DOES IT COME UNDER THE CODE! When the license commissioners granted Mrs. Bechard a license for the Aberdeen they put in the extraordinary condition that she must not sell any Walkerville beer. Now, the Walkerville company make good beer and most people prefer it to other brands. Under these circumstances the Walkerville Brewing Company concluded that but for the action of the commissioners, the Aberdeen would the commissioners, the Aberdeen would sell their beer. There is a clause in the criminal code imposing penalties against those who conspire to injure or ruin another's business. The com-pany came to the conclusion that this covered the case, and they have had a detective in town gathering evidence with the view of a prosecution. The Planet asked the commissioners about the matter, and they said that such a condition certainly had been made, and was on the minutes. They alleged as the reason that officials of the company had tried to influence them in favor of granting a license, even threatening to appeal to the govern-ment over their heads. What the outcome of the case will be it is hard

Russia Wants to Land a Large Force of Troops but Japan is Jealous and Threatens War.

Shanghai, June 7.— In consequence of the representations of Japan, the landing of a large Russian force at Taku is alleged to have been stopped. It is believed here that should Russia persist in sending a preponderant military force to the front a collision with Japan would inevitably result.

Alarming reports are current here the hurried completion of the mo-lization of the Japanese fleet. The Russian minister at Pekin, M.

de Giers, has made another attempt to induce the Chinese foreign office (Tsung-Li-Yamen) to formally request Russian assistance to restore order. But the offer has not yet been Violent dissensions are reported to exist between the Chinese command-er-in-chief of the forces, Jung-Iu, and Prince Ching-Tuan, who, in accordance with the wishes of the Dowager Empress, is strongly supporting the case of the Boxers.

The mobs who murdered the English missionaries, Robinson and Norman nan, have since mutilated and dis-emboweled the bodies.

The station at Yan-Ting, three miles from Pekin, has been burned.
The British minister, Sir Claude M. Macdonald, is reported to be quite ill.

Foreign representatives are sending their families away from Pekin in anticipation of serious trouble.

.A NOVEL IDEA.

(Montreal Witness, May 30, 1900.) Mrs. Egerton, an English lady, who did nursing work in Dawson City, carried out an original idea in London, which greatly gratified the C. P. R. people. Mrs. Egerton had been much struck by the scenery along the line of the C. P. R., as well as with the service which the company rendered across the continent, and she deter-mined to let the folk in England know something about both. For this purpose she availed herself of a fancy ball at Covent Garden, to appear in a costume which took the first prize for lian scenery and the C. P. R. in highly striking manner. The lady's hat was trimmed in a manner to show the G. P. R. trains in motion; her the G. P. R. trains in motion; her cape set forth Lake Ontario, Lake Superior and the Rocky Mountains, while the front of her dress showed a train rushing at full speed through the wonderful ravines in the far Northwest. In the lady's hand was a banner which contained the coats of arms of the several Provinces countil arms of the several Provinces const tuting the Dominion. The tout en-semble, as the London press remarked at the time, was wonderfully striking and impressive and gave at a glance an idea of a country of which Londoners, previous to the jubilee, knew very little. Mrs. Egenton, as Mr. Baker. e C. P. R. agent in London, pointed t, did all this "off her own bat," d solely with the patriotic view of king Canada known: The lady is ming out again, probably this sum coming out again, propany this sum-mer, when she will make an extended tour of the country. Photographs of Mrs. Egerton in her unique costume are at the general offices of the C.

ANOTHER CASE OF CRUELTY CURED.

A prominent East End citizen has written The Planet commending the work of Humane Officer Henry Dag-neau, and calls on all good citizens to aid him. He tells of one case he has been watching himself. A frightfully abused and half starved team of horsabused and half starved team of horses, kept by a man near him, looked as if they would die almost any time. The Humane Officer dropped in, told the owner the horses would have to be better treated and fed, and promised to visit them occasionally. If he didn't see a marked change soon a roller court case would follow. Now police court case would follow. Now, says the East Ender, you wouldn't know the team, they are looking so well. The owner of this team would work them all the morning and drive home and tie them in front while he eat his dinner. Then he would sit on the verandah and smoke awhile. Finally he would drive off to his after-noon's work without giving them eith-er food or water. But Henry Dagneau has changed all this.

HE CAME BACK RICH.

Joseph G. Thibodeau returned on Tues day from the west after an absence of eight years Mr. Thibodeau is one of the wealthiest men in Dover where he owns two tine farms. In 1892, Mr. Thibodeau decided to take a trip west and see the western country. He was not idle while he was away take a trip west and see the western country. He was not idle while he was away and his pockets were more heavily laden with gold on his return than they were before he went away Mr Thibodeau went from Chatham to California, and afterwards to Washington territory where he put in two years. When the Rossland, B. C., mining boom was at its height, he went to that mining district where he has since resided being foreman in one of the mines. He, however, desired to see his home again. He, however, desired to see his h and he has returned for good.

My son, when he was six weeks old, had a breaking out on the top of his head. It spread all over his head, and then his arms broke out from shoulder to wrist. Around his body and nound his legs from his knees to his ankles, was a solid scab. My family doctor treated him for eighteen months, but no good was accomplished. I tried four more, and then a medical college in & Leuis six months. No good yet. Spent not less than a thousand dollars in money and time. Old Mr. Barney Chap insisted on my trying Curt., cura remedies, telling me he had a spell like my child's himself. By the time my wife had used the Curicura (oinment) up, he began to improve and got so he could sleep short nape, and gave me and wife some rest. Thank the Lord, he is well now, fat, hearty, and stout as any boy, after six long years of itching, crying, and worrying. Curturna remedies cured him.

A cynical woman says that when man breaks his heart it is the same as when a lobster breaks one of his claws —another sprouts immediately and grows in its place.

Ghosts would frighten many people who are not afraid of germs. Yet the germ is a real danger. If this micro-scopic animalism could be magnified a size in proportion to its deadliness it would show like a giant py-thon, or fire breathing dragon. The one fact to remember is that the germ is powerless to harm the body when the blood is pure. It is far easier to keep the germ out than to drive it out after it obtains a hold in the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most powerful and perfect of purifying medicines. It increases the quantity as well as the quality of the blood, and enables the body to resist disease, or to throw it off if disease has obtained a footing in some weak organ. Wherever the digestion is impaired, the nutrition of the body is dim nished, for the blood is made from the food which is eaten, and half digested food cannot supply the body with blood in quantity and quality adequate to its needs. For this conadequate to its needs. For this condition there is no remedy equal to "Golden Medical Discovery." It cures ninety-eight out of every hundred persons who give it a fair trial. When there is constitution, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will promptly relieve and permanently cure.

SHEEP AND STEERS.

Changes In Range Conditions In the While the cattle business under the influence of an increase in values is without doubt in a prosperous condition, it must be admitted that its ancient glory has passed away, says a correspondent of The Breeder's Gazette. The railroads, the homesteader, the irrigating ditch and the constantly rising tide of emigration are rapidly destroying the better parts of those great public ranges which once furnished sustenance for millions of head of cattle and large profits to the cattle baron. During the reign of the golder. era the great plains offered an almost limitless expanse of grazing room, and, though the common domain might be designated as a desert, it was thickly interspersed with oases which never left the wandering herds, without abundant reserves of food, save when an unusually severe winter buried even the tallest grass beneath a mass of thickly crusted snow. Then it was that thousands of head starved to death, and their bones still whiten billside and plain. But these occasional losses mattered not to the cattle baron, for the natural increase of his herds, the nominal cost of grazing them and the high price of beef made them of little consequence in the casting up of accounts one year taken with another.

But these richer pasture lands, lying as they did along the alluvial valleys were the very ones to be taken up by the settler, and railroads, too, have a peculiar weakness for skirting the river lands, laying off tempting town sites and offering unusual inducements for the incoming of the thrifty emigrant. So the great ranges have been broken up, and the terds perforce have been pushed back apon what might from a purely agricultural standpoint be classified as waste lands. Even these in many instances are of a limited extent and are not calculated to furnish a substantial and unvarying supply of forage when an occasional drought, followed by a hard winter, is taken into account. As a consequence the big herds have been cut up into small ones, cattlemen are securing deeded lands, which are being fenced and the bottom lands turned into hayfields to supply hay for winter feeding, while many of the old rangemen are turning their attention to feeding beef for the market.

Hinnies.

The cross of a jack on a mare produces the hybrid known as a mule, and the product of the reverse cross (a rare one) of the horse on the jennet is known as a hinney. A very interesting illustration is presented in The Breeder's Gazette of a pair of hinnies. The predominant influence of the sire is clearly seen in these two hybrid crosses. The mule always reveals in head and ears the characteristics of the jack, while the hinney takes after the horse in this respect. The sire of the hinnies is a pure bred Shetland pony, a bay, weighing 500 pounds and bred from stock that came from Woodburn farm, in Kentucky, and the dam is a Mexican jennet. One is a black yearling weighing 420 pounds and the other a 2-year-old weighing 544 pounds. The breeder of these curiosities-for they are little if anything less than that, so rare is the cross of the stallion on the jennet-is W. C. Meyer, Ashland, Or., and he states that they are the only ones of such breeding on the northwest coast. They are broken to harness and he writes that they show a kind disposition and good action and prom ise to make a fine family pair. Bone Dust In Stock Raising. Bone dust, known commercially as "poudre d'os verts," used in feeding experiments, is made from bone dried in the open air and not heated chemically. In a feeding experiment with this a calf about 51/2 months old was given a daily ration of about 11/2 pounds of skimmilk, 31/2 pounds of oats, 31/4 pounds of hay and 3 pounds of mangles. On this ration it increased nearly 50 pounds in 24 days. To the ration were then added about four ounces daily of bone powder, and in the next 24 days the calf increased in weight 80 pounds, a gain of 30 pounds in 24 days obtained without change of ration beyond the addition of a total of 51/2 pounds of bone powder, which cost 31/2 cents. The bone dust is said to promote digestion and assimilation of the food and to favor the formation of flesh and fat.—Philadelphia Ledger.
