THE CHANGING SENSE OF HUMOR

At five the small boy's sense of humor finds its highest satisfaction in seeing his father fall down the cellar stairs. At 10 he finds his delights in teasing his young lady sister about the wart on her beau's nose. At 15 when he becomes greatly amused at the ludicrous ideas of his parents. In college he finds no event so uproariously funny as the one when he and a few others found an old horse belonging to one of the professors, painted it green and tied it to the piano in the chapel. As a lover there is nothing so keenly ridiculous as the witticisms of his sweetheart. After being married five years he sees the absolute of humor in his bachelor friends idea that he knows anything at all. At forty he is secretly amused at the self-confidence of the man of thirty. At sixty he looks with amusement upon the strenuous efforts of his younger friends to achieve a success they must abandon in a few years. At seventy the wheel turns around again and he finds nothing so refreshingly delightful as the peals of laughter of his grandchildren.

SPEEDING HARD ON TIRES

Tire wear increases with speed. The faster a tire travels the more heat it generates internally. This heat not only dries out the friction gum between the piles of fabric, but the very fabric itself, lowering the elasticity of the tire, decreasing its resiliency and weakening the tire, so that it will blow out early.

MR. J. D. O'CONNELL GIVES PICNIC AT SUSSEX

Thursday was a gala day in Sussex when J. D. O'Connell, of Cuba, who is at present spending a vacation here gave a picnic to the whole town. About 3,500 persons were present, including men, women and children.

Speeches were made to the assembly by the mayor, J. D. McKenna, M. P. P. elect, Rev. Mansel Shewan and Mr. O'Connell.

The main feature of the afternoon was the hurling of 10,000 pennies from a platform into the ranks of the kiddies.

"MAN WITH THE PLOW" TURNS UP SOME MOONSHINE

In Pennsylvania, Prohibition Director John T. Davis, has become "the man with the plow." He and his agents are running furrows over a farm near Logantown and so far they have turned up 35 barrels and more than 1,000 quarts of moonshine.

Well digging as well as agriculture has contributed to Mr. Davis' detective methods, for he used a divining rod to locate the liquor. He is still using it for it is reported there are a hundred or more five gallon jugs yet on the farm.

The proprietor of this underground storehouse is missing and so are four men suspected of being accomplices.

WAR VETERAN'S DEATH

Thomas Ginnish, Red Bank, Northumberland Co., an Indian with an overseas record, died Friday morning in the East St. John County Hospital from pulmonary tuberculosis. He enlisted in the 132nd Battalion at Newcastle in February, 1916, and reached France the following December. He served in the 57th Battalion until May 25, 1918, when he was invalided home and became an outpatient of River Glade Sanitarium. He was first admitted to East St. John in August, 1918, but was later well enough to go to his home. He was re-admitted and discharged several times, his last admission being on the 5th of June. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Ginnish. The D. S. C. R. made arrangements to have the body taken to Red Bank for interment.

JAMES A. HOUSTON

Boston, Mass.—James A. Houston, prominently identified with the retail dry goods business here for the past 65 years, died on Friday. He was a member of the old firm of Houston & Henderson, located on Washington street and Temple place, later known as the James A. Houston Co., doing a large jobbing business and dealing principally in silks and dry goods.

After selling out to Connell & Magrane, Mr. Houston intended to retire from active business but later backed his son, Ernest Houston, in a business in Temple Place. A life long friendship and business connection with the late R. H. White started when Mr. Houston, as a boy of 13, began working for Wilcox White Co. on Hanover street, which housed the first R. H. White store in 1857. At one time he managed a branch R. H. White store in Manchester.

When the White store was opened on its present location on Washington street in 1876, Mr. Houston assisted the architects with the building and was identified with the business as silk buyer, superintendent and general manager until 1893. In 1910 he returned to the R. H. White Co. and had been in charge of construction work ever since. He was 78 years old and was one of the last of the old school merchants here.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2.30 at his late home, 74 Maple street, Roxbury.

The late Mr. Houston is well and favorably known in Newcastle and his death will be heard with regret by many of his friends here. Mr. Houston was an ardent fisherman and for the past 35 years has been coming to the Miramichi on fishing trips up the Northwest Miramichi River.
