This advertisement means a Sale in true sense of the word. The goods are new purchases—up-to-date and thoroughly desirable. They are being offered for a double purpose.

First, to cement further the belief of our customers and to maintain the reputation of this Sale—the greatest opportunity of the year.

Second, to get our normal percentage of increase this year—and we are doing it by offering better values than ever before.

We will leave it to you if the quality, the styles, the handsome materials and trimmings, as well as Lowest Prices, do not compare in every detail which are offered nearly double the price elsewhere.

To the Gentlemen:

Suits and Overcoats

If you want clothes of good quality and yet want to save money, then you should see the bargains we are offering. They are all perfect merchandise of usual high quality. But because they are mail order over-stocks and samples, because of our low rent and small expense, our prices are almost unbelievably low.

Sizes, Quality, Style, Prices to suit anybody.

A convincing demonstration of the value-giving power of our clothes, the frost was still in the ground last year when we placed our order for this season's stock, long before shortage of materials made itself felt as keenly as it has since.

Over one thousand garments in stock to select from, ranging from $11.00 up.

Snapshots.

Vivian Drake, a young Englishman, is a versatile kind of a fellow. He felt convinced he could write a book of merit, tried it and did so. He was sure he could become an aviator, and as a result became a captain in the British flying force. Then navigation appealed to him, and he has just qualified in a tramp steamer crossing the Western ocean, and is not much older than 25 at that.

In order to supply the demand for safety razors abroad, Jane Carroll, a graduate of Cornell University, has been appointed general manager of the export division of the American Safety Razor Corporation. It is to be Miss Carroll's strange position to put a safety razor into the hand of every male inhabitant of Europe, so says Geo. L. Storm, chairman of this $20,000,000 concern.

Once upon a time there was a little boy who wanted a horse. He was wealthy and had many toys, but most of all he wanted a horse. He was told he was too young, but he persisted and finally the horse was ordered and arrived. It was a beautiful horse, with springs in its back and legs and all covered with hair. The little boy who grew up to be King Edward VII. of England was delig-ted. The toy maker who pleased the royal offspring with his art was Jesse Armour Crandall, of Brooklyn, who has for 70 years been engaged in making wonderful toys for children the world over. Mr. Crandall recently observed his 86th birthday by making more plans for better toys.

Someone once offered Gabriele D'- Annunzio, Italy's greatest living poet and aviator, whose exploits have caused such a flutter, $15,000 for a series of lectures in South America. "Thanks," he replied. "I have no wish to brave the ocean for a box of cigars." The reply was typical of the man who writes his poetry clad in a robe of cloth of gold and whose stock of fancy waistcoats and neckties is the envy of the Beau-brummels of the world. By the way, his real name is Tommaso Rasagnetta, but as this was considered by him too commonplace for a poet, he changed it. His assumed name means "Gabriele the Messenger."

Regarding her work, Mrs. Elinor Glyn, the famous authoress, who is now engaged upon reconstruction work in France, once made this interesting confession concerning her method of working: "I began writing to amuse myself. I won't accept an order for a book, because I will not publish anything that does not satisfy me. Before beginning to write a story I relate it either to my mother or my daughter. If they do not approve, the story is never written. If they do, then I work at white heat, and the novel is completed in a few weeks. My advice to beginners is: Never be afraid of your own convictions, and never write a word you don't believe."

Beware Wood Alcohol.

There seems to be a general belief among the masses of even such an intelligent people as the Canadians that alcohol is alcohol, a single individual substance the same yesterday, to-day and forever, forming the "real thing" in all fermented and distilled drinks.
Consequently anything going by the name of alcohol is regarded as potable and drunk. Now all this is the densest sort of ignorance, resulting in illness and death. So great has been the injury resulting that the National Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, of New York, has issued a most timely warning about wood alcohol, denatured alcohol and medicated alcohol when used for beverage purposes. Wood alcohol is a deadly poison, clear and direct, and the harmful action comes not only from taking it internally, but may be induced likewise while merely breathing its fumes and by absorption through the mucous membranes of the body. Within a few hours after drinking there follows an acute headache, violent attacks of body pains and excessive dizziness. Vision is always impaired, total blindness frequently occurs, and death itself often comes. The wood alcohol used in Canada and the United States is made from the destructive distillation of wood of different sorts. It is used to denature—render unfit for drinking—grain alcohol, in the making of varnishes, as a fuel and illuminant, and for various chemical purposes. Denatured alcohol consists of ninety per cent. grain alcohol and ten per cent. wood alcohol, to render it unfit for drinking while leaving it useful for all other purposes. Where denatured alcohol or wood alcohol is sold the poison label is always put on the bottle, and if it is not there it is proof that some scoundrel has tampered with it in order to sell the fluid as a potable product. One teaspoonful of wood alcohol taken internally is sufficient to cause total blindness, a larger quantity not infrequently causing death. If you value your eyesight or your life, never use wood alcohol, denatured alcohol or medicated alcohol for drinking purposes.—Acadian Recorder.

Conduct at Cambridge.

T. R. H. AT THE 'VARSITY.

(From Answers.)

Anent the arrival of Prince Albert and Prince Henry at Cambridge, a daily paper announces that they went shopping, bought their caps, gowns, and surplices, and dined in the college hall (Trinity) in the evening.

This, we are informed, they will do from time to time only. Otherwise "they will conduct themselves as ordinary undergraduates."

To that, as an old Cantab, I say
"H'm!"

Unless the war has changed Cambridge—I noted with horror that undergrads had been seen with umbrellas—the Princes will be asking for a certain amount of trouble if they "conduct themselves as ordinary undergraduates." The species, in my time, did a lot of things that wouldn't be considered decorous behaviours for royal princes!

"Confined to College."

We used to scuttle across to morning "Chapel" with our attire—our lack of it, that is!—covered and concealed by our surplices, a voluminous garment, buttoned at the neck, and always called a "shirt."

Occasionally there were contra-tempo, due to hurried and very partial dressing and traitorous buttons.
Then the offender saw the Dean, and got "gated"—the college equivalent of the military "C.B."—confined to barracks.

Then, if the outside world called pretty strongly, it was through an attic window, along the roof, and a shin down a rope to the freedom of the streets. That wouldn't do for royal princes!

"Wines" were out of fashion, but we had "beers"—cheap, bottled beers.
And after we had filled ourselves with the gassy stuff we did things. Once we tubbed a "fresher" who was reported to be unclean; another time we screwed up the "oak"—the outer door—of a Don's rooms, and left him bottled up for many hours.

On one occasion we went to a "P" (pious) meeting, and behaved ourselves with great decorum. Groaned and wept over our sins, that is, and refused to be comforted. On another occasion we wrote "Wet Paint" on various lintels and doors, and suffered internal convulsions as we watched reverend professors gather their M.A. gowns about them to escape detile-ment.

Collecting Police Helmets.

Once, too, we took away the Bible from the lectern in the college chapel —sorry, we meant no irreverence and played no tricks with it—and substituted a copy of "Robinson Crusoe." We all went to chapel the next morning.

We didn't get "Crusoe," but there was a certain enjoyable delay. Also an inquiry; but "nobody knew num."

And what about other delights of the "ordinary undergraduate"? Smoking in cap and gown in the streets, and giving the "Froggins" and his attendant "Bull Dogs" a run for their money? Great sport!

And what about playing "pills" in unauthorized billiard saloons? I don't think it would be decorous for royal princes to bolt through the window, shin him down a drain-pipe, and "go a bunk" that way!

And what of the glorious Town vs.
Gown "rag"? In my time the height of the ro"adary" etain shruu etainoin
and by absorption through the mucous

I don't suppose, either, the Princes will go as some of us did at certain smollient lectures. We played ha-penny nap! The learned and ancient professor who lectured never took his

Nature's Greatest Washers

The sea washes the world—Pears' Soap washes its inhabitants!

For over a century, Pears' has been making its way round the world. Ask for it in your local store; it is there! From the Cape to Cairo, in the bazaars of India, throughout Australia, Canada, the U.S., and South America Pears' has made its way with civilization,—on merits!

Pears' Soap is transparent because it is pure; it is the most economical soap because "it wears but does not waste." It cleanses and purifies the skin and freshens up body and mind.

is not heavily scented. Its delicate perfume comes from pure natural ingredients; the difference is important,—it means again that Pears' soap is pure.

eyes off his M.S., so he was none the wiser.

When Cricket

Was a Crime.

As Little Work as Possible.
Ordinary undergraduates used to slop about in pumps, half the day.
That, I suppose, is barred! And the ordinary undergraduate used, at the College Debating Societies, to revel in such subjects as "Should Female Infants be Smothered?" "That, in the opinion of this Society, Royalty should be abolished," and so on. But perhaps times have changed.

At any rate, I guess two characteristics remain: One—to do as little work as possible; two—to eat dinner at "ball" in the largest possible mouthful, and in the shortest possible time!

Well, good luck to the Princes—Hope they have a good time—or as good as being more or less obliged to be good will permit them.

I think they should have gone to Cambridge "incog." Then they would —bet your boots on it—have conducted themselves as "ordinary undergraduates!"

The cork mat which can be rolled up is one of the sensible accessories of the bathroom.

It is not generally known that down to the year 1748, cricket was an illegal game in England. Any person allowing it to be played on his land was liable to a fine of twenty pounds, and three years' imprisonment, and the players ten pounds fine and two years' imprisonment; while the "implements" were to be burnt. This was under a statute of Edward IV., enacted because the popularity of the pastime was interfering with archery.
Nevertheless, the first county match was played while these tremendous penalties were in force. This was between Kent and Sussex, at Sevenoaks, in 1745. In the London "Evening Post" from Saturday, August 23, to Tuesday, August 26, 1735 it is recorded: "Last week was played at Sevenoaks in Kent, a great cricket match between the Earl of Middlesex, the Lord John Sackville, and nine other gentlemen of the county of Kent, and Sir William Gage and ten other gentlemen of the county of Sussex, when the Kentish gentlemen beat." The following year Kent met Surrey.
