The defen-dant, James Johnston, is a neighbor of the deceased, and used to room with him. The action is brought to recovor from the de-fendant a gold watch owned by Lannon, and valued by the family as a souvenir. Defendant claims that Mr. Lannon gave him the watch as a present. It appeared that Lannon promised to give Johnston the watch, and that just before his death he handed it Mrs. Wright, a friend, who attended him in his illness, and said, "If anything happens to me, give it to Jim." The jury brought in a verdict for the de-fendant.

H. A. L. WHITE'S CONNECTION WITH

PRICE ONE CENT.

The World, of Sept. 8, published a letter from H. A. L. White of "Smith & White, barristers, solicitors, etc.; solicitors for the bank of Montreal, etc., etc., etc., " of St. Marys, in which that gentleman stated that the letter of Fair Play printed in The World of Sept. 3 was not written by H. F. Sharp, mayor of that saintly and pretty little town. The World is not aware that In Better Shape Than Ever-An Institu- it ever asserted that the letter bearing the signature of Fair Play was written by Mr.

Sharp. At any rate, it is none of H. A. L. White's business whether it was or not, and Mr. White's conscience, if he has any. must have tingled terribly to have even must have tingled terribly to have even imagined that Mr. Sharp did write it. The World was willing to give H. A. L. White of Smith & White, barristers, soli-citors, etc., of St. Marys, the benefit of the denial that Mr. Sharp had written the Fair Play letter. At any rate it was received by The World with Mr. Sharp's name attached to it, as mayor of St. Marys. But as The World stated in a foot note at the bottom of Mr. White's com-munication, why did not that gentleman tell us all about the bogus lottery swindle with which it is alleged he is connected f He does not even deny that the St. Marys manufacturing company, with which his name has been so prominently coupled, does not even exist, and that the attempt to make money out of the scheme is a to make money out of the scheme is a swindle and a fraud. The World has many times stated that it was, and as Mr. Whit does not deny it we must perforce still presume our statements to be correct, The World has received letters from many pro-

World has received letters from many pro-minent citizens of St. Marys thanking the paper for the stand taken in exposing the swindle—for such it really is, and Mr. White, if he values his reputation, will at once speedily rid himself of the odium at present attached to his name. The World has no desire to injure Mr. White, but it hopes for Mr. White's own sake he will quit the lottery business. It is a low, disgraceful calling, indulged in by none who are capable of earning their livelihood in an honest and decent manner. It is a calling worked by thieves and sneaks, whose proper place would be behind the iron bars of the Kingston penitentiary. The World appends once more the "official" list of the office holders in the swindle, in the hope that they will, the "official" list of the office holders in the swindle, in the hope that they will, like David of old, repeat of their evil doings, and become like Brete Harte's hero, perfectly free from "ways that are dark and tricks that are vain." OPENING DAY NOTES. DOPENING DAY NOTES. Looking the various departments of the exhibition yesterday afternoon, one might have imagined that the regular opening was intended for next week, not for this. In a majority of cases the exhibitors were not quite ready, but were very busy hurry-ing up. Contrary to former experience, the electric railway is one of the things actually ready on the firstday. As a gen-eral rule, exhibitors in the retail trade have their displays all fixed up on time, but the manufacturers seem mostly to have had their eyes on next week. As for the far-mers' departments—produce and live stock —not much of a display need be expected before Monday next.
