at St. John. "Why is it then," he said, "that Toronto and Montreal, cities of over a quarter of a million population, do not demand it?" Mr. Hannah said further that in his opinion, policemen and fishermen should obtain rest on the Lord's Day. The alliance had secured so far the freedom from toll for 24 hours in the week of 100,000 toilers out of 150,000 who had had to work the whole seven days, and were gradually working toward setting free the rest.

"The methods of the alliance," said the speaker, "have frequently been bitterly complained of on the ground of their severity. The real case was quite different. Of those reported to central office, 98 per cent. were settled by correspondence, only 2 by force. These 2 per cent. consisted mostly of corporations, impelled by greed. Yet they were all given a fair chance before the law was called in. The alliance was rather too lenient than otherwise. The speaker closed with the statement that in the matter of whether the day of rest was ready Saturday or Sunday, they could provide full proof to those who would apply for it as to its occurring on Sunday.

Mr. Hannah preached in the Victoria street church in the morning and in Carleton Methodist in the afternoon.

BIG SCHEMES A'FLOAT FOR THE LABOR MEN

$20,000 To Be Spent in Organizing Workers in Maritime Provinces--Organizers To Be Brought Here.

Whether it may be regarded as one of the signs of the renaissance of the Maritime Provinces, or merely as an evidence that the workers are alarmed over the steady increase of the cost of living, the unrest in labor circles is not without significance. Agitation and organization is the order of the day, a fact which seems to indicate that the workers of the Maritime Provinces are waking up to the advisability of playing a part in the world-wide movement of labor today. Although in Nova Scotia the political labor movement has made considerable strides recently, in New Brunswick trade unionism has only recently begun to receive much attention. But apparently the workers here have caught the contagion of the new ambition inspired by the success of organized labor in the Mother Country, the Australian colonies, and different parts of Canada.

Men in the councils of the International trade union movement have reported that conditions are ripe for the successful prosecution of a big organizing campaign in the Maritime Provinces. Over $20,000 has been voted for carrying on organizing work in these provinces, and next winter the best labor organizers in Canada will be put into the field. "No doubt, one result of the effort to strengthen the labor movement in these provinces will be to induce the employers to form associations on their own account," said a local labor official yesterday. "Since the St. John Building Trades Council was organized the contractors have been talking of forming a Builders' Exchange. Probably organization will be as advantageous to them as it is to us, and in any case we can view with complacency of our employers with complacency. The more organization we have the better it is likely to be for the community."
