After emphasizing the absolute neessity of vast supplies of guns and ition, which he described as the great essential of victory, the minister announced that he had sent David Alfred Thomas, managing director of great colliery companies in shortly be another Woolwich arsenal south Wales, and known as the "British coal king," to represent the muni- of war material. tions department in the United States and Canada. Respecting the appointment, the minister said: "In consequence of the great importance of the American and Candian markets and the numerous offers to provide munitions, it is very desirable that we have some one over there. Accordingly we have sent a very able business man. Mr. D. A. Thomas, who will be given the fullest responsibility for the discharge of his important duties. There is not the slightest idea of superceding our existing agencies. They have worked admirably and have saved us many Mr. Thomas will co-operate with the Messrs Morgan with a view to expediting supplies.

Germany's Preparations.

Speaking of German preparation, the minister said:

"Germany has been piling up material. Until she was ready she was triendly with everybody. During the Balkan crisis none could have been more modest or unpretentious. This was in answer to Sir Arthur Liberal, who said that if Mr. Lloyd George was not going to be independent in the war office, by which he meant Lord Kitchener, his scheme was foreshadowed by failure.
Mr. Lloyd George, continuing, said he was sure that Lord Kitchener would agree that the minister of munitions should have a free hand. He hoped that the bill would be printed by Friday, when the members could read it and they would see that it satisfactorily disposed of most of the duration of this war as no one elsei has done. They realized it would be a great trench war, and they had organized an immense supply of machinery applicable to these conditions. We assumed that victory was due us as a tribute from fate. Our problem is to organize, not to take it for granted. To do this the whole engineering and chemical resources of this country and of the empire must be organized. When this has been done France and ourselves will overlap the entire Teutonic output.

Question of Labor.

"It will take months before we can obtain the maximum output," Mr. Lloyd George went on. "Existing firms are unable to deliver goods in accordance with agreement because they cannot man the machines. It is entirely a question of labor. If I could lay my hands on an adequate supply of skilled labor I could double in a few weeks our supply of machine guns.

"I cannot forecast Germany's next move. If she swings her forces from the east to the west it is vital for the lines of our troops, and in order to en-able them to maintain their positions every available machine should be produced. It is essential that trade union restrictions which interfere with a great output of munitions shall temporarily be suspended at once. There must be a stoppage in slackness and an end must be put to the protice of an end must be put to the practice of employers pilfering each other's men. There must be no strikes or lockouts during the war."

Vast Improvement.

Dealing with the difficulties which he had to overcome, the minister of munitions said he early recognized that existing armament firms were inadequate to supply the new or old armies.

A vast improvement had been made by inviting business men to organize in their own localities. For instance, thru local organization in one town alone 150,000 shells monthly already were being turned out there, and these figures were expected to rise to 250.000. Great Britain, Mr. Lloyd George said, would be organized into ten areas. In London, he said, there would shortly be another Woolwich arsenal

Mr. Lloyd George emphasized that he intended to rely largely upon de-centralization, and real progress, he said, already had been made since the establishment of the munitions

Control Metal Market. "With regard to the supply of material," Mr. Lloyd George said, "it may be necessary to take complete con-trol of the metal market in order to be sure that valuable material is not wasted in non-essentials. In the meanwhile, the department is pro-curing full information regarding stocks of raw and semi-manufactured

"I am sorry to say," the minister continued, "that there are indications of the holding up of supplies of manual continued.
