"Oh, What Fun"

THEY SAID

"Oh, What Fun"

CRYED THE OLD MAN

AND THE CHILDREN CLAPPED THEIR HANDS

I HEARD the noise and clatter, the laughter and applause away down the road as I was approaching the old homestead. It was toward dark, just after supper, and, as I neared the house, I saw a big party gathered on the porch and lawn listening to minstrel dialogues, band music—every conceivable kind of vocal and instrumental airs.

And the music came from one of Mr. Edison's new phonographs.

If you have heard only the old style squeaking, rasping instruments you can hardly imagine what a genuinely high-class entertainment those people were having around the porch.

The new model Edisons are so far superior that there is really no comparison. I have known critics of music who have heard only the ordinary talking machines express the greatest surprise upon listening to this special automatic entertainer, the new Edison.

You must hear this remarkable instrument in your own home with your family around you, then you will appreciate why Thomas A. Edison said: "I want to see a Phonograph in every American home."

Not only the children, but the grown folks also find endless delight in the music, songs, the vaudeville, the rag-time, the band pieces; not only the everyday lovers of music, but even the keenest critics are pleased with the reproduction of concert pieces and opera selections. There is fun, amusement and instruction for everybody.

"If my Edison cost me twice as much," said one enthusiastic Edison owner, "I would not give it up. I should let my piano go rather than sacrifice my phonograph. My wife, my children and grandchildren all enjoy it so much, especially these summer evenings when we can sit on the front porch and listen to the concerts."

A Concert At Any Time
