GLOVES

Men Should Wear.

It matters not what occasion a man desires to be gloved for, barring a boxing match, we can do it.

=1= =1=

With England's, France's, and America's best makers' productions piled high on our shelves to help us, we feel confident we can supply men's glove wants quite a little more satisfactorily and for less than any of the other fellows-but the best and surest proof of this is in a trial or by comparison. ### STRUCK TROUBLE

Ben. McKay, a sailor hailing from Goderich, who struck Chatham on a vessel which came up to Piggott's lumber yard the other eay, had a lively and most exciting time on Queen street Wednesday evening, and it is thought he will not soon forget his visit to Chatham.

He started out early in the evening with a few chance acquaintances and it was not long before he was feeling in the best of "spirits." The crowdwas increased with every hotel visited until "Sinbad the Sailor," as he was called by his new friends, had a good sized gathering with him.

All went well for a little while, and everyone was enjoying the fun. Sinbad was a good singer, a fair dancer and could tell a good story. Above all this he had a goodly amount of change rattling in his pocket which he was not backward in spending.

amount of change rattling in his pocket which he was not backward in spending.

At last, when the fun began to wane, one in the party became jealous, and forthwith challenged Sinbad for a duel with fists. Sinbad, who had been most obliging all evening, in a most amiable way offered to accommodate the gentleman. It was then that the gang took the walk down Queen street.

Sinbad was seen half an hour later wending his way past the Garner House—dazer, but soher. A huge swelling adorned each cheek and a long gash was cut in his head, besides other similar injuries.

Jack Smith very kindly took him in hand and washed his face and hands, which were literally covered with blood. Sinbad was an awful wreck and told a pittiful story to Mr. Smith. "Where are your friends?" asked Jack.

"Well, to tell you the truth." said

"Where are your Iriends?" asset Jack.
"Well, to tell you the truth," said Sinbad, with a sickly smile, "I don't think I have any in Chatham. The last lot of fellows I regarded as friends, a few moments ago, were seeing how swift and how often they could reach my face."

RAILWAY JURISDICTION. Senators and Commoners Discuss

Their Differences. Ottawa, Oct. 22.-A conference of representatives of both Houses of Parliament was held in room eight of the Senate to-night. The Common ers and Senators, styled for the occa-

ers and Senators, styled for the occasion "managers," presumably because they help Parliament out of a tangle, marched separately to the meeting. The last conference terminated at 12.45, and Sir Mackenzie Bowell announced that an agreement had been reached in regard to the crossings of or junction with Dominion lines by other railways. The Commons had agreed to accept an amendment reading: "All the provisions of this act relating to railway crossings and junctions, through traffic, offences, penalties and statistics, shall apply to all persons, companies and railways otherwise within the legislative authority of Parliament or not." As to the matter of the right of appeal, Sir Mackenzie said that a difference of opinion still existed and the discussion would be resumed to-morrow.

MR. GAMEY'S DENIAL.

He Says 'Mr. Crossin's Affidavit is Untrue.

Bracebridge, Oct. 22.-Mr. Gamey was in Bracebridge yesterday. He was shown the sworn statement of Mr. Crossin, charging that he had made an effort to induce Mr. Crossin to falsify effort to induce Mr. Crossin to falsify the books of the piane company, and his answer was that the allegations were untrue in every important particular. He denied that he had any conversation with Mr. Crossin on the matter; that he had changed the date of the $900 entry; also that he extracted the leaves containing the damaging evidence from the cash book.
Mr. Gamey charged that Mr. Crossin's last statement did not agree with the latter's evidence before the com-sin's last statement did not agree with the latter's evidence before the commission, and he said it was incomprehensible that Mr. Crossin was able to tell now what he had previously sworn he knew nothing about. Mr. Gamey spoke at Uffington last night, and dealt with the last phase of the question in detail.

LAMBTON PROHIBITIONISTS. Executive Meeting | at Petrolea-

Voters' League-Resolutions.

Petrolea, Oct. 23.—A call was issued by the Executive of the Lambton Prohibition. Association to meet in Petrolea to consider the failure of the Legislature at its last session to grant any measure of advanced temperance legislation and other important business. A good number responded from different parts of the county. W. J. McAlphine, President, occupied the chair, and briefly outlined th object of the meeting. The county was divided for the purpose of more perfect organization. F. S. Spence. Secretary of the Ontario Alliance, was present and explained the object of the Voters' League. This plan of organization was adopted and nearly all present signed the league pledge. A resolution was passed regretting the seeming indifference of the Legislature in not responding in some way to the voice of the 200,000 who poiled their votes for the banishment of the bar on December 1.
