

CONTENTS.

The Powwow Dance,	116
An uncommon Admission into a Society among the Naudowessies,	ib.
The Dance of the Indians on the Banks of the Mississippi, referred to in the Journal,	119
The Dance of the Sacrifice,	120

CHAPTER VIII.

Of their Hunting,	121
Their Preparation before they set out,	ib.
Their Manner of hunting the Bear,	122
Buffalo, Deer, &c.	ib.
Beaver,	123

CHAPTER IX.

Of their Manner of making War, &c.	125
The Indian Weapons,	ib.
Their Motives for making War,	126
Preparations before they take the Field,	128
The Manner in which they solicit other Nations to become their Auxiliaries,	129
Their Manner of declaring War,	130
The Method of engaging their Enemies,	131
An Instance of the Efficacy of it in the Defeat of General Braddock,	ib.
A Detail of the Massacre at Fort William-Henry in the Year 1757,	132
Acuteness and Alacrity of the Indians in pursuing their Enemies,	137
Their Manner of Scalping,	ib.
The Manner in which they retreat and carry off their Prisoners,	138
A remarkable Instance of Heroism in a Female Prisoner,	139
Treatment of their Prisoners,	140
The Origin of their selling Slaves,	144

CHAPTER