THE HIGH SCHOOL ENTRANCE EXAMI rios will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, the 27th and 28th inst. Candidates usually assemble at 8.45 a, m.

THE EASTER EXAMINATIONS closed in the College yesterday. To-day students go on retreat, which will close Easter Sunday morning.

CROWDED OUT .- Our Port Hood and North Sydney correspondents have our thanks for very interesting news notes, which, as they came to hand somewhat late, we have found it impossible to insert in this issue, as a large amount of matter has had to stand over till next week.

LAND SALE. - The property of the late Michael Duggan, adjoining the glebe lands, of St. Patrick's Parish at Lochaber, which was sold by the adminstrator of the estate on Monday last, has been purchased by the parish, with a view to providing for a resident priest, which they hope to have before many years.

ENTERTAINMENT. - We are in receipt of a neatly printed book on "British Sports," the author of which, Mr. Walter Leigh, of London, Eng., and Halifax, N. S., is to give an entertainment consisting of reading and recitations from the best authors, on Monday evening in McDonald's Hall.

MAGIC LANTERN VIEWS. - Mr. Alexander McDonald, painter, during the winter employed his leisure hours taking photographic views of many of the streets of the Town. He now has in operation a magic lantern, with which he hopes soon to give the public an exhibition of local scenery.

Ligtor Cases .- Mr. Gregory applied to Judge Weatherbe last week for writs of certiorari in several liquor cases. The Judge reserved his decision until the 18th inst., when the full Court gives a decision in the Queen vs. Adam, a Digby County case, upon which the others turn. In any event we understand the town pays no 106 to 62. On Friday Sir John Thompson costs other than a retainer to their own counsel on the argument.

INQUEST. - The Coroner's jury in the case of Miss Annie Grant, who died from injuries received on the 1st inst., returned the following verdict:

"That the said Annie Grant came to ber death at Antigonish on the 4th instant, from fracture of the scull, caused by having been run over by a horse and truck waggon in charge of one John McPherson; and we find that the said John McPherson did not exercise sufficient care in securing or hold-ing said horse until the departure of the which at that time was about leaving

PAINFUL ACCIDENT. - A correspondent

from Beaver Meadow writes : A very painful accident befell Alex. D. McDonald, an industrious young man of this place, while felling trees in the woods about two miles from his home on Monday; 4th inst. He was making way for the fall 4th inst. He was making way for the fall of a tree, which had caught in another; and, when clearing himself as the tree was falling, was struck on the leg by the trunk which swung sud-lenly around. Fortunately for Mr. McDonald, there was a neighbor of his working in the woods with him that day, who procured assistance, and had the injured man placed on a sleigh and carried home and a doctor sentfor. Dr. Cameron soon arrived, and found that the leg was soon arrived, and found that the leg was badly bruised and broken. The fractured limb was bound up, and we hope to see our friend moving about as usual in a short

COUNTY OF ANTIGONISH. NO. XXXVI.

The District of Lochaber Lake. About 13 miles from the town of Anti-About 13 miles from the town of Antigonish the traveller on the road to St. Mary's and Sherbrooke enters the Lochaber Glen near the head of the lake of that name. In the early days of the Province the Government of the day set apart some 5000 acres of land in the neighbourhood of the lake for the benefit of King's College, Nova Scotia, and from this circumstance the lake was originally called College Lake. The first settlers at the head of the lake were natives of Loghaber in the Highlands of Scotland,

The early Catholic settlers at the lake were a few emigrants from Ireland—Sears, Hannifans, Duggans, Walls, Clearys, Moores, Murphys, Martins, Carrolls and Connors. Ned McGinley, the first Irish settler at the lake, was a man-of-war-sailor. When his ship approached the southern coast of Nova Scotia, Ned made a dash for liberty, immed overboard, and swam and they called their new home Lochador in honor of their native place.

Lovers of natural scenery who in the summer season visit the place are enchanted by the graceful features of the landscape of water and land, of hill and forest. The unfurrowed face of this beautiful body of water, bordered by fine farms and comfortable homesteads, strikes one as a fit spot for the scenes of romance and petry. The lake is about six miles long and from 40 to 120 rods wide; its shores are wholly free from rocks, and their gravel is as fine as that of the sea shore. Its water is almost as pure as spring water and of great depth. There is a good road all around the lake fringed with the green foliage of low alder bushes. ### Tracadie Notes.

During the past four or five weeks death has been very busy in removing from our midst many well-known faces. Among them there was none so widely known nor so universally esteemen as Edward Gorman, of Afton, who died on March 30. His character was one which his family and relations are proud of. A great mathematican, a good schoar, and a shrewd business man, be had these qualities under the garb of humility. charity to the poor was unbounded. Wood and provisions would be lavish upon them with no miser's hand. Many times has he been known to leave his home before daybreak with a load of wood for some poor widow or other deserving person and after depositing it at the door to return without waiting to receive the thanks of the receipient. The poor will miss him very much; the church has lost an ordent and frithful follower, society is bereft of a good member, and we all extens to Mrs. Gorman and family our condolence in this their great bereavement.
