Russians, realizing that it was up to them, applauded thunderously.

Mr. Witte has been seen a great dehl about the notel in the last day or two. They say that he is getting homesick, and that the summer hotel living is not to his taste. A purveyor and importer of Russian goods set up shop in the billiard taste. A purveyor and importer of Russian goods set up shop in the billiard room. Hearing of it, Mr. Witte came down and spent half an hour inspecting laces and fingering Russian jewels. As he left the room he sighed. The members of the suite bought a good many articles to give as souvenirs to the suffmer people with whom they have made acquaintance.

Recently Baron Rosen had a hurry call to the telephone. The telephone booth is in a corner of the lobby, back of the news-stand, and in a very public place if the door is left open. Whenever Rosen has a call to the telephone there is great excitement, for it may be Oyster Bay or it may be the mysterious Baron Kaneko, who is reported in a dozen places every day. Now Rosen, when he stepped into the booth, left the door slightly open. Of course, it wasn't quite fair to listen, but Recently Baron Rosen had a hurry call wasn't quite fair to listen, but tempted fate, and, besides, the destiny nations might hang on that single conversation hat many a renowned foreign and domestic correspondent found that he wanted a paper at the news-stand.
