TRUE TRAITS OF TECUMSER

Dr. Holmes Pays Eulogistic Tribute to the Memory of the Indian Chieftain.

Story of the Last Etand-The Eve of the Battle-His Monument to be Built.

There is perhaps, no gentleman in Mfg. Co., Detroit, is spending Saturday and Sunday, with his parents, Mr. he Maple City better versed in the history and legends of Tecumseh than Dr. T. K. Holmes, who bears the brave Indian's name. Dr, Holmes was called upon, some three years ago, to prepare the data for an American Work upon the subject, published by the Wisconsin Historical Society.

In an interview with The Planet upon the proposal to erect the Tecum-seb monument Dr. Holmes said :-Roy Chrysler gave a birthday party continent, Tecumsen had no superior. o a number of his friends last even-Among the Indian celebrities of this alone on his character as a military leader, for he was a wenderful organizer and his whole career was marked by a nobleness of Character Thos. Guttridge was an early caller at The Planet to-day. Shortly after but especially to every considerable to every patriotic citizen of the Empire, but especially to every Constitution of the Empire, but especially the experiments and the experiments are also as a superimental experiments. but especially to every Canadian land he defended and on whose soil he seven o'clock, when passing on his re-turn from the Lighthouse, he was fell. About twenty-five years ago I called in and exhibited eighty fine was asked by the President of the Hissuch information regarding Tecumsch as could be obtained hereabout, and The Trusts and Guarantee Com-pany, Limited, 14 King Street West, Toronto, have been appointed admin-oldest inhabitants of the county, but found that aside from the late Daniel Field and my own father, that little could be learned beyond what had been recorded in history. At the time of the Battle of the Thames my father was fifteen years old and was living on lot 23 in the first concession of the Township of Harwich.

The might before the battle Tecumseh and his braves encamped at Arnold's mill, about a mile east of Kent Bridges on the grather ideas. Kent Bridge, on the south side of the river Thames, and my father, with some of his companions, visited the locality early in the morning before the Indian warners began their march eastward. To the inhabitants for many miles about the mill was of great importance, as being their only means of obtaining flour, and to prevent its being burned by any of his men Tecumsch remained until they had moved well on the way, when he mounted his horse and galloped after them. My father described the Chief as being of medium height, well built, handsome face and noble bearing. He was dressed in the award bushelic. He was dressed in the usual buckskin leggins and an upper garment reachwaist by an ornamented belt. His head dress was a kind of turban, or-namented with feathers. The band crossed to the north side of the river short distance above Arnold's mill and, as is well known, made a stand at a place about two miles east of Thamesville, where the road was flanked on one side by the river and on the other by an almost impassable swamp, and it was here that he fell while heroically leading his men in the thick of the fight.

On the day before the battle General Harrison and his suite called at my grandfather's and asked for refreshments, observing the utmost courtesy and offering to pay for whatever was furnished them.

It would indeed be no more than an act of justice for Canadians to show their regard for this great man and their appreciation of his heroic defense of the country by erecting a monument to his memory, and it is impossible to doubt that both the Dominion and Provincial Governments would aid in so laudable an undertak-ing if the matter were brought before them. The Macaulay Club, which has been so active in cultivating the literary taste of those who have been so fortunate as to be active members, have added to the debt that Chatham and the county owe it by bringing this subject before the public, and it s pleasing to know that the local pa-pers have so warmly and heartily advocated the aims of the Historical Society. The monument should be one that would be worthy the dead hero and a credit to those who erect it.

COAT COVERED MUCH TROUBLE

But its Partial Distr bution Caus ed Many Family Differences.

A Police Court Case Has Resulted and Judge Houston Will Seek to Solve

Criminal Intent. Some coats are made with box pleats and some are made plain. Some coats are just made and some coats are made in style. Some coats are made to order and some coats are ready made, And again there is a coat that made trouble in a family and re sluted in the airing of that trouble in the police court. Wrote a village philosopher one day as he watched a tailor industriously sewing away-"The coat doesn't make the man, but the man makes the coat. In the coat case that occupied the attention of Judge Houston this morning, the man takes the coat of his brother-in-law and the Judge is called on to decide whether it was by accident or design. There are many different kinds of coats, including dress coats over coats, petticoats and coats of paint, but this particular coat was described as "an overcoat," "an old coat," "one father had." The defendant claimed that the coat wasn' worth more than fifty cents and had his claim allowed. Alex. Cunningham charged his brother-in-law. John Faubert, with stealing an overcoat, the property of the complainant. Cunningham and his wife testified that Faubert had left their house last Monday, and the coat had gone with him. The garment had belonged to Cunningham's father. Fau-bert had been living with his sister and her husband. He claimed that the coat had been wrapped up with the bed clothes and he had rolled all in a fourdle and carried the coat away, not knowing it was with the bed clothes. The bed clothes belonged to Faubert, and he took them out to his brother's place in Chatham township He found his brother-in-law's family heirloom on Tuesday, and had intended to re-turn it when he came to town on Saturday. Unfortunately, however, another brother wanted patches for his pants and seeing the coat, divorced the tails and used them to renew the seat of his trousers, Judge Houston desired to hear the story of the brother, who had cut the coat, so he tadjourned the case till Monday, releasing the prisoner on his own recognizances for $100. The judge ordered the appearance of the tailless coat and the brother who had been so shy a necessary part of his apparel that he had to separate the tails and the body of the coat.
