HAVE YOU BEEN IN THIS FIX?

If You Have Kept a Box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets for Reference—They Always Bring Relief.

How often after eating something that did not agree with you have you ransacked the house for something to give you relief. Of course you did not fear any serious results, but the discomfort was such that you were prepared to give anything in reason or out of reason just to feel at rest for a moment.

"Do you know that one or two of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets was the very thing you were looking for? If you don't, ask anybody who has ever used them, and they will tell you. Listen to what Mr. R. Jancowski, Postmaster at Passerion, Ont., says: 'I have given Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets a fair trial, and can with every confidence recommend them. I generally use only half a tablet after eating, and it never fails to give me relief.'

If you would eat what you like, when you like, use Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Sandy's Initiation.

A Scottish gillie was invited by the laird to take a pull at his flask after gaffing the first fish of the day.

"I canna drink out a bottle," protested the gillie, with a frown of disapproval.

"Aweel, try, Sandy," said the laird encouragingly. And Sandy tried—tried so thoroughly that the laird gazed in mingled awe and admiration at the whisky gurgled and gurgled out of the flask down the swartzy throat until, with scarce a heel tap left in it, the "pocket pistol" was handed back to the owner.

"Hoot, Sandy, maybe ye were richt; maybe ye canna drink out a bottle," gasped the laird, with a mighty sigh, "but eh, mon, ye'd soon learn!"

$100 REWARD $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh of the Bladder. Catarrh is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Catarrh of the Bladder is taken internally, acting directly upon the mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars to any one who can cure a case of Catarrh of the Bladder by the use of their medicine. Send for list of testimonials.

Benefits of Proper Breathing.

The habit of slow measured, deep breathing that covers the entire lung surface is of more value and importance than you will ever believe until you have tried it, and when you have established the habit of breathing in this manner you will say some remarkable things in its favor. It will reach all points of your physical system. All the benefits that occur from a healthy condition of the blood will in a greater or less degree be yours, for the manner and completeness with which the blood in the lungs are in contact with the blood in the lungs are of the utmost importance to every vital process.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

WATER IN YOUR BLOOD.

Lots of people have thin, watery blood, and they don't know it. When digestion is poor, food isn't converted into nourishment, in consequence the body rapidly loses strength. To positively renew health, nothing equals Ferrero's. It excites sharp appetite, makes the stomach digest, forms life sustaining blood. Abundant strength is sure to follow. If you need more vitality, extra energy, better nerves, then use Ferrero's, the medical triumph of the age. Fifty cents buys a box of fifty chocolate coated Ferrero's tablets.

No girl ever learns much at school after she begins to press in her book the flowers the boys gave her.

In some of the Swiss valleys the inhabitants are all afflicted with goitre or "thick neck." Instead of regarding this as a deformity they seem to think it a natural feature of physical development, and tourists passing through the valleys are sometimes pestered by the goitrous inhabitants, because they are without the offensive swelling. Thus a form of disease may become so common that it is regarded as a natural and necessary condition of life. It is so, to a large extent, with what are called diseases of women. Every woman suffers more or less from irregularity, ulceration, debilitating drains, or female weakness, and this suffering is so common and so universal that many women accept it as a condition natural and necessary to their sex. But it is a condition as unnatural as it is unnecessary. The use of Dr. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and healthy.

Every time a man smiles, and much more when he laughs, it adds something to his fragment of life.

THE LARGEST DIAMOND

ONE WEIGHING OVER 25 OZ. FOUND IN SOUTH AFRICAN MINE.

Nearly Double the Size of the Braganza Diamond Found in Brazil During the Eighteenth Century—The Famous Kohinoor, Which is Said to Have a History Dating Back 3,000 Years B.C.—Other Noted Stones.

A Johannesburg correspondent on the 28th Jan., 1905, telegraphed the news that a diamond weighing 3,000 carats had been found in one of the mines. As he says, this is by far the largest diamond ever mined, and its value may surpass that of the most famous jewel in the world, although it remains to be seen how successfully it will withstand the ordeal of cutting. The despatch goes on to say: "The largest rough diamond hitherto found was in Brazil in the 18th century. It weighed 1,880 carats, or 14 ounces, was sent to the court of Portugal, to which nation Brazil then belonged, and was variously valued by experts at way up to the millions. But it turned out to be worth only $2,000,000, as it was not brilliant."

The Braganza Diamond.

The words "only $2,000,000" will strike the reader as humorous, for as a matter of fact, no diamond ever sold for any such price, nor can any be said to be worth a million dollars. At the same time $2,000,000 would not buy the Kohinoor, nor would it buy one of the historic stones in Westminster Abbey. This famous Portuguese stone is known as the Braganza diamond, and no one knows just what it is. When it was found in Brazil the diamond dealers of that country estimated its worth at $1,395,000,000. There is no reason why they should have shrunk from adding a few more ciphers to this figure, but the probability is that $395 more nearly represents what the stone would bring at auction. It is supposed to be a brilliant cut, but the Portuguese Government refuses to permit any expert to examine it. Therefore diamond dealers draw their own conclusions, and they are not favorable to the genuineness of the celebrated Braganza stone.

The Famous Kohinoor.

Probably the most famous diamond in the world is the Kohinoor, now in the British crown. It is nominally valued at $700,000, but it is worth not so much for its size as for its marvelous purity, and interesting for its historic associations. This diamond, like all the most beautiful stones in the world, has a history dating back 3,000 years B.C. Certainly its movements from 56 B.C. are known, and a detailed account of its vicissitudes would fill a book. It was the cause of many murders, and was, altogether, the vilest political issue of its day. Originally owned by an Indian potentate, it fell into the hands of a Persian monarch. At his death, the stone was taken away at his death, and nestled his wishes, but the Grand Treasurer refused to recognize the signal, and it remained in Persia for many centuries. Later on it found its way to India, and was confiscated by the Lahore treasury in 1849 by the British Government, on high moral grounds. On June 3, 1850, the famous stone was presented, in its rough state, to about 1,000 people. It was of irregular shape, and somewhat marred by fissures, and after serious consideration it was decided to have it cut by the famous Mr. Coxeter, of Amsterdam. The Duke of Wellington himself put the stone on the cutting wheel, and in 38 days the operation was completed. The cutting was marvellously done, and to-day the Kohinoor is a model of purity and the diamond polisher's art is unrivaled among the world's great jewels.

The Orloff Diamond.

The Orloff diamond, which is the most famous of the Russian royal gems, is set in the czar's scepter. Originally it formed one of the eyes of Brahma's idol in the Temple of Serapheim. Here it was seen by a soldier in one of the French garrisons in India, and by him greatly desired. Pretending to become a convert, he was able to worship before the idol, and seizing a favorable opportunity, he pried out the eye of the god, and made off, after vainly attempting to steal the remaining optic. The thief sold the stone to a captain in the English navy for $10,000, and for five times this sum it passed into the possession of an American dealer, who took it to Russia and offered it for sale to the Empress Catherine. She offered him $400,000 cash, $75,000 a year for the stone, and a patent of nobility for the stone, but he refused, although soon after he sold it to Gregory Orloff, a royal favorite, for these sums, without the title. Gregory soon found an opportunity of presenting the stone to his royal mistress, and thus it found its way into the royal collection, where it perpetuates the name of the obscure artillery officer who became the favorite of a wonderful woman, assassinated a Russian Emperor and founded a dynasty. The Orloff diamond is shaped like the half of an egg, weighs nearly 200 carats, and is thought to have been part of the famous Great Mogul diamond, an Indian stone of the same shape, which weighed 800 carats originally, but through unskillful or too expert cutting, it was reduced to 207 carats. The cutter narrowly escaped with his life from the enraged Indian potentate who owned the Great Mogul.

Some Other Noted Stones.

The French Regent, or Pitt diamond, now in the Louvre, weighed 110 carats in the rough, and was mined near Golconda. It cost $20,000 and two years' work to cut it. Then it was bought by the great Earl of Chatham for $60,000, and by him sold to the Duke of Orleans for $648,000. It was the general opinion that Pitt had stolen the gem, and he found it necessary to use a pamphlet in which he explained how it had come into his possession. After the fall of Louis XVI, the Pitt diamond was guarded by soldiers, and any citizen was permitted to hold it in his hand if he so desired. Napoleon had the stone mounted in a sword, and on one occasion named it. The Sancy is a historic stone, valued at $180,000, and now in Russia. James II. of England once owned it, as did Louis XIV. of France. The Eugenie is another famous diamond, of perfect oval shape, owned by France. The Polar Star and the Shah are noted stones, both owned in Russia, while the famous blue Hope diamond is owned in England and takes its name from the English banker who bought it.

Few Large Diamonds.

In all the world there are only 100 diamonds weighing more than 30 carats, only 20 weighing 100 carats, and only 2 weighing 300 carats. Russia has probably more of these historic gems than any other European country, although the value of the stones in England is much greater than the value of those owned in any other country. There are few great diamonds in America, one of them being the Tiffany diamond, supposed to be worth $1,000,000. But the new Johannesburg stone being put up at auction, we should not be surprised to see some magnate of the United States secure it.

TALKS FOR 317 COLUMNS.

Premier Balfour the Most Loquacious Man in Parliament.

Who are the greatest Parliamentary talkers in England is shown by a booklet compiled in the press gallery of the House of Commons. Prime Minister Balfour heads the list at present.

In the whole Parliament there are only a half dozen men who have talked half as much as Balfour. He spoke 317 newspaper columns during the last session. Austin Chamberlain filled 237, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, 206, the Rt. Hon. George Wyndham, 180, and Alfred Forster, 169. D. Lloyd George's record was 165 columns, and P. Gibson Bowles was nearly as talkative, filling four columns less.

Next in order come Sir Charles Dillke with 143, and the Rt. Hon. Herbert Henry Asquith with 125. Only three others spoke more than 100 columns, even Lord Hugh Cecil contributing but fifty-two columns of talk.

There are many members of the House of Commons whose voices are never heard at all. Henry James Tollerne of Eddisbury declared the other day that he has not spoken once in twenty-four years, and there are others whose voices are heard so seldom that they are not recognized when they do speak.

Four on $10,000 a Year.

How many poor plerghmen throughout the province struggling along on an income that would be scorned by the multitude of mechanics, or even the lowest of the nobility, are told by the Bishop of London with his allowance of $10,000 a year—roughly speaking $50,000, almost equal to the salary of the Governor-General of Canada, that he is unable to make his income meet his expenditures, and reports a deficit in his accounts for the last twelve months of nearly $4,000. Yet this $50,000 only $1,000 more than what the money went. Turning pounds into dollars on the rough 35 rate, his figures show that he had to borrow $25,000 to furnish two houses—one with thirty-two bedrooms, which he was obliged to keep open. The interest charges, including the insurance premium and depreciation, etc., used up $10,000. He keeps eleven house servants and food and wages cost him $10,000. He is not accounted for by the fact that the candidates for ordination boarded with him, and on Saturdays he gave entertainments to working people. Repairs on the house, which he had to pay for, cost $8,000. For the use of four horses, repairs on carriages, etc., almost $8,000 more was consumed. An English paper commenting on his London life, after he was said: "There is a good deal of waste dripping in this fat living, and the whole statement is amazing." If a bachelor bishop was thus unable to make ends meet, what would be the case with a family do.

In the same circumstances? Presumably, in such a case there would be less waste in the household expenses, though there would be more persons to feed and maintain. The Glasgow Herald in noting the statement said: "It is not for us to suggest a cure, but it is conceivable, in view of the storied about the hard labor done by his industrial prelate, that episcopal functions in the Church of England might be better performed if the work and pay were distributed over more, if less dignified, heads."

"Yes, What?"

When John Duke, Lord Coleridge, who is now Lord Chief Justice of England, was a young boy, his father, Sir John Taylor Coleridge, sent him off to a boarding-school after the good old English fashion. Feeling a little anxious over having such a little chap travel alone, his father instructed him to telegraph the one word "yes" upon his safe arrival. The telegram was duly dispatched, and Sir John John was deeply immersed at that time in affairs of State and had forgotten his parting injunction. Therefore he promptly wired back the very natural question: "Yes, what?" It was then that Lord Coleridge's early training revealed itself, and his courtesy which is now far famed came to the front. In answer to his query the mystified parent received the simple answer: "Yes, sir,"—Kansas City Journal.

The Value of Charcoal

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purposes.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system. Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking, or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables. Charcoal effectively clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic. It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh. All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal for medicinal purposes is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in the stomach and bowels, to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some cases a patient preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Hissing in the Theater.

Formerly there was no hissing in the theater. The benevolent audience were content to yawn and fall asleep. The invention of hissing is no older than 1680 and took place at the first representation of "Aspar," a tragedy of Fontenelle, so we are told by the poet Roi in his "Brevet de la Calotte." A farce was produced in Bannister's time under the title of "Fire and Water." "I predict its fate," said Bannister. "What fate?" whispered the anxious author at his side. "What fate?" said Bannister. "Why, what can fire and water produce but a hiss?"

HER SKIN WAS YELLOW.

"I had only to try Dr. Hamilton's Pills to appreciate their merit," writes Miss Annie S. Byrne, of Woodstock. "My system was out of order. My blood was weak and thin. I had a nasty, murky complexion. My skin was hard and dry. The first box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills made complete change. I felt better at once. Healthy color came into my face. In about three weeks I was cured." Dr. Hamilton's Pills effect an easy cure. Try these good pills, 25c. per box, or five boxes for $1.00, at all dealers.

In Light Distress.

A new term was heard the other day. An old lady and her two daughters came into a millinery store. The young women were mourning hats. The old woman went to the clerk: "I want a mourning hat, for I am in mourning. But my sister here," indicating, "is a widow of two years' standing, and she is in light distress. Give her a hat with blue feathers on it."

PROVED IN MOUNT FOREST.

Every doctor in this town tried his best to relieve Mrs. J. Witham, of Asthma. He succeeded. "For years," she states, "I was a dreadful sufferer; nothing gave relief. At times I found it necessary to have all the doors and windows open to get my breath. When in despair I heard of Catarrhine. I used it and now am perfectly cured." This proves beyond doubt that any case of Asthma is curable with Catarrhine. No remedy so pleasant, none so absolutely certain to thoroughly cure. Try Catarrhine yourself; it's guaranteed.

His Apology.

When George III. was crowned king of England the ceremonies were marked by certain blunders for which Lord Effingham, earl marshal, was responsible. Lord Effingham saw at afterward to apologize to the king: "There will be no such blunders at the next coronation, your majesty," said he. King George had a sufficiently strong sense of humor to—

Bearing burdens gracefully does not always come with practice.

MESSRS. C. RICHARDS & CO.

Gent.,—After suffering for seven years with inflammatory rheumatism, so bad that I was eleven months confined to my room, and for two years could not dress myself without help, your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT in May, 1897, and asked me to try it, which I did, and was so well pleased with the results, I procured more. Five bottles completely cured me, and I have had no return of the pain for eighteen months. The above facts are well known to everybody in this village and neighborhood.

Yours gratefully,
