

Impressive Service at Cochrane Street Centennial Church.

Memorial Tablet Unveiled by His Excellency the Governor.

There is something about a Memorial service which strikes at the very heart of one's soul. There is something majestic, something grand, something which cannot leave the heart untouched. The note that strikes savours more of triumph and grief, more of joy than of distress. It is this right to Grief and joy for a soldier who has died in the cause should give way to feelings of pride in his great sacrifice. It is this feeling which pervaded Cochrane Street Methodist Centennial Church yesterday when His Excellency the Governor unveiled a Memorial Tablet to the men of the Church who died in the Great War. The ceremony was a most impressive one but the service was simplicity, which will long be remembered by those who attended. At 11 a.m. the congregation of the Church gathered for the service. Special reservations had been made for the returned men of the Guard of Honour, the members of the G.N.V.A., C.I.B. Cadets, Newfoundland Highlanders the Methodist Comrades and Band, and representatives also of the Red Cross and persons of three young ladies' uniforms. Rev. C. H. Johnson, pastor of the church, Rev. G. J. Bond, former pastor, Rev. M. Fenwick, Rev. Wilson and Rev. A. Clayton, of St. John's, who was assisted in the service by Rev. C. H. Johnson, were particularly pleasing as an Anglican clergyman present, assisting in the service at a Methodist church for the first time in the history of the church. Following the service opened with an organ prelude, "Chopin's Funeral March," beautifully rendered by Mr. Arthur Mews, organist of the church. Throughout the service the music was played and did much to add to the solemnity of the service. The prelude followed by "Holy, Holy, Holy, God of Hosts," rendered by the choir. After part of psalm 103 was sung by Rev. James Wilson, that wonderful chapter in Ecclesiastes (chapter 3) in which occurs the words "Their Name Liveth for Evermore" was read by the Rev. Captain Bond and prayer was offered by the Rev. C. H. Johnson. The offertory was made by Mr. C. H. Johnson, "Father a Call in Flanders" was played. The offertory prayer was offered by Rev. T. W. Atkinson. Following the service, the Guard of Honour, consisting of men of the congregation who had served overseas, formed up about the rostrum and the choir sang the following anthem:

"I heard a voice from heaven, saying, 'Write. From henceforth, and hereafter, the dead which die in the Lord, even so shall the spirit; for they rest from their labours.'"

His Excellency the Governor then unveiled the Memorial Tablet which was covered with a Union Jack and carried by a representative of both branches of the service, the army and navy, who, stood with bayoneted rifles and rifles at the present, as the unveiling revealed the memorial. His Excellency delivered a short and appropriate address. The Memorial Tablet is of Alabaster decorated in relief with various devices, and in the centre a representation in mosaic of the Alabaster in his search for the Holy Grail after the picture by the eminent artist, W. A. R.

It bears the following inscription:

To the Glory of God and in Grateful Memory of the Men of this Church Who Fell
in the Great War, 1914-1918.

The names of the glorious dead were read slowly and distinctly by His Excellency, following which the Dedication Prayer was read by Rev. Dr. Bond. A brief silence followed, only to be broken by the melancholy strains of the "Dead March in Saul," pealed out by the organ. Wreaths were then placed at the base of the Tablet by the Hon. Sir R. A. Squires on behalf of the Government, by Mr. J. G. Higgins, B.A., President, on behalf of the Great War Veterans' Association, and by Mr. A. C. Peters on behalf of Cochrane St. Centennial Church. The plaintive notes of the Last Post resounding through the building, concluded the Unveiling Ceremony. The hymn "Now the day is over" was sung and the service was then delivered by Rev. G. J. Bond. The theme of the address was the savagery of war. In powerful language, Dr. Bond showed up the awfulness of war. No composer could set the sounds of war to music, no artist could paint its sights. There was no excuse for war, no apology. He was unable to understand how it could exist in the 20th Century of the Christian Era. He summed it up in the striking phrase of General Sherman, "War is hell." Might an International Council Table, and not the lunacy of war be the final arbiter. The preacher painted a vivid picture of the havoc and desolation wrought in the once smiling lands of France and Belgium. He spoke of the graves of the Newfoundlanders, which, he said, were always known because each cross was decorated with a wreath attached to which was a paper bearing the regimental crest and the words "Lost we forget."

This service was to commemorate the sacrifice, the unselfishness, and the valour of the men who had fought and died. We must ever remember with constant and practical gratitude, the men by whose sacrifice we were kept sheltered and made secure. Particularly must we cherish the men who fell. Others gave much, but they gave all. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he should lay down his life for his friend," quoted the preacher, "and we are the friends for whom these men laid down their lives." Many a touching story was told by Dr. Bond in his inspiring address. He told of the French soldier on whose memorial Tablet in a Methodist Church at Paris was inscribed "Hush for Death, if by it our France may triumph," and beneath it in English, a quotation from Macaulay added by the soldier's English wife, "And how can man die better?" He told also of the mother who had given two sons and when urged to prevent the third and last boy from going, replied: "Sons have rights as well as mothers"—aye the right of self surrender, the right of sacrifice, the highest to which God Himself attained on Calvary.

"Twas great to speak a World from naught!"
"Twas greater to redeem."

The names of all three sons were recorded on the Memorial Tablet. The preacher went on to speak of the wave of unselfishness which had been apparent during the years of the war. He related the story of the Cochrane Street boy whose dying words, at Beaumont Hamel, were "Push on," and he urged all present to follow that example and to "Carry on." Following the sermon, Mr. Lloyd Woods rendered the solo "There is no Death," which was followed by the Hallelujah Chorus and "God Bless our Native Land." The National Anthem brought the service to a close and as the congregation filed and Fugue in D" was rendered by the organist. Outside the church the veterans formed up and headed by the Band of the M.G.C. marched to their headquarters.

The Memorial Committee consisted of—
Rev. C. H. Johnson, M.A., B.D., Chairman; Major J. W. March, M.C., C. de G. Major B. Butler, D.S.O., M.C. and Bar, Major J. St. P. Knight, O.B.E., Lieut. A. Roseworthy, Lieut. H. C. James, M.S.M., Sergt. A. M. Wilson, Rev. L. Curtis, M.A., D.D., M.B.E., Mr. Arthur Mews, C.M.G., Mr. John Maund, Mr. Edwin Parsons, Mr. Wilson Clark, Mr. H. N. Burt, Secretary.

The Memorial Tablet was made by Jones & Willis of London, England, and is a companion tablet to that of Mr. Woods now in the church.

No Letters for His Cow.

Amongst a number of good stories brought back from America by the Rev. R. J. Campbell is one concerning a postmistress at a small frontier town in New Mexico. As in the case with most of these little places, there is no delivery of letters. People call for them at the post office. The postmistress was a true deal. Presently a busy farmer rode up, dismounted, pushed his way through people for the mail, and bawled out: "Any letters here for Mike Howe?" The postmistress continued sorting. "Any letters here for Mike Howe?" he shouted again. She looked up, and said quietly: "There is nothing here for your cow or anyone else's cow."
