

There is a potentially strong lobby in Washington which would like to have the federal government impose product import controls and/or duties to protect domestic refiners from potential new competition from the OPEC refineries. Unless Canada is exempted or granted some recognition of a special status such as common protective walls in a North American zone, Canadian refiners would suffer financially.