Non Jury Cases are Being Dealt With by his Lordship, Mr. Justice Street.

Bechard vs. Canten was the first case tried before Justice Street at the High Court yesterday afternoon. The defendant did not appear, however, so after proving his case the judgment was given to Mr. Rankin, who appeared for the plaintiff for $1,092.80 and costs. The defendant's counter claim for $2,500 was dismissed with

The next case, that of Coates vs. Snow, was an action brought by Mr. Coates, who is a farm laborer, to recover the sum of $595, balance alleged to be due from his employer Mr. Snow. Judgment was given to the plaintiff for $382 and costs. John Walker, K. C., for the plaintiff and J. B. Rankin, K. C., for the defend-

The case of Scott vs. Buck was referred to the local masters. This was a case brought by the executors of the estate of the late C. W. Knight compel the defendant to allow the to compel the defendant to allow the plaintiff to redeem certain mort-gages and is a purely technical matter. M. Wilson, K. C., and F. Smith appeared for the plaintiff and G. A. Sayer for the defendant.

The case of Stevens vs. Chatham an action for damages, was then commenced and was still in progress this morning.

On the 11th of March, 1900, Mrs.

Stevens, who lives near Judge Bell's residence, was walking to church and when going past the residence of J.
M. Pike on Maurray street slipped and fell on the sidewalk. She received serious injuries to her hip and was confined in the hospital for fourteen weeks, and ever since that time has been Eterally a cripple and now has to use a crutch in order to move around the house.

At this point the Court adjourned until 9.15 this morning.

MISTRESS NELL.

Special scenery, costumes and 'properties, together with a remarkably well balanced company will present "Mistress Nell," Geo. C. Hazelton's merry play, at the Grand next Thursday might. Net in many care has Not in many years has day night. Not in many years has there been recorded a success equal to that of Mistress Nell, and it will mot be strange therefore, if the local theatre is crowded to the doors when this very excellent play is offered as the attraction. Mistress Nell is deserving of a crowded house, and very little need be said regarding its success for undoubtedly everyone had read of it in the magazines and daily newspapers. It is probable that more has been written and printed about "Mistress Nell" than of any other play ever pro-

Few theatrical companies have ever played in Chatham who have left the impression that Mr. Reeves-Smith and his excellent company of high class artists when they visited our city early in September last.

Many of our regular patrons were absent from the city and others who were unable to attend were so anxious to see this high class performance that an effort was made on the part of the management to secure the return of this excellent company, and the result will be hailed with delight by those who have been so anxious so long for their return, as the management has secured the attraction for Monday, Possibly no attraction that ever welcomed than was the reception ac corded Mr. Reeves-Smith with his admirable company when they played here in September last.

The attraction is of such high order that the patrons of the theatre were quick to appreciate its value and the desire on the part of those who were unfortunate in not having witnessed the program was so great and the management received so many requests for a return engagement, that an effort was made to secure the same. While at first the | outlook was hopeless, as the company were booked for California, the ceaseless efforts on the part of the management, secured a change in the dates of this attraction and it is with the greatest pleasure that he announces to his patrons that once more will they have the pleasure of witnessing Mr. Reeves-Smith and his charming company in that beautiful comedy a Brace of Partridges.

The attraction will play at the Grand Opera House, on Monday, Nov. 25, for one performance only.
