

POLICE ARE UP AGAINST IT

And Demand a New Ordinance to Help Them Out.

No Arrangement Has Been Made for Sale or Disposition of Impounded Stock.

The recently passed ordinance regarding the impounding of stray animals has resulted in placing the police department in rather a peculiar position, inasmuch as it finds itself the custodian of four animals, namely, one mule and three horses, of which it has no means of disposing.

This state of affairs exists by reason of no arrangement having been effected with anyone to act as pound keeper, and the police department, not being a pound keeper has not authority to advertise the animals during the prescribed 12 days, and consequently no legal right to sell them either at public or private sale, or for dog feed as set forth in the ordinance.

The position of pound keeper has been offered to all the livery, feed and sales stables and each in turn have solemnly shaken their heads and passed it up, being afraid that they could not dispose of the stock for enough to pay the feed bill.

And so it happens that the police have a mule and three horses in the stable which have been fed for the past ten days and what to do with them they do not know. They can neither be turned out, killed or sold.

Truly the ways of the law are many and peculiar.

Who is the Old Man?

One of the strongest traits of character of James R. Keene, the Wall street multi-millionaire operator, is his loyalty to his friends. He is said never to forget one when trouble comes. Among his early associates after he came to New York from the West is an elderly man, now broken in health and fortune. Years ago, side by side, they fought the strenuous fight. After one victory came a defeat. The other could not rally, and all that he had was lost—all except Mr. Keene's remembrance. It is said that he receives at regular intervals an income sufficient to relieve his necessities from a "forgotten investment" made with the California broker years ago. Another instance of his staunchness happened not long since. A well-known man "on the street" who had been intimately connected with Mr. Keene and his associates, lost all of his accumulations in an outside venture. He was more than 60 years old, but self-reliant and hopeful. "I think I can endure the Klondike," he said bravely to Mr. Keene. "There is no use hanging around the old scenes."

"Come in and see me tomorrow," replied the millionaire.

That evening Mr. Keene mentioned the sturdy resolve to a group of old friends, and the next day he turned over to the man who was down a sum of money sufficient to defray expenses in the Klondike for two years. "If he strikes luck," said Mr. Keene to his friends, "we'll all be glad and our money will come back. If he fails, we won't regret the money. That show of the right spirit is worth it twice over."

It is two years since then and the latest news from Alaska is that the old prospector has located claims worth something like a quarter of a million dollars and intends paying New York and his friends a visit.—The Saturday Evening Post.

Too Much "Bazoo."

Probably there is no place on earth where there is as little regard for the truth concerning bets and wagers as right in the city of Dawson, where there is an overweening desire to have the reputation of being a highroller. No matter what takes place we at once hear that some well-known character, "Bill So and So," or "Tom Such and Such," won all the way from $500 to $10,000, where in reality, neither Bill nor Tom had had a cent at stake.

Only yesterday an alleged respectable paper devoted its first news column on its first page, the most prominent in it, to a pipe dream regarding a $42,000 loss at back jack, a story which all the tin-horns in town repudiate as the effervescing only of a diseased mind—"bazoo" pure and simple.

Occasionally there are heavy losings and winnings here both in games and as the result of wagers, but nine in every ten cases reported are overdrawn. To say that "Jim" won or lost a large sum of money when everybody who knows "Jim" knows that at no time in the past six months has he had more than the price of a meal ticket on hand at any one time, is incompatible with the deductions from good reasoning and good sense. However, some men, a la Stagnant Water Willie, enjoy the reputation of being high rollers, when, in reality they are half the time guessing where their next dish of beans will come from. The average Dawson gambler's long suit is "bazoo."

Would Hang Himself.

The troubles of Mrs. Mansen, alias a dozen or more other names, nearly culminated in her death last Sunday morning in the prison where she is serving a three years' sentence for the theft of gold dust and nuggets recently from St. Mary's hospital.

Mrs. Mansen impresses those having her in charge as being what would be termed in the apt slang phraseology of the day as a "false alarm." It is known that she did time in Seattle for the theft of diamonds, and that she is a morphine fiend and being what is termed an old timer, but little weight is given to the various statements she is habitually making regarding her unfit physical condition to perform the light labor given her.

She constantly complains of headache and cries and raises a continual fuss.

For these reasons but little attention was paid to her last Sunday morning when she tried, or at least attempted to convey the impression that she had tried to commit suicide by hanging herself to her cell door with a piece of one of her blankets.

Staff Sergeant Cruel was on duty at the time, and hearing a slight rustling accompanied by a gurgling sound coming from behind the curtain of the cell, he raised it and found the prisoner hanging by the neck from a strip of blanket tied to the top of the door. He immediately cut the improvised rope and sent for the matron and Dr. Hurdman, under whose united efforts the prisoner quickly recovered from any effects she may have suffered, although the authorities are of the opinion that it was only a bluff after all.

Engineers Meeting.

A special meeting of the members of the Yukon Engineers' International Association will be held on Sunday at 2 p. m., in their new meeting place, the hall on Third avenue between First and Harper streets. As there is important business to come before the meeting it is desired that all members be present.

Prosperous Fred Giesman.

Fred Giesman, the big young man with the late Crawford peach face, is reported to be the most prosperous as well as the most popular business man of Grand Forks, where he has conducted a meat market for the past year. Lately he has completed and occupied a new stand which is pronounced by those who have seen it to be as fine and commodious as any in the Klondike. A short time ago, Mr. Giesman killed for his winter trade 100 head of Missouri corn-fed cattle which meat he is now retailing to the people of the Forks at Dawson prices. Giesman's market is also headquarters for all kinds of fresh game which is brought to that town in great abundance. So great is Fred's popularity at the Forks that he is prominently spoken of as prospective mayor of the town.

"Doc" Richardson Mushing.

Dr. Richardson left yesterday afternoon for Stewart river to attend one of the C. D. Co.'s mail carriers who is dangerously ill at that point. The doctor has a swift dog team and is accompanied by Louis Cardinal, the crack dog musher of the Yukon.

COMING AND GOING.

Charles Worden, of Eldorado, is in the city for a few days.

J. R. Nicholson, of Hunker creek, is in town on a short business trip.

John C. Davies, of Portland, Oregon, appears as the guest of one of the principal hotels.

The demand for sparkling seltzer water in official circles was quite active this morning.

Tickets for the "go" tomorrow night are on sale at the Club gymnasium and at Reed & Co.'s drug store.

The court room was crowded this morning with people who wanted to hear the Slorah murder trial.

Will anyone knowing anything of the whereabouts of Frank Peteline, of Butte, Montana, kindly leave the information at the town police station.

All A. B. members are requested to be at the camp at 7:30 tomorrow evening, as there is business to transact before the regular work of the meeting comes up.

A gentleman by the name of De Lamar yesterday began the erection of a large building at Grand Forks where it is his intention to conduct a general merchandise store.

The Weather.

The minimum temperature during the 24 hours previous to 9 o'clock this morning was 11 degrees below zero. During the same period the maximum temperature was 20 degrees above zero. At points up the river as far as Selkirk the temperature was the same as that here. From Selkirk on to Bennett it was very much warmer.
