FIRE PREVENTION ON FARMS

As the farmers of the West are continually giving to the world evidences of a progressive spirit in matters relating to their best interests, it may not be amiss to make an appeal for greater interest on the subject of fire prevention. An analysis of reported fires shows that in rural districts sufficient thought has not been given to safety from possible fire and, consequently, adequate precautions are not generally taken in this regard. The peculiar circumstances in which the country finds itself in the fall of 1914 give an added emphasis to the necessity of the conservation of resources. Farmers should sit up and take notice of the fact that fires increase the cost of living, inasmuch as each and every fire means a capital loss, where insurance is carried, which can only be replaced at the cost of the community in general. When insurance is not carried the loss, in the case of the individual owner is direct and absolute and the community suffers indirectly by the destruction of so much productive capital. Elimination of fire waste should be the wish of all. When consideration is given to the fact that the farmer is generally removed at a great distance from his nearest neighbor and help, in case of fire, is a factor of little value, prevention of fires should be the farmer's aim. Another aspect of the case to be considered is that where women and children are so often left alone every human consideration demands the utmost precaution. The great majority of fires are due to carelessness. Here are some suggestions to guard against fires from this cause, put in the form of a pledge, which, if observed, will go far towards lessening the waste of property and the loss of life by the ravages of the fire fiend.

I will not fail to burn all fire breeding rubbish, but I will burn it away from buildings, using every precaution.

I will not keep gasoline or gasoline engines in the barn, but in a separate building.

I will see that ashes are kept in a fireproof receptacle.

I will not go, or permit any in my employ to go, into barns or other buildings with an open light.

I will avoid mistaking gasoline for kerosene by having the gasoline can painted red.

I will keep a supply of water and pails always available for fire protection.

I will not use or permit to be used kerosene in lighting fires.

I will have the chimney flue inspected and cleaned every fall.

I will guard against the danger of overheated stoves.

I will not permit stovepipes near unprotected wood nor suffer them to pass through woodwork without a proper ventilating thimble.

I will not handle gasoline by artificial light.

I will use the same precaution to prevent a fire as I would take if I expected one.

I will act on the principle that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. A little effort to carry out the terms of this simple inexpensive pledge will issue in good results. Will you do your share as an individual to conserve property which represents your time, money and energy and help to make conditions safer for yourself and those you love?

Fire claims an enormous toll in both life and property in this Western land and it is labor well spent to lessen the loss and reduce the hazard. Fire prevention is every person's duty.
