MUNYON'S GUARANTEE.

Darkness before Dawn.

By the Author of "Madge Merry-on's Dream," etc. I admit the somnolence, my fair inquirer. The dog is getting dangerous; he is uncertain in his temper, and unfit for a lady's pet. I am sorry only in that I did not succeed; he occupied me, I regret to say. See here, Esther—I will bring you one of the most perfect of King Charles pups—I will indeed—tomorrow if possible. There, what do you say to the prospect? "I will not have it!" exclaimed Esther, with a dangerous look in her eyes. "Let me go, Mr. Besant! She struggled to release her hands; but he only drew her nearer to him. "Will you leave me before I call my uncle?" He cannot refuse to protect me from your cruelty. "Don't make too sure of that!" returned her persecutor ironically. "Your uncle is a sensible man; he knows and approves of my intention to make you my wife!" "In that case I shall apply to Mr. Besant to intercede. I hoped you would have spared me the necessity. "By what right does Mr. John Besant constitute himself your champion?" sneered Besant. "By the right that a man has to protect his future wife!" replied Esmeralda, raising her eyes proudly to his. "Now let me go, Mr. Besant!" She wrenched herself from him. "Do you mean to tell me that you are engaged to that penniless vagabond?" he said, barring her retreat. "I shall never be, I swear it! Tell me, is it true, or are you playing off some of your girlish pranks upon me?" "I should not think of joking on such a subject," said Esmeralda. "I am engaged to John Besant, and I mean to marry him despite all the opposition that can be brought to bear upon me!" As she spoke she darted past him and entered the kitchen. Besant did not follow her, as she had half feared he would. She heard him going in the direction of the west wing, and she felt something akin to fear when she thought of Mr. Grimwade's wrath when he heard Besant's version of the story. Meanwhile Besant took himself to the laboratory, where, as usual, Mr. Grimwade was immersed in scientific research. "Ah, Besant!" he said, without looking up from his occupation. "glad to see you! I'm going to have supper up here to-night; you'll stay and have something with me, won't you?" "I don't know whether to discharge that new boy or raise his salary," said Besant. "What has he been doing?" "Boss—He rashed in my private office this morning and told me there was a man downstairs who would like to see me." "Boss—Who was it?" "Boss—A blind man." "MINARD'S LINIMENT cures Burns, etc." "PUZZLED. Pearl—Our minister has been standing in front of that store for the last hour. I wonder if he is waiting for any one." "Boss—No; he just told me two things this morning. Pearl—Matrimonial knots. He is trying to remember what his wife put them there for." "MINARD'S LINIMENT relieves Neuralgia." "Way don't you about long live the general?" "It is quite needless, answered the Filipino. Any man as cautious about his personal safety as the general doesn't need any encouragement in the longevity line. "To Cure a Headache in ten minutes use Kumford Headache Powder. At E. 20 YEARS TORTURE.

A Belleville Lady, Whom Doctors Failed to Help, Cured at Last by Doan's Kidney Pills. No one who has not suffered from kidney disease can imagine the terrible torture those endure who are the victims of some disorder of these delicate filters of the body. Mrs. Richard Ross, a well-known and highly respected lady of Belleville, Ont. had to bear the burden of kidney complaint for over 20 years and now Doan's Kidney Pills have cured her when all else failed. Her husband made the following statement of her case: "For 20 years my wife has been a sufferer from pain in the back, sleeplessness and nervousness and general prostration. Nothing seemed to help her. Doctors and medicines all failed, until we got a ray of hope when we saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised as a positive cure. "She began to take them and they helped her right away, and she is now better in every respect. We can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all sufferers, for they seem to strike the right spot quickly, and their action is not only quick but it is permanent. "I cannot say more in favor of these wonderful pills than that they saved my wife from lingering illness, which she had endured for 20 years past, and I sincerely trust that all sufferers will give Doan's Kidney Pills a fair trial. LAXA-LIVER PILLS. Cure constipation, biliousness, sick headache and dyspepsia. All ailments of the bowels, which are not cured by other pills, are cured by LAXA-LIVER PILLS. Price, 25c. at all druggists. "Grimwade," said Besant, "not noticing the other's invitation, 'do you know that Ester is going to marry Esmond and throw me over?' "I heard something about it, but I'm hanged if she shall, a disbeliever in the matter. I don't know where she is, but I have her, Besant, confound her! I give you my word for it." "I tell you what it is, Grimwade; we must keep that girl and Esmond apart by force or stratagem until she learns the error of her ways. There is no means of sending her away for a time, or, failing that, surely there is some room in this rambling old barn where you could shut her up? Yes, I own the measures are strong; but something decisive must be done, or it will be too late." "Good heavens, Robert's cried Mr. Grimwade, rising from his seat and pacing up and down the room. "How do you think it possible to shut a girl of twenty? Why, Esmond! I am bound to Mr. Besant, and there would be no end of a row! No, no, that would never do; but— "Mr. Grimwade broke off abruptly and paused in front of Besant. "Where is she?" "Down stairs, in the other part of the house. Well, what is it?" "You know—I mean you have heard—that forty or fifty years ago some members of my family were fined heavily for cheating the Excise and keeping an illicit still? "I know, but I don't see how it bears on the present case. I wish you'd make haste; she will be up here in a minute." "There was a suspicion in the public mind at that time that that was not the extent of their backslidings. It was strongly suspected that they manufactured counterfeit coin, and there were men unfit for such a purpose again. This however is not the case. There are still two rooms, about fifteen feet by thirty, quite dry, and excellent for storage purposes. They have domed roofs twenty feet high, and are so contrived that no sound from them can possibly reach the upper air." Mr. Grimwade paused and listened intently. "I think I see your drift," said Besant, who had turned very pale. "Should Esmeralda refuse to listen to reason, you propose to incarcerate her until she is prepared to meet our views? Rather a desperate measure; but 'all's fair in love or war.'" "The absence of that woman Martha is greatly in our favor," said Mr. Grimwade. "Tomorrow, when Esmond comes to see me—I heard him tell Esther that he would come—I shall have a tale ready for him. It will be something like this—that I will utterly disapprove of the match, and that on Esther telling me of her engagement, I made up my mind to send her down into the country to stay with her aunt, until she had time to think the matter over and is disposed to

ISN'T THIS THE KIND OF SOAP YOU WANT?

Extract from letter. I find your soap the best washing soap I have ever used does not chap hands like others and will not injure the finest of fabrics. Mrs. Frank Evans, Pine St. Halifax, N. S. We receive hundreds of letters of similar tenor to above. The old reliable and Famous ---WELCOME SOAP--- It is soft on the hands, but rough on the dirt. Before she had time to utter a sound, the handkerchief, impregnated with a pungent, sickening smell, was thrown over her face. She threw up her hands with a gasping sob, swayed and fell back insensible into Besant's arms. CHAPTER IV. Between half-past eleven and twelve on the following morning John Esmond walked over to the Grange, and felt a momentary disappointment that Esmeralda was not looking out for him as he had hoped she would be. She must be in the garden, he thought resignedly; he would join her there when his interview with Mr. Grimwade was over. He rang the bell, which resounded through the large, half empty house. He waited for a considerable time; and, as no one came, he rang again, when Mr. Grimwade himself opened the door. "Have you been here long?" he asked, looking suspiciously at the visitor. "It's difficult to hear the bell in the west wing." "I have rung two or three times," replied Esmond; "but I was in no hurry, so it does not matter. I want a few minutes' conversation with you." "Oh, certainly; step this way, will you?" Mr. Grimwade closed the door and retraced his steps to a small room on the left, where he generally received his visitors. He walked to the window, the shutters of which had not been unfastened. He threw them back, letting in the June sunshine and balmy air. "My maid Martha—plague take her!—has gone for a few days' holiday; he explained; "so the house is rather at sixes and sevens. Won't you sit down?" "Thanks—no. I called to see you, Mr. Grimwade, to tell you that I have asked our niece Esther to be my wife, and she has accepted of me. I love her and shall do my best to make her happy. I am not a rich man, as you are no doubt aware; but every year my affairs are mending, and Esmeralda is content to trust her future to me. I felt it my duty to acquaint you with my intentions as soon as I had spoken to her. Esmond's grey eyes were fixed upon Mr. Grimwade's face, which expressed little or nothing of his thoughts. "I make a point of never interrupting any person when he's stating a case," said Mr. Grimwade slowly. "It's ill-natured and impolite, for it is always better to be made to look at both sides of a question. Now I must ask you to extend the same civility to me." John bowed, but set his teeth firmly, for he saw that he must expect some opposition. "I think you may perhaps have been aware, Mr. Esmond, that I never encouraged you to pay your addresses to my niece; therefore you will hardly be surprised when I tell you most emphatically that I entirely disapprove of the match—to be brief, that nothing shall make me give my consent to it! For that reason, when Esther told me of her engagement, I decided to send her away to some relatives in the north of England until such time as she shall have outgrown her infatuation. I took her early this morning to Wryly, and saw her off by an early train, having previously telegraphed to town to a friend to meet her there and see her safely to her destination. put up by JOHN HOPKINS, ST. JOHN, N. B. Scrofula. Another permanent cure by B.S.S. after two doctors failed. Ask any doctor and he will tell you that, next to cancer, scrofula is one of the hardest diseases to cure. Yet Burdock Blood Bitters applied externally to the parts affected and taken internally cured Rev. Wm. Stout of Kirkton, Ont., permanently, after many prominent physicians failed; Cured Mrs. W. Bennett, of Creighton's Corners, Ont., permanently, when everyone thought she was dead. Now Mr. H. H. Forest, Windsor Mills, P. Q., states his case as follows: "After having used Burdock Blood Bitters for scrofula in the blood, I feel it my duty to make known the results. I was treated by two skilled physicians, but they failed to cure me. I had running sores on my hands and legs which I could get nothing to heal until I tried B.S.S. This remedy cured them completely and permanently, leaving the skin and flesh sound and whole."
