Tom is crying, Mary singing,
Jack is laughing marrily,
Dust is dying, ton bells ringing.
These have music, sure for me;
Pensants telling, rich men riding,
Staring with a lordly phis,
Regues through every crowd are gliding, se through every crowd are ow very queer a world it is:

Marrying, some in marriage giving, Others like the world of old, All but me are feating, living— Would that wives were to be sold. Others have their durs in plenty, And their become heave with love, I've had chances, minerees, twenty, But I date not one imposve.

Brokers shaving, sheriffs dunning, Politician pull your alseve, Printers soolding, wise are punning, Jail-birds bagging for reprieve, Lawyers spouring, clients list using, Doctors prating of their skill, Patients grossing, school-boys whist Striving all old Time to kill.

Levers stroll with bosoms swelling
List'ning while the night blad Levers stroll wish bosoms swelling,
List'sing while the night bird sings.
Clouds are lowering, tempost howling,
Friends suspecting, fore are glad,
Children screening, mistress scowling,
Merry bosoms now are sad.
Prests! they are gone for aver,
All is gay as it has been,
Sunbeams shim, the girls—oh, never!
What a curious world we're in!

"Vy. Jem." said the other. "I did not expect to see you in this here crowd."

"There's a fine go of it—sh!" meaning the conflagration.

"Vy. yes, Jem. I calls that a litle bit of a blaze, and no mistake. It will soon take the shine out of those there engine-men."

"I should think so. They'h never put it out; they might as soon think as how they could axtinguish it by spitting on it."

"Put it out! Heaven bless you, Jack, they wouldn't put it out, though they were to pour the whole Thames on it like a sack of potatoes."
