SALMON.

There has been heavy arrivals of Alaska salmon the past week aggregating 172,333 cases and 3,489 barrels. Total so far this season 707,096 cases and 10,863 barrels. So far as we know all received were sold to arrive as well as about all the expected pack. Advices from Alaska continue to indicate a short pack. There is a good demand for car-load parcels at 97½ cents to $1 for canned Alaska. The fall pack on the Sacramento river aggregates about 15,500 cases which, with the spring pack, brings the total for the season up to about 26,600 cases. Packing on Puget Sound is under way. It is the impression that about 40,000 cases of fall fish, miscalled salmon, will be packed on the Columbia. The packing of such stuff is not considered a credit to any canneryman.

English mail advices report the markets as follows: London—The Primera, with 24,600 cases of salmon from Victoria, B. C., has just reached the port of London, but it cannot be said that transactions in the article have increased, for the market is apparently in the same position as before, sound and healthy, though without much activity, and the purchases made are strictly confined to actual requirements at late rates. pool—The market is stronger this week with a more active demand. The last cargo of 1893 season has arrived at London and is held for higher price. Bristol—Salmon continues rather quiet, but some packs have been quoted 1s up. Still the following quotations will generally reflect the prices at which business is being done: Alaska fish 18s 6d to 19s; British Columbia and Fraser River 20s to 22s; Columbia River 25s to 26s.—San Francisco Herald of Trade.
